Nazis Drive British Paratroops from North End of Bridge

FOUR GERMAN DIVISIONS HIT ARNHEM SPAN

Allied Forces Push Toward Kleve.

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Sept. 26 [Tuesday]—(AP).—Parts of three to four German divisions, smashing repeatedly at the valorous little band of British paratroopers holding a precarious foothold on the north bank of the Neder Rhine [Lek], were reported early today to have gained control of one end of the highway bridge at Arnhem, Holland.

A dispatch from the front said the British air borne units had finally been forced to quit the north end of the bridge after holding it desperately for three days while surrounded.

The British 2d army, throwing a bridgehead across the river barrier, also was under violent attack as it strove to drive up to the beleaguered air borne force which has fought alone for nine days. Its supply line, stretching 50 miles southward, was under assault.

Still supplies came thru. Seagoing trucks [ducks] and assault boats crossed the stream in a hail of shell and machine gun fire. An officer said "the situation is not critical," altho only a dribble of men and supplies was reaching the cut-off forces.

Within 8 Miles of Anchor.

Polish reinforcements who slipped across the river in the night were fighting close to the positions just west of Arnhem of the air borne Red Devil division, so called because of its red berets. A headquarters staff officer said no firm junction had been made.

The allies swung guns and troops from Holland into Germany at two points some 15 miles south of the Arnhem fighting, driving ahead to within eight miles of the Siegfried line's northern terminal at Kleve, keeping up the relentless pressure on the enemy's more vulnerable northern defenses.

Headquarters said allied forces had entered the forest of the Reichswald, which screens the fortress of Kleve on the southwest. Front dispatches said these forces were British troops and tanks. From the edge of the forest at the Dutch border they are eight miles from Kleve.

Yanks 50 Miles from Essen.

Four or five miles to the north, American sky troopers attached to the British 2d army had seized the Dutch frontier village of Beek and struck into Germany at about the same distance from Kleve.

Southwest of Kleve the British 2d army was moving east of Eindhoven on a 13 mile front.

The Germans, attempting to sever the vital artery of supply running up thru Holland, struck with renewed violence under cover of darkness near Veghel, 20 miles southwest of Nijmegen, and cut the road for five hours yesterday morning before British tanks drove them off.

Enlarge Bridgehead.

The British were pressing east from around Deurne to the vicinity of Volkel, 13 miles north. A bridgehead over the Bois de Luc canal, southeast of Eindhoven, was enlarged.

On the west the Canadians and British scored 10 mile advances on a front of about 20 miles. British troops captured Turnhout, largest

Judge Says No to Parents in School Freeze

Outbursts by hysterical parents highlighted a hearing in Superior court yesterday at which Judge John C. Lewe refused to grant an injunction sought on behalf of parents to restrain School Supt. William H. Johnson from preventing elementary pupils from attending schools outside their home districts.

Judge Lewe granted a motion by Atty. Frank S. Righeimer of the school board to strike a motion by Atty. Charles Liebman petitioning the injunction. Liebman sought to restrain the school board from proceeding with its recent order canceling school transfer permits.

E. M. Cohen Is Ejected.

Righeimer and Liebman squared off as tho for a fist fight during one heated exchange. E. M. Cohen, a Roosevelt rd. grocer who staged a "sitdown strike" in Johnson's office last week and who was questioned in connection with the bombing of Johnson's home Thursday night, was ejected forcibly from the courtroom.

One mother, Mrs. Theodore Schwartz of 2335 Haddon av., who said her daughter, Lois, 6, now has to go 28 blocks to Chopin school altho she lives only one block from Schley school, ran screaming around the courtroom, pursued by bailiffs, when Judge Lewe announced his decision. She was quieted by a woman bailiff after 10 minutes in the judge's chambers.

The court argument continued for two hours. 'Approximately 1,000 men and women stood in the corridor outside the courtroom, which was jammed.

Room Packed, They Charge.

They charged that many parents were excluded because courtroom seats were packed by Democratic party workers. A group of O'Toole school mothers who were waiting for the chamber doors to be opened at 9 a. m. said they were pushed aside while a file of other persons marched in.

Judge Lewe asked first for arguments on Righeimer's motion to dismiss the case, and Liebman said he was not prepared to cite law extensively in refutation of Righeimer's motion. Righeimer derided Liebman for appearing in court unprepared.

"You're so busy ballyhooing to get cheap publicity that no wonder you're not prepared," Righeimer said. "This case smells. This man has confessed filing a bill when he's not ready," he said, turning to the court. "I'm not only going to see that this bill is dismissed but see to it that he is disbarred."

"Liar!" Attorney Shouts.

Liebman shouted "Liar!" at the top of his voice when Righeimer told him that he had been "in trouble before and will be again." Liebman then left the courtroom for a time. Cohen, of 1343 Roosevelt rd., then demanded to be heard, and bailiffs propelled him out of the hall.

Righeimer, arguing to dismiss the case, offered citations that the court had no power to decide the policy for the school board. He said the order was issued to straighten out "a general mess." The court, he said, cannot tell an administrative body how to decide a certain question.

"In a city as large as Chicago, every one cannot be satisfied," Righeimer said. "Of course, pupils have to cross streets and car lines. You

APPOINTED FUHRER BY PRESIDENTIAL DECREE

PARITY PRICE PLANS LIFT GRAINS 5 CENTS, MAXIMUM PERMITTED

A rush of buying orders developed yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade and at the close all grains, except December corn, were 5 cents a bushel higher, the maximum advance permitted by market rules in one day. December corn, after moving up 4¾ cents, eased and closed 4½ cents higher.

The heavy buying resulted from Saturday's announcement by the war food administration that it would purchase thru the Commodity Credit corporation at parity prices practically all 1944 crop cotton and would take over all unredeemed 1944 wheat under government loan on May 1, 1945, at the loan price, plus 15 cents, less carrying charges.

Mom Tries Out Her Place Kick and Saves Gus

Gustav F. Kissel, 57, and his wife, Adelaide, 55, who operate a delicatessen at 5003 N. Clark st., teamed up effectively last night to rout a burglar whose nerve got as shaky as his knees.

Kissel told Summerdale police that he was alone in his store when the stocky bandit walked in and announced, "This is a stickup."

"Go on," Gustav said evenly, "and get out of here."

The bandit drew a nickel plated revolver, and Gustav, a wiry, six foot Swede, grabbed a ginger ale bottle. As they struggled Gustav thought he heard the revolver click three times.

'Hey, Mom, Come Out.'

"I figured the gun wasn't loaded," Gustav said, as he related how he maneuvered the struggling thug towards the door which led to the Kissel living quarters in the back of the delicatessen. Kicking on the door, Gustav yelled:

"Hey, Mom, come out here!"

Mom came out running and sized up the situation. With the bandit holding onto Gustav's right arm, which held the bottle, and Gustav holding onto the bandit's right arm, which held a revolver, both men were defenseless to any blows below the belt. Especially the bandit, since he wasn't on Mom's side.

Drops Gun and Leaves.

Mom, 145 pounds of fury, swung her right leg, hitting the bandit in the groin. He yelped, dropped the .38 caliber revolver, and lurched out the front door and up Clark st.

When Sgt. Thomas Dunderdale of Summerdale police arrived, he heard the Kissels' story, and then asked to look at the revolver.

When he broke open the gun, Gustav blanched. So did Mom. Fully loaded, the gun had misfired three times. The pin marks were plain. The fourth cartridge might have had Gustav's number on it.

One Bomb Run Sinks 3 Jap Ships

ALLIED HDQ., New Guinea Sept. 26 [Tuesday]—(AP).—A Catalina flying boat sank three Japanese warships off Davao, in the southern Philippines, headquarters reported today.

A Nipponese seaplane tender and two destroyer escorts were destroyed with a single bombing run in one of the most singular feats reported during the consistent bombing of Davao harbor.

The Catalina was on patrol over the important Japanese base which has been under almost constant American aerial surveillance for weeks. The attack was made during Saturday night and Sunday morning.

Hit Like Sitting Ducks.

When the Catalina roared over Davao gulf, crewmen discovered the seaplane tender fueling the two destroyer escorts, one on each side of the mother ship.

"In a single bombing run," said the bulletin, "all were hit, resulting in tremendous explosions. The smaller vessels sank almost immediately and the tender later was observed to capsize and sink."

The crew jubilantly claimed a world's record for tonnage of shipping destroyed by a single plane in a single run.

Blast 2 Ships.

In other allied raids, a 10,000 ton Japanese tanker was sunk and a 3,000 ton freighter damaged in Dutch Celebes.

Big Donations to PAC Slush Fund Revealed

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 25.—An $80,000 donation by a Communist controled CIO union to Sidney Hillman's political action committee was disclosed today in a report to the clerk of the house of representatives under the corrupt practices act, which requires all organizations engaged in political campaigning to detail receipts and expenditures.

The names of 48 heavy contributors to the CIO-PAC and its successor, the national citizens political action committee, were made known at the same time. Gifts and loans up to the legal limit of $5,000 a person were listed.

While some of the donors are known to be wealthy, others are merely staff subordinates of Hillman, causing some speculation on Capitol hill as to the source of the funds which they contributed.

Original Plan Termed Failure.

Disclosure of the big sums involved followed reports that the "voluntary dollar a member" campaign, conducted in behalf of President Roosevelt's fourth term attempt by Hillman and his associates among the members of CIO unions, thus far has been a failure.

The $80,000 contribution came in three instalments of $40,000, $20,000, and $20,000 from the United Electrical, Radio, and Machine Workers of America, which was reported by the Dies committee last March as having "scores of well known Communists such as Nell Brant and Julius Emspak in important strategic positions."

Accused of Flag Defiling.

The Dies report said that on Feb. 14, 1941, Brant, Russian born "international representative" of the union, was arrested and charged with "defiling the United States flag" in New Jersey. This episode occurred during the Stalin-Hitler pact when the Communist party of the United States "was lending every possible aid to Hitler by obstructing the national defense program." Brant is a member of several organizations stamped subversive by the justice department.

Emspak, secretary-treasurer of the union and a top man in the CIO-PAC, was a member of the national council of the American peace mobilization, which picketed the White House in protest against Mr. Roosevelt's "war mongering" tactics. After Germany invaded Russia, Emspak executed the customary flip-flop. He now is a member of the President's labor victory committee and a frequent visitor at the White House, according to the Dies report.

Listed as contributing $1,000 was Corliss Lamont, whose record as a Communist sympathizer and member of front organizations is one of the longest in Dies committee files.

Biddle Defends PAC.

The justice department meanwhile chose today to release a letter from Atty. Gen. Biddle to Sen. Moore [R., Okla.], who had charged Hillman with evasion of the corrupt practices act. Biddle wrote that he could not agree with Moore and expressed the belief that "both the spirit and letter of the law" were being obeyed.

On Moore's contention that the Hatch act had been violated by contributions amounting to more than $5,000, Biddle wrote that his investigation showed that the PAC had stayed within the limit on each contribution to a candidate or committee.

[The 48 heavy contributors to the PAC are listed on page 13.]

1 LEGGED MAN FINDS HE CAN USE THE WAR FOR A COOK'S TOUR

Flore Frederick Sasso, 21, of New Haven, Conn., admitted to United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker yesterday that the war had provided him with an opportunity to travel farther on one leg than he ever had gone in peace time on two. It had, he said, made a synthetic hero of him.

Flore F. Sasso.

Sasso, who uses the alias of Warrant Officer Frederick Roy Fioreo of the navy, was arraigned before the commissioner on a charge of illegally wearing a naval warrant officer's uniform. He wore the uniform during his arraignment. It was resplendent with brass buttons and ribbons and medals indicating service in all theaters of war. He confessed that for the last 18 months he had traveled around the country posing as a warrant officer who had suffered the loss of his left leg when his ship was torpedoed in the North Atlantic.

He was arrested Sunday night by two members of the shore patrol who grew suspicious when he was telling of his exploits in the service center at 176 W. Washington st.

Commissioner Walker bound Sasso over to the federal grand jury under $1,000 bonds, leaned over, and asked him: "Just how did you lose your leg, anyway?"

Sasso blushed. "In a truck accident seven years ago," he said.

STIRS 10,000 WITH FIERY INDICTMENT OF NEW DEAL

Delivers Punches in Manner of a Prosecutor.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Oklahoma City, Okla., Sept. 25.—Gov. Dewey took off the gloves tonight and before a frantically cheering overflow crowd at Municipal auditorium turned loose a bombardment of facts against President Roosevelt and his administration, asserting "the time has come to put a stop to everything that is summed up in that phrase, 'the indispensable man.'"

In words vibrant with cold and righteous anger, the former New York racket buster slammed down point by point President Roosevelt's "fraud and falsehood" speech of Saturday night. He subjected the New Deal record to an arraignment which he documented as if he were making a summation to a jury.

Manner of a Prosecutor.

Dewey was again the prosecutor, tearing into the opposition with courtroom vigor, massing facts with calculating efficiency and presenting them with incisiveness. Gone was the reserved tone of previous campaign utterances during the war-time truce he said President Roosevelt asked for and then broke. Gone was all semblance of diplomatic amenities between the Republican candidate and the White House.

And the audience loved it. Cowboy yells, Indian yips, women's cheers, and the hard-handed clapping of the calloused hands of plainsmen from three states—Texas and Kansas being represented as well as Oklahoma—greeted the New York governor's sallies.

10,000 Hear His Speech.

Police Capt. Tom Webb said there were close to 10,000 persons jammed into the hall and that 3,500 others were outside. The speech was broadcast.

Dewey demanded if the nation should continue an administration which invokes the "language of our enemies" and recklessly hurls charges of falsehood concerning things it knows to be the truth. He described the President's record, in regard to domestic problems as well as on the matter of preparedness for war, as "desperately bad."

He quoted senate records in support of charges the White House was responsible for the "shocking state of our defense program" four months before Pearl Harbor.

Quotes Democrat Leaders.

He quoted unrepudiated utterances of Sen. Truman and Mayor Kelly of Chicago to show that leading White House spokesmen have often publicly proclaimed Roosevelt to be "indispensable."

He reiterated that a high New Deal official [Gen. Hershey] had advocated postponement of the discharge of soldiers and sailors as a relief measure, and assailed the President's backing from Communists and big city bosses.

The meeting far exceeded for enthusiasm anything Dewey has encountered. When he appeared the audience jumped to its feet, waving flags and cheering for a full two minutes. The crowd shouted, "Pour it on" as the speech proceeded.

HE ASKED FOR IT AND HERE IT IS, SAYS GOVERNOR

"For two and a half weeks I have been laying before our people the program I believe must be adopted if we are to win at home the things for which our American men are fighting abroad. In six major speeches I have set forth a part of that program. There is much more to come.

"In doing this, I have been deeply conscious that this campaign is being waged under the most difficult circumstances and at the most trying time in our history as a nation. Our national unity for the war and for the cause of lasting peace must be strengthened as a result of this campaign. I believe the conduct of the campaign on our side has greatly strengthened that unity.

Quotes F. D. R.'s 1940 Remarks.

"I had assumed that every American joined me in hoping that would be the spirit of this campaign. Last July, Franklin Roosevelt, in accepting his party's nomination for a fourth term said: 'I shall not campaign in the usual sense . . . in these days of tragic sorrow, I do not consider it fitting.'

"Last Saturday night the man who wants to be President for 16 years made his first speech of this campaign. Gone was his high sounding pledge. Forgotten were these days of tragic sorrow. It was a speech of mud slinging, ridicule, and wisecracks. It plumbed the depths of demagogy by dragging into this campaign the names of Hitler and Goebbels; it descended to quoting from 'Mein Kampf,' and to reckless charges of 'fraud' and 'falsehood.'

"Let me make one thing entirely clear. I shall not join my opponent in his descent to mud slinging. If he continues in his desire to do so, he will be all alone.

Leaves Tactics to Opponents.

"I shall not use the tactics of our enemies by quoting from 'Mein Kampf.' I will never divide America. Those tactics I will also leave to my opponent.

"I shall never make a speech to one group of American people inciting them to hatred and distrust of any other group. In other nations the product of such discord has been communism or fascism. We must never reap that harvest in America.

"The winning of this war and the achievement of a people's peace are too sacred to be cast off with frivolous language. I believe that Americans whose loved ones are dying on the battlefronts of the world—men and women who are praying daily for the return of their boys—want the issues which vitally affect our future discussed with the utmost earnestness. This I shall continue to do with full consciousness of the solemn obligation placed upon me by my nomination for President of the United States.

"He Asked for It; Here It Is."

"My opponent, however, has chosen to wage his campaign on the record of the past, and has indulged in charges of fraud and falsehood. I am compelled, therefore, to divert, this evening, long enough to keep the record straight. He has made the charges. He has asked for it. Here it is:

"My opponent describes as a 'fantastic charge' the statement that his administration plans to keep men in the army when the war is over because it fears there will be no jobs for them in civil life. Well, who first brought that up?

"Here is the statement by a high official of the administration as reported in the publication of the United States army, the Stars and Stripes. He said:

"'We can keep people in the army about as cheaply as we could create an agency for them when they are out.'

"Speedy Discharges" Lacking.

"Now, who said that? It was the national director of selective service appointed by Mr. Roosevelt and still in office.

"But, says Mr. Roosevelt, the war department thereafter issued a plan for what he called 'speedy dis-

Texans File Anti-F. D. R. Slate

Austin, Tex., Sept. 25 (AP).—Texas anti-Roosevelt Democrats, officially listing themselves as "Texas Regulars," today filed with Secretary of State Sidney Latham a slate of Presidential elector nominees for the general election ballot. Latham accepted the certification of the new party.

Former State Sen. Roy Sanderford of Belton, permanent chairman of the May 23 convention, which named the electors who were ultimately denied a place on the ballot by a Supreme court decision, filed the new slate.

Court Backs F. D. R. List.

The court previously had ruled that only the September convention's electors, pledged to Roosevelt and Truman, should be certified for printing on the ballot in the Democratic column.

Sanderford and Hamilton Rogers of Fort Worth presented the certificate of nomination to Latham as chairman and secretary respectively of the new party.

"The cardinal purpose of this party is to restore constitutional government to the United States and elect a Democrat as the next President," Sanderford said at a press conference.

Hillman Assailed.

"We do not propose to be deterred by a flimsy Supreme court decision that would either destroy the Democratic party or surrender it to the satellites of Hillman and Browder, et al."

Sanderford said state headquarters would be set up in Austin and a campaign organization would be carried to every precinct in the state.

charges.' You can read that plan from now until doomsday and you cannot find one word about 'speedy discharges. It is, in fact, a statement of the priority in which men will be discharged after the war.

"It does not say whether they are to be retained in service a month or years after victory. That will be up to the next administration. The present administration, with its record of peace time failure, is afraid to bring men home after victory. That's why it's time for a change.

Jokes About Depressions.

"Now why does my opponent first describe what is a matter of record as a 'fantastic charge' and then try to laugh off the problems of jobs after the war? He jokes about depressions—about the seven straight years of unemployment of his administration. But he cannot laugh away the record.

"In March, 1940, Mr. Roosevelt had been in office seven years. Yet the depression was still with us. We still had 10 million Americans unemployed. These are not my figures—these are the figures of the American Federation of Labor.

"Is that fraud or falsehood? If so, let Mr. Roosevelt tell it to the American Federation of Labor.

"By waging relentless warfare against our jobmaking machinery my opponent succeeded in keeping a depression going 11 long years—twice as long as any depression in a century. And the somber, tragic thing is that today he still has no better or different program to offer. That is why the New Deal is afraid of peace and resorts to wisecracks and villification—when our people want victory followed by lasting peace in the world—and jobs and opportunity at home. That's why it's time for a change.

Brought Up by F. D. R.

"Now, I had not intended in this campaign to rake over my opponent's sad record of failing to prepare the defenses of this country for war. It's all in the past—a very tragic past. It has cost countless American lives; it has caused untold misery.

"But Mr. Roosevelt has now brought the subject up. He seized violently upon the statement that we were not prepared for war when it came. He calls that a 'falsification' which not 'even Goebbels would' have invented.

"Now, were we prepared for war or were we not? It is a simple question of fact.

"In 1940, the year after the war began in Europe, the United States was in such a tragic condition that it could put into the field as a mobile force no more than 75,000 men. The army was only '25 per cent ready.' Now, Mr. Roosevelt, did those statements come from Goebbels? Was that fraud or falsification? Those are the words of Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff of the United States army, under oath.

Quotes Arnold on Planes.

"I quote again: 'December 7, 1941, found the army air forces equipped with plans but not with planes.' Did that come from Goebbels? That statement was made in an official report on Jan. 4 of this year by Gen. H. H. Arnold, commanding general of the army air forces.

"Does my opponent still desire to use the words 'falsification' and 'Goebbels'? Does he still claim we were prepared? If so, let's go further.

"Four months before Pearl Harbor there was a debate in the United States senate. The chairman of a senate committee described on the floor of the senate the shocking state of our defense program.

"Sen. Vandenberg asked the chairman where the blame should be laid, and the chairman replied, 'There is only one place where the responsibility can be put.'

Truman Quoted on Blame.

"Then Sen. Vandenberg said, 'Where is that—the White House?' And the chairman of the committee replied, 'Yes, sir.' Who was the chairman of that committee? It was Harry S. Truman, the New Deal candidate for Vice President of the United States, Mr. Roosevelt's hand picked running mate.

"Again, in a magazine article in November, 1942, this statement appeared: 'The reasons for the waste and confusion, the committee found were everywhere the same: The lack of courageous, unified leadership and centralized direction at the top.' Again, on the floor of the senate in May, 1943, these words were uttered: 'After Pearl Harbor we found ourselves woefully unprepared for war.' Was that Dr. Goebbels on the floor of the senate? The very words my opponent called a falsification came from the mouth of his running mate, Harry S. Truman.

"Listen to these words: 'When the treachery of Pearl Harbor came we were not ready.' Mr. Roosevelt, were those words from Dr. Goebbels? The man who said that was Alben Barkley, your majority leader of the United States senate. And where do you suppose he said it? Right in his speech nominating you for a fourth term.

Roosevelt's Own Words.

"Now, why is it, we were not ready when we were attacked? Let's look at Mr. Roosevelt's own words. In a message to congress in 1935, he said: 'There is no ground for apprehension that our relations with any nation will be otherwise than peaceful.'

"In 1937 he said, 'How happy we are that the circumstances of the moment permit us to put our money into bridges and boulevards . . . rather than into huge standing armies and vast implements of war.'

"But war came just two years later. It was in January of 1940, that I publically called for a two ocean navy for the defense of America. It was that statement of mine which Mr. Roosevelt called, and I quote his words: 'Just plain dumb.' Then as now, we got ridicule instead of action.

Some "Jolly Comment."

"The war rose in fury. When Hitler's armies were at the gates of Paris, Mr. Roosevelt again soothed the American people with the jolly comment: 'There is no need for the country to be "discomboomerated".'

"The simple truth is, of course, that Mr. Roosevelt's record is desperately bad. It is not one on which any man should seek the confidence of the American people. That's why it's time for a change.

"My opponent now announces his desire to be President for 16 years. Yet in his speech of Saturday night, he called it a 'malicious falsehood' that he had ever represented himself to be 'indispensable.'

"Let us look at the closely supervised word of the hand picked candidate for Vice President. He said of my opponent: 'The very future of the peace and prosperity of the world depends upon his reelection in November.' I have not heard Mr. Truman repudiated by Mr. Roosevelt as yet. He waits to shed his Vice Presidents until they have served at least one term.

"Here are the words of Boss Kelly of the Chicago machine, the manager of that fake third term draft of 1940: 'The salvation of this nation rests in one man.' Was that statement ever repudiated by Mr. Roosevelt? No, it was rewarded by increased White House favors. So it was repeated again by the same man at the same time in the same place and for the same purpose this year: 'The salvation of this nation rests in one man.'

"Now was it a malicious falsehood that one of the first acts of Mr. Roosevelt's newly selected national chairman was to announce last May that he was for a fourth term and—that he was looking forward to a fifth term?

"Let's get this straight. The man who wants to be President for 16 years is indeed indispensable. He is indispensable to Harry Hopkins, to Madam Perkins, to Harold Ickes, to a host of other political jobholders.

"Indispensable to Machines."

"He is indispensable to America's leading enemy of civil liberties—the mayor of Jersey City. He is indispensable to those infamous machines, in Chicago—in the Bronx—and all the others. He is indispensable to Sidney Hillman and the political action committee, to Earl Browder, the ex-convict and pardoned Communist leader.

"Shall we, the American people, perpetuate one man in office for 16 years in order to accommodate this motley crew? Shall we expose our country to a return of the seven years of New Deal depression because my opponent is indispensable to the ill-assorted, power-hungry conglomeration of city bosses, Communists, and career burocrats which today compose the New Deal? Shall we submit to the counsel of despair that in all the great expanse of our nation there is only one man capable of occupying the White House?

"The American people will answer that question in November. They will see that we restore integrity to the White House so that its spoken word can be trusted once again.

Strength Known Now, He Says.

"On battle fields and at home, Americans have won the admiration of the world. Under the stress of war, we have thrown off the stupor of despair that seemed in the decade of the 1930s to have settled permanently upon the land.

"Today we know our strength and we know our ability. Shall we return to the philosophy that Mr. Roosevelt proclaimed when he said our industrial plant is built? Shall we go back to his seven straight years of unemployment? Shall we go back to the corroding misery of leaf-raking and the doles? Shall we continue an administration which invokes the language of our enemies and recklessly hurls charges of falsehood concerning things it knows to be the truth?

"I say the time has come to put a stop to everything that is summed up in that phrase 'The Indispensable Man.'

Plenty of Room for Freedom.

"If any man is indispensable, then none of us are free. But America has not lost its passionate belief in freedom. America has not lost its passionate belief in opportunity. It need never lose those beliefs. For here in this country of ours there is plenty of room for freedom and for opportunity and we need not sacrifice security to have both freedom and opportunity.

"To achieve these objectives we must have integrity in our government. We need a new high standard of honesty in the government of the United States. We need a singleness of purpose, a devotion to the people of this country and to the gigantic problems we face at home after this war.

"We need a whole souled devotion to the building of a people's peace that will last beyond the lives and friendship of any individuals. We need humility and courage. With the help of almighty God we shall achieve the spiritual and physical strength to preserve our freedom in the pursuit of happiness for all."

Shoots Robber

Dr. Manuel H. Turek points to hole in window of his office made by bullet from bandit's revolver as the two wrestled for gun.

A gunman who stooped to pick up a nickel after he had taken $300, a $400 ring, and a $100 watch from Dr. Manuel H. Turek, 41, in the physician's fourth floor office at 4010 Madison st., last night got a bullet wound in the stomach as a reward for his greediness.

Dr. Turek, a World War II veteran, dropped the nickel as he handed his wallet to the man who had entered, posing as a patient, after he showed the physician a revolver sticking in his belt. As the man stooped to pick up the coin Dr. Turek grabbed the revolver and fired.

The two struggled for the weapon and another bullet was fired thru a window before the revolver jammed. The gunman recovered the revolver and ran out. When Dr. Turek tried to follow he encountered in the reception room the wounded man's armed confederate, who blocked his way. The two eluded police.

The Compania Mexicana De Aviacion reported that the ship had been discovered on a highway between Puebla and Perote.

NEW DEAL HEARS THE ECHO: CLEAR IT WITH SIDNEY!

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 25.—"Clear everything with Sidney" is the anti-New Deal slogan that the Democratic leaders are striving desperately to deny and counteract.

It has become the symbol of the domination of the Democratic party by Russian born Sidney Hillman's Communist controled CIO and of the New Deal trend toward totalitarian government, the reaction against which has divided the Democrats and threatens Mr. Roosevelt with defeat.

"Clear everything with Sidney" the instruction Mr. Roosevelt is reputed to have given Democratic National Chairman Hannegan on the eve of the Chicago convention, has caused more Democratic havoc on the west coast than any other development in the campaign up to date. It was in vain that Hannegan denied that the President ever told him to clear anything with Hillman at the convention.

Cleared it for Truman.

The denial found little credence for two reasons. First, because it was generally known that precisely what Hannegan and the other Roosevelt agents at the Chicago convention did was to clear the choice of the Vice Presidential candidate with Sidney and the result that Hillman agreed to compromise on Sen. Truman for the President's running mate. Second, because no denial had been forthcoming from Mr. Roosevelt himself.

The Democratic managers are entertaining no illusions regarding the farm vote in the northwest. They are writing it off. They are prepared to see the farm constituencies on the west coast go Republican more heavily than since 1928, some estimating the farmers are at least 75 per cent for Dewey.

The farmers fear Mr. Roosevelt is taking the country to Moscow. The Democrats have been shocked to find that in areas where agriculture has profited conspicuously from subsidies distributed by the New Deal, the farmers are outspoken against a fourth term as an opening wedge to dictatorship.

With the farmers and business men preponderantly against the New Deal the Democratic managers are relying upon the labor vote to put Mr. Roosevelt across. But labor is split.

CIO in the Bag.

Earl Browder's Communists, Hillman's Communist dominated CIO, Dave Beck's teamsters, Harry Bridges' water front unions and other radical elements of labor are in the bag.

It is the conservative workers in the American Federation of Labor that the Democratic leaders on the west coast are worrying about. The ascendancy of Hillman's CIO in Democratic councils tended to alienate the AFL from the start.

Why it became necessary for Mr. Roosevelt to "clear everything with Sidney" is not fully understood.

Apparently the narrative goes back to the Teheran conference, if not further. At Teheran, Russian Dictator Stalin won a great diplomatic victory or at least he thought so.

Assent to Russian Plans.

He found in neither Mr. Roosevelt nor Prime Minister Churchill any obstacle to the Russian program to annex eastern Poland and the Baltic states.

At all events Stalin had no sooner returned to Moscow last December than Earl Browder promptly launched the project to dissolve the Communist party in this country and dedicate its membership to a fourth term for Mr. Roosevelt.

Shortly thereafter Hillman organized the CIO political action committee and set out to raise 3 million dollars for the fourth term.

By June Hillman, with his communist backing, overshadowed the Democratic scene. Hillman was bent on the renomination of Vice President Wallace and Hannegan and other Democratic leaders had surveyed the country and informed Mr. Roosevelt that the retention of Wallace on the ticket would be fatal to the fourth term. Mr. Roosevelt agreed to drop Wallace and picked "Assistant President" Jimmy Byrnes as his running mate.

CIO Vetoes Byrnes.

Hillman told Mr. Roosevelt that the CIO never would support Byrnes because he had maintained the "Little Steel" formula of wage ceilings.

Apparently Mr. Roosevelt learned that Hillman would be willing to compromise on either Truman or Supreme Court Justice Douglas if unable to put Wallace over. Thereupon, having cleared these matters with the potent Sidney, the President wrote Hannegan two letters—one giving the Wallace candidacy the kiss of death, the other mentioning Truman and Douglas as acceptable for second place.

Truman breakfasted with Hillman and brought back an O.K. by Hillman of the Truman candidacy. So everything had been cleared with Sidney.

COURTNEY SAYS GREEN SURPLUS IS 'PHONY,' CALLS FOR TAX CUT

East St. Louis, Ill., Sept. 25 (Special).—Thomas J. Courtney, Democratic candidate for governor, said in a speech here today that if elected governor he will recommend to the legislature that the state sales tax be cut in half and that automobile license fees be reduced.

He accused the administration of Gov. Green of maintaining the sales tax at an excessively high level the last three years in order to build up "a phony surplus at the taxpayers' expense."

The Democratic candidate said Green has increased taxes instead of reducing them and has "hit the people of Illinois a heavy jolt in the pocketbook every day for the last three years by overtaxation."

STYLES DELAYS EXPLANATION OF KLAN ACTIVITIES

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 25 (Special).—Appearing at a political rally for members of the 65th assembly district, Hal Styles, radio commentator and CIO-PAC backed Democratic nominee for congress in the 15th district, asserted again tonight that he was the victim of a "smear" campaign, but failed to explain his one time association with the Ku Klux Klan.

Arriving more than an hour after the meeting got under way, Styles stated that a full explanation of his "activities" would be given soon.

"I have all the aces up my sleeve," he said.

Meanwhile, Democratic political leaders declared tonight for the first time that they are conducting an investigation into Styles' activities as a Klan member. Styles admitted his membership in a radio talk several days ago after disclosures by newspaper investigators.

BEAT NEW DEAL TO ASSURE JOBS FOR VETS: GREEN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Galena, Ill., Sept. 25.—Gov. Green and Richard J. Lyons, Republican senatorial candidate, told downstate audiences today that elimination of the New Deal from public life is necessary to guarantee post-war jobs for soldiers.

Speaking in the home town of Gen. Ulysses S. Grant, Gov. Green, candidate for reelection, said "The defeatism and class consciousness of the New Deal burocrats" are a threat to plans, including those formulated by his state administration, to take care of returning war veterans.

Lyons said Harry Hopkins and other New Dealers are "easing out of the picture the patriotic business men whose ability and genius are responsible for the success of the production of war materials."

He said there were indications the New Deal, should it be retained in power, would "hand over complete direction of post-war reconversion to the same type of theorists who failed to solve the unemployment problem for 10 years and whose only formula is the futile squandering of public funds.

3 STATE CANDIDATES SPEAK BEFORE G. O. P. LAKE COUNTY RALLY

A Republican political caravan composed of Lt. Gov. Cross, Atty. Gen. Barrett, and State Auditor Lueder, all candidates for reelection, shared the speaker's platform in the Circuit courtroom of the Lake county courthouse in Waukegan last night, after previous appearances in Sycamore and Woodstock earlier in the day. During the rally, the crowd heard Gov. Dewey's speech from Oklahoma City by radio.

Barrett, who praised Dewey's speech, promised his audience a Republican victory this fall. Citing appearances in 50 Illinois counties, he said, "There is a complete absence of New Deal Democrats in the state. This is a Republican year."

Cross, who recalled that Republicans found a bare treasury when they took office with Gov. Green, said that, despite a cut in the sales tax from 3 to 2 cents, "we now have 107 million dollars surplus."

Lueder urged voters to "remove the corrupt political czars, ex-convicts, Communists, and racketeers from the White House lawn and replace them with men who believe in America, its people, its traditions, and its future."

Young Price, who said he took the revolver from his father's florist shop at 1313 Randolph st., explained the weapon was discharged accidentally. The Strand boy was wounded in the arm.

Roosevelt's Health 'Good, Very Good,' Says Doctor

MARAUDERS HIT WITH EACH SHOT AND JAPS FLEE

Close to Victory, Enemy Heads for Jungle.

Merrill's Marauders, the heroes of Walawbum, move on to new conquests behind the Jap lines in Burma. This thrilling, first account of their lightning exploits is told by a Chicagoan who marched with them from Ledo to Myitkyina.

BY S/SGT. WM. J. ANDERSON.
Composite Unit 5307 [Merrill's Marauders]
United States Army.

[Copyright: 1944: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Running out of ammunition! The news spread up and down our lines. From our positions high on the east bank of the Nambyu river it looked as if the entire Jap army was charging toward us out of the jungle. At the same instant we were warned that other Japs had crossed over to the south and were beginning to attack our right flank. That was why the grenades had been gathered and sent down.

Lt. Gen. Stilwell's men were pushing in from the north, but we had no way of knowing how soon they might reach us. And the wild eyed Japs continued to pour out of the jungle. Officers who had been gathering a small surplus of ammunition here and there issued it to all equally. We were taking dead aim now, making each shot tell against the Japs closest to the river crossing and praying that our fire sounded as strong as before.

Battle Comes to End.

The Japs never knew how close they were to victory. As the blood red sun dropped out of sight they unaccountably ceased firing. In the silence that followed, Henry Gosho —our American born Jap interpreter —was the only one not too surprised to speak. In the early dusk his high pitched, sing song voice rang out across the river in a scorching tirade against Hirohito and Tojo. Some of the Japs screamed back, then they plunged into the jungle. The battle of Walawbum was over.

Before the dusk deepened into darkness, a dank chilling fog rolled up from the river and covered the bloody field beyond. Behind it we could hear the Japs carrying their crying and neglected wounded into the jungle. Patrols reported that small Jap units were prowling our trail, but we couldn't do anything about them at the moment. We continued to be nervous. It's no fun to sit in the darkness out of ammunition with Japs on the loose all around you.

We sweated it out for three or four hours. We again delved into our delectable K rations, but this was the only diversion. Then, long after dark, things began to happen. A long pack train, loaded with ammunition for all weapons, came slogging into camp. Sgt. Jimmy Ballard of Spokane, Wash., having been unable to raise any other of our units by radio, had walked back four or five miles, dodging Jap snipers, and had delivered our message asking more cartridges and mortar shells.

Chinese Forces Take Over.

Ballard and his mules had no sooner arrived than we received a welcome message—to pull out and let the Chinese take over. We had hardly started before we began meeting the Chinese. We had heard nothing of their approach, Stilwell's breakthru either had been too far north for us to hear or had taken place during the noise of one of our battles. The Chinese were more jubilant over our success than we were.

The official report of the Walawbum battle gave us credit for killing more than 800 Japs on that field across the Nambyu. The large number of wounded carried off after dark was not estimated. We suffered a total of three casualties. And the enemy had cleared out of Walawbum, heading for the south. The way was clear for another link in the Ledo road. It was now we began using our new name, "Merrill's Marauders."

Who coined the name I don't know. We saw it first in the magazine Yank, the army weekly, and a paper called the C. B. I. [China-Burma-India] Roundup. Sgt. Dave Richardson of the Yank staff was under fire with us at Walawbum and many other places.

A Reminder of Enemy.

As we walked back toward the rest area we had one last, forceful reminder of the Walawbum Japs. Five of us were moving along in a group, single file. A kid named Hoffman was in the lead with a walkie-talkie on his back and Sgt. Judd Clark was next. An unidentified soldier followed him, then came Lt. Ted Hughes and I. I was leading a horse.

With a blast like a thunderclap a sheet of orange flame shot up from the trail. Hoffman had stepped directly upon a land mine. He was hurled 10 feet into the air, radio and all, but not a fragment touched him. Clark was wounded severely above the knees and the man behind him caught a heavy charge of frags in the abdomen. Other pieces hit Lt. Hughes, but did not wound him. I was untouched.

The seriously wounded man, now semi-conscious, was put on the horse. We walked alongside, steadying him. Clark, bleeding profusely, had to make it afoot. We didn't dare show a light to look at his wounds. He was evacuated next day in a Taylor Cub. We told him to keep the beer cold for the rest of us.

Planes Drop Supplies.

We rested several days near our rice paddy air strip and caught up on sleep. There was a welcome temporary change from K rations, the TCC planes dropping us 10 in 1 supplies, one unit of which feeds five men two days. The food comes in gallon tins and there are several extras, including canned butter, jam, and a breakfast cereal already impregnated with sugar and dehydrated milk. When water is added it creams up, ready to eat.

Our rest ended March 9, when we were told we were to go on another mission similar to that at Walawbum. Our A battalion crossed the Ledo rd. and started down the west side while we swung out to the east, calculating to cut in behind the Jap lines again about 75 miles to the south and effect a junction with A battalion. We then would block the road again and repeat the Walawbum show while Stilwell's Chinese pushed in from the north.

On A Little Known Trail.

Walking was easy the first three days; then we took to the Chindwin hills. Our Kachin guides led us on a trail they said was not known to the Japs. From the look of it, I wondered it was known to any one. It led tortuously thru a wilderness of bamboo and teak woods. After an eternity of this, we headed back to the west and presently came abreast the road again. The situation almost duplicated the Walawbum layout. Between us and the highway ran a sluggish, shallow stream called the Inkangahtawng river.

The difference in troop disposition was that somewhere beyond the stream and road our A battalion, now accompanied by a Chinese regiment, was heading toward us from the Shaduzup-Kamaing highway.

One company—half of our C battalion—was left to patrol near the hill village of Nhpum Ga while the remainder of us in C went on with B battalion to the Inkangahtawng. We stayed on the east bank and B crossed over toward the road. No sooner were they over than we began hearing small arms fire as their patrols ran into Japs. This was late afternoon.

The enemy force was larger than we had expected. By dusk a brisk battle was in progress ahead of us. When it ceased, B battalion dug in for the night and we lay across the 100 foot river, covering them from vantage points.

LABOR LEADER DENOUNCES PAC AS UNION GUIDE

Robert J. Watt.

Any one who tries to make a labor union into an adjunct of a political party may destroy the labor union if he succeeds, or jeopardize both if he fails, Robert J. Watt, international representative of the American Federation of Labor, writes in the current issue of the American Federationist, official organ of the organization.

Watt, also labor's representative to the International Labor Order, censures labor leaders who seek to become political bosses after being elected or appointed only to represent the union members for collective bargaining.

A poll of the CIO political action committee heads such as Sidney Hillman, head of the PAC and president of the CIO Amalgamated Clothing Workers union, Watt writes, would indicate that many of them were extreme isolationists until about the end of June, 1941 [when Russia entered the war]; then they became sudden and loud interventionists.

"Labor union members, with the exception of the fringe," Watt states, "don't want to run the government and they don't want the government to run their unions."

LT. SCHWARTZ TO QUIT POLICE FORCE OCT. 10

Lt. David Schwartz.

Police Lt. David Schwartz, 59, of the Rogers Park station, submitted his resignation because of ill health to Police Commissioner Allman yesterday, to be effective Oct. 10.

Schwartz, who lives at 5507 N. Sawyer av., said his doctor ordered his retirement. He has been a policeman since 1906. He was promoted to lieutenant on Oct. 28, 1921, and served as temporary captain from July 6 to Dec. 21 in 1928.

He won The Tribune police hero award in December, 1920, by shooting one of two men who attempted to hold him up on Christmas night, and capturing the other. Both men were wanted for questioning in several north side robberies. He also earned 12 creditable mentions and two extra compensations during his career. He was born in Austria on March 17, 1885.

JEWS FROM NAZI ARMY RUSH FOR RELIGIOUS BOOKS

Fort Custer, Mich., Sept. 25 (AP).—A Jewish army chaplain told how Jewish members of Hitler's army—newly arrived at the Fort Custer prisoner of war camp from Normandy—exercised their newly found freedom by requesting Jewish prayer books and Jewish scriptures even before putting aside their German army uniforms for captive garb.

Chaplain Martin M. Perley said he was flabbergasted when the prison camp director asked him to visit a group of Jewish captives who had just arrived from the battle fields of Normandy.

"Jews in the Nazi army?" he exclaimed. "It sounded incredible. I found the men in a separate compound. There were about 20 in the group and they were still clad in the uniform of the German army.

"Most of them, I found, were half-Jews, and only one of them was a full Jew.

LOSE MILLIONS OF SHELLS OVER A LITTLE LABOR

It's Hard to Learn Why 1 Man Tied Up 2,500.

BY GEORGE HARTMANN.

Millions of rounds of ammunition for small and large caliber guns, plus millions of component parts for other war material, have been lost because of the strike of 2,500 workers in two plants of the Revere Copper and Brass company, which entered its fifth day today.

Had the strike not been called the plants at 2200 N. Natchez av. and 6630 Fullerton av. would have produced large quantities of 105 mm. howitzer cartridge cases, 20 mm., 40 mm., 105 mm., 3 inch, and 5 inch army and navy shell cases; brass forgings for time fuses; brass and aluminum forgings for aircraft fittings; brass forgings and drawn parts for depth charges, and metal stampings for anti-tank mines for the chemical warfare and the quartermaster departments.

Strike Follows One Dismissal.

When the strike began last Thursday night, officials of the United Automobile Workers' union of the American Federation of Labor, blamed the walkout on the company. They said the company sent home a metal pourer "who wanted to pour wide molds instead of narrow molds, because pouring the wider molds was easier work from the slow furnace located in an ill-ventilated room, where the dismissed pourer was working."

The metal pourer who refused to operate his furnace with narrow molds, and whose action caused the strike is Charles Moser, 29, of 5139 Foster av., who has been employed by the company for six years—the last two as a metal pourer.

Reporter Visits Plant.

Yesterday a Tribune reporter spent several hours in the castings department where Moser was employed in an effort to learn whether the walkout which completely paralyzed the company's war production could be justified. He learned:

1. That there is apparently very little difference in manual labor expended by a pourer in filling a wide mold with molten brass, as compared with a narrow mold, because the furnaces are electrically heated and operate automatically.

2. That the furnace which Moser was operating is not in a separate room, but is one of six furnaces in the same room, arranged in banks of three opposite each other.

3. That during the last year, three huge blowers and an air vent have been installed to carry off excess gases. According to company officials this made the air around Moser's furnace "freer from gas" than that around the five other furnaces.

Operates Furnace in Turn.

4. That Moser only operates this furnace once every six weeks, the five other operators alternating with him for one week each.

5. That Moser knew 48 hours in advance of 7 p. m. last Thursday, when he refused to accept the narrow molds, that he was scheduled to receive these molds.

6. That the operators of four other furnaces were already pouring the narrow molds.

7. That the management has said it is willing to deal with Moser's complaint immediately under the grievance procedure outlined in the AFL union's contract, if the strikers first return to work in the plants.

8. That the pouring of the narrow molds produces less gas fumes than the pouring of the wide molds.

Operated by Levers.

The molds, which are at the fronts of the furnaces, are filled when the metal pourer operates a system of push buttons and levers. The furances move sideways on a track to the mold. Then the furnace is automatically lifted and dipped, causing the molten metal to run into the molds.

The only difference between the 11 inch mold which Moser refused to fill with molten brass and the 14½ inch mold which he wanted to fill is in the weight and size of the mold and not in the manual labor involved.

The casting produced in the wide mold weighs 480 pounds. That in the 11 inch mold weighs 420 pounds. The dimensions of the wide casting are 14⅝ inches wide, 2 inches thick, and 55 inches long. The narrower casting is 11 inches wide, 2 inches thick, and 64 inches long.

CHURCHILL BACK TO FACE CRITICS IN PARLIAMENT

LONDON, Sept. 25 (AP).—Prime Minister Churchill and Mrs. Churchill have arrived in England from the Quebec conference with President Roosevelt.

The journey both to America and back was made on the liner Queen Mary.

Parliament reconvenes tomorrow after a seven weeks' holiday to wind up one session, and start another that probably will be its last and stormiest.

The prime minister is expected to make a comprehensive report within a few days. Numerous members of parliament have given notice they intend to ask many questions, indicating that the gloves will be off and the political strife will be sharp as the mounting military victory lessens support for the coalition leadership.

FOREMAN TURNS UP AGAIN; 650 STAGE 2D STRIKE

Six hundred fifty employes of the Western Felt Works, 4029 Ogden av., struck again yesterday in a dispute precipitated by the employment of Joseph Pittner, a foreman who was accused of invading a women's locker room and using improper language in admonishing them for idleness.

The workers, who are affiliated with the CIO Textile Workers union, local 190, first struck Aug. 30. When Pittner appeared in the factory yesterday word spread that he had been "rehired." Officers of the union immediately led a walkout.

Company officials said Pittner, absent for the last two weeks, had been "on a vacation" and never had been discharged. They asserted the foreman was the victim of a union "frameup" to bring about his dismissal.

CIO UNION BOSS BANS MEETINGS TO BALK REVOLT

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 25 [Special].—Fear of a "home rule" insurrection in the 22,000 member local of the CIO Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilders was indicated today when Walter S. Pollard, administrator of the local, banned union meetings during his absence at the union's national convention.

RWLB FORBIDS PARLEYS WITH TEA STRIKERS

The regional war labor board last night ordered the National Tea company not to deal with its striking store managers until they return to work, and again ordered the defiant employes to reopen the stores. Members of the board, after a stormy four hour session with union representatives, hinted Presidential action and cancellation of draft deferments will be asked if the strikers refuse to comply with two days.

Representatives of the managers said 450 of the 501 stores in the Chicago area are affected by the walkout, but company officials said about 200 are involved.

Earlier in the day company officials estimated $500,000 worth of meat, cheese, butter, and fresh produce spoiled because of the strike.

Olander's Efforts Balked.

The day's developments halted efforts of Victor A. Olander, secretary-treasurer of the Illinois Federation of Labor, to end the walkout. More than 200 members of the managers' group, local 1555, of the Retail Clerks' International Protective association [AFL], including a steering committee of 25, met in the Midland hotel to reaffirm their intention to continue the strike until contract demands are met.

S. G. Lippmann, union attorney, and A. G. Swanson, chairman of the steering committee, met with the full labor board at an afternoon hearing called by Edgar L. Warren, chairman, to show cause why the walkout should not end at once.

Meeting Delayed Two Hours.

The meeting, called for 2 o'clock, was delayed for two hours at Olander's request to give him time to persuade the strikers to return. The union representatives said they would refuse to ask the men to return to work before a contract had been agreed upon.

Philip Marshal, vice chairman of the board, asked Lippman and Swanson if they believed labor's no-strike pledge was binding on the managers. Both refused to answer. Marshal then disclosed that many members of the union, including several members of the steering committee that ordered the strike, had been given draft deferments, at their own requests, because the retail food business has been classified by the war man power commission as essential.

Lipmann later denied that any of the steering committee had received draft deferments because of their jobs.

Union Charge Denied.

Lippmann said the company had refused to negotiate with the union, but L. W. Calkins, the firm's labor relations director, read telegrams to show the company had met the men's conference demands and was willing to arbitrate the differences, which hinge on demands for a closed shop.

After heated exchanges among Lippman, Marshal, and other board members, Dr. John Larkin, presiding, ordered every one but members from the room. Twenty minutes later he announced the board had voted to direct the company not to continue negotiations. Labor members dissented, he said.

Warren later said the President might order the army or any government agency to take over and operate the stores.

Like other popular cigarette brands, Rameses is subject to wartime tobacco restrictions. The amount of Rameses you can buy may be limited or your dealer may be temporarily out of Rameses.

But you can always be sure of getting your full quota of tobacco quality in the Rameses you do buy. No inferior or under-aged tobaccos ever go into Rameses' Exclusive Balanced Blend—only fully aged types of the world's most popular cigarette tobaccos are used.

Keep this in mind also—the Rameses blend calls for certain exact proportions of these fine tobaccos—just the right amount of selected home-grown tobaccos blended with correct proportions of choice, costly tobaccos imported from Greece and Turkey.

GOTHIC LINE'S DEBRIS TELLS OF YANKEE MIGHT

Tribune Writer Visits Futa Pass.

BY CLAY GOWRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 5TH ARMY IN THE GOTHIC LINE, Italy, Sept. 24.—[Delayed.]—Futa pass, strong point of the Gothic line which the Yanks have reduced to wreckage, was quiet today under a cold rain that presages the nearing of winter. American infantrymen sat eating iron rations along the pass road, which only two days ago was being pounded by German artillery.

Futa Pass hotel, which not many hours ago was headquarters of German units, now is crowded with bewhiskered Americans. Not much was left of the hotel after both American and German artillery had worked it over, but the holders are grateful for any place where they can get their feet out of the mud.

Germans Well Entrenched.

When we correspondents moved north toward the pass, Capt. John Hofmann, Dixon, Ill., pointed out the main elements of the line that the Germans had relied upon to stop the 5th army. First was barbed wire, then came a wide and deep log-sided ditch paralleling east and west ridges half a mile to the north. The ditch was designed to trap tanks.

On the ridges of the watershed itself were what was left of the heavy defenses of the Gothic line. One fortification was an innocent looking stone building. From the air it would appear as another farm house, which it had been until the Germans came. But now its walls are reinforced inside with five feet of concrete, it has a six foot thick roof, and a German 88 mm. gun barrel protrudes thru a window.

Higher on the same ridge was a round hole leading into the ground. Inside, a flight of concrete steps led 30 feet underground to a 15 foot square room. Straw and bedding littered the floor and a table was covered with canned foods and moldy bread. This had been a German artillery observation post.

This Was a Tough One.

Hofmann said one concrete machinegun pillbox in the pass had been so strong that it withstood 52 hits from 240 mm. guns. The shells just glanced off, but the 53d penetrated and exploded inside.

Infantry men resting after the assault on the pass road said they had silenced many German machine gun positions by using phosphorous filled hand grenades. A sergeant told how he and his squad drove 14 Germans from a log reënforced dugout with a grenade.

"We tried to talk them into coming out but they continued firing, and so we tossed a phosphorus grenade thru the entrance," he said. "It exploded and burned with terrific heat. The 14 Jerries staggered out, their clothing blazing and every one gravely burned."

A tiny church on a lane leading from the main highway was the scene of a strange spectacle when we reached it. One hundred American soldiers were attending services conducted by a bespectacled young army chaplain. The basement had been converted into a prisoner of war pen and 20 Germans sat on the floor listening morosely as hymns were sung in the room above.

Forty Minute War All Over.

A German sergeant from a paratroop division now fighting as infantry talked readily to his guards. He said he had been in the army four years and seen service in Belgium, Greece, and Africa. Asked why the Germans continued fighting now that their defeat is inevitable, he said he believed it was because of ingrained obedience to orders and fear of the Russians.

A prisoner taken today turned out to be 17 years old. He said he was sent into the line for the first time at 6 a. m. today and 10 minutes later American artillery opened up on his position, shelling it for 30 minutes. He peered out of his trench as the firing stopped and found himself looking into a rifle held by an American soldier.

Could Germany still win the war? He said he just didn't give a darn—those 30 minutes were all the war he wanted.

Caribbean Hurricane Is Abating in Mexico

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 25 (AP).—A hurricane from the Caribbean sea that carried flood and wind damage to most of the southern Mexico is abating, the national observatory reported today. The hurricane, which crossed the country from the Gulf to the Pacific, "probably will degenerate into isolated squalls on the coasts of Michoacan and Sinaloa," the bureau said.

5TH ARMY FIGHTS FOR NAZI ESCAPE ROUTE IN ITALY

Advance in Futa Pass Area Near Bologna.

ROME, Sept. 25 (AP).—American 5th army troops, smashing beyond the core of the enemy's Gothic line, were fighting forward tonight less than 12 miles from the Bologna-Rimini highway, main escape route for German forces still battling northwest of the Adriatic port of Rimini.

The thrust toward this road—the Via Emilia of the Romans—was made northeast of Firenzuola. Farther west Yank troops continued to advance in the Futa pass area and reached points roughly 15 miles from the big industrial city of Bologna.

[An Associated Press dispatch from the Swiss-Italian frontier reported American forces were within 12½ miles of Bologna.]

1,500 Yards from Rubicon.

In the Adriatic sector 8th army troops penetrated 2,000 yards beyond the Rimini-Bologna railway north of Santa Giustina and to within 1,500 yards of the historic Rubicon river, where they were checked temporarily by fierce Nazi resistance.

Enemy parachute troops, infantry, and armored forces were fighting to hold a line across the entrance to the wide and fertile Po valley, home of almost half Italy's population.

The American 5th army's quick and spectacular breakthru near the center of the Gothic defenses was praised in a statement from Lt. Gen. Clark's headquarters saying that "in nine days the 5th army has destroyed the line which it took the Germans nine months to build." Doughboys driving northeast from Firenzuola seized four heights, Monte la Fine, Della Croce, Monte Cucca, and Porarra, thus clearing an access to the Po valley.

Hills Firmly Held By Yanks.

The main American forces were well across the Santerno river and firmly held the Coroncina hills around Futa pass, where the Nazis concentrated some of their most formidable defenses before Bologna.

West and south of the Futa area 5th army troops cut the Pratovernio-Castiglione highway, an important communications route thru the Apennines. On the west coast Brazilian troops were reported engaging the enemy and making a small advance, suffering few casualties.

GUNFIRE HINTS RED NAVY BLOW IN BALTIC SEA

HELSINKI, Finland, Sept. 25 (AP).—Heavy gunfire echoed in Helsinki today, indicating that the Russian fleet had moved in strength into the heretofore German controled Baltic sea for the first time in more than three years. Red naval forces were said to be trying to smash Nazi attempts to evacuate troops from Estonia and Latvia and possibly had engaged one or two German heavy cruisers reported covering the withdrawal.

Finnish troops in the wilderness stretching across central Finland were reported skirmishing with retreating units of the Nazis' Lapland army.

The Finnish high command said its troops had occupied Haukipudas village, seven miles north of Oulu on the Bothnian gulf, and Puolanka, central Finland. Suomussalmi was captured yesterday. The Nazis, military sources said, apparently were pulling back to the north in the general direction of Rovaniemi.

British Postal Bank Uses Lend-Lease Machines

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 25.—The British postoffice savings bank is using 320 American office machines received under a lend-lease agreement from the United States, it was announced tonight.

SUNNY CHICAGO LURES YANKS IN MUD OF FRANCE

WITH U. S. 3d ARMY, Sept. 25 (AP).—A column of infantrymen weighted down by rain-sodden packs today was slogging the last two miles to a replacement center.

"I'd heard about French mud from my uncles John and Joe who were over here in the last war," said Lt. Edwin Parliman of Sioux Falls, S. D., "It's sure lived up to expectations."

Some Chicagoans told a correspondent they wished to send word back home to rush over a couple of those beautiful days in Chicago that they talk about on the radio every Saturday. They included Lt. Arthur G. Corry, 6456 South Shore dr., Lt. Edward Baracree, 6340 S. Honore st., and Pvt. Harold Rimak of Cicero.

FLY 5,000 TONS OF SUPPLIES TO PATRIOT FORCES

ROME, Italy, Sept. 25 (AP).—The allied air command disclosed today that since the summer of 1942 more than 5,000 tons of guns, ammunition and other supplies had been flown to Yugoslavia's Partisans and to patriot forces in other central and southern European countries.

Simultaneously, reports from Cairo, Egypt, said chaos was spreading among the Germans in southern Greece, Albania and Yugoslavia. Air blows, coupled with Partisan activities, have disrupted enemy communications thruout the Balkans.

[A dispatch from Bari, Italy, said reports received there indicated the Germans forces in Macedonia and Greece were fleeing toward the Adriatic coast, with Albanian partisans battling them in the mountains.]

Secret Landing Fields.

The air command report said secret landing fields had been laid out in Yugoslavia, Greece, Albania and other countries, and that the number of such airports "would astonish the Germans."

The job of running guns and supplies has been in charge of the royal air force, with a large number of American transport pilots participating. Supplies ranged from anti-tank guns and vehicles to needles and thread, from mules to paper clips.

Some Chutists Die in Cold.

"In the winter of 1942-43," the report related, "contact men were dropped in Greece. Some of these brave men, having run out of supplies, perished thru exposure in the mountains. In the spring of 1943, there began the real buildup of gun-running by a squadron of Halifaxes working from the desert. The Germans, becoming aware of what was happening, sent up Stukas [dive bombers] when the supply aircraft were about. When the recognition lights came from the ground and parachutes floated down, bombs fell as well.

"But the R. A. F. soon evolved counter-measures, and now a steady flow of arms, equipment and food goes in every night."

Once an urgent call for 30,000 pairs of shoes for Marshal Tito's men was met, despite the fact that the Yugoslavs had big feet and no size under No. 9 could be sent.

Report Strike in Athens.

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Sept. 25 (AP).—A Greek arriving here today said a general strike started Saturday in Athens and the Germans had threatened to shoot 50 hostages if it continued.

ALLIES ARE ASKED TO HELP REBUILD STRICKEN LANDS

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 25 (AP).—The policy committee of the united nations relief and rehabilitation administration today suggested that the nations consider the problem of continued rehabilitation of war torn lands with the restoration of their industries to full production.

The administration has the limited purpose of immediate assistance after the war. The policy committee resolution said that, beyond such assistance, provision must be made for further reconstruction, particularly in the fields of industrial production and inland transport.

The resolution, by the Czechoslovak delegate, calls the attention of member governments to this problem and notes that UNRRA activities will be insufficient.

GERMANS SEIZE END OF BRIDGE FROM BRITISH

Four Divisions Hit Sky Troops at Arnhem.

Belgian city in German hands, after patrols entered and found the enemy had fled. Turnhout is 22 miles west and slightly south of Eindhoven.

The Canadians were forced to cede one bridgehead across the canal in the face of fierce enemy fire, but they promptly drove another across at St. Leonard, 11 miles west of Turnhout. The capture of Turnhout does not necessarily give the British another crossing there since the canal runs north of the city.

[The Berlin radio said more allied parachute troops had been dropped at 'S Hertogenbosch, 18 miles northeast of Eindhoven and eight miles from the Waal Rhine, and were being attacked.]

Big Guns on 1st Army Front.

Inconclusive fighting still raged inside Germany on the 1st army front, but the Americans unlimbered 240-MM [10 inch] guns and were blasting at targets on the approaches to the German industrial city of Cologne on the Rhine.

A front dispatch said the targets were only 18 miles from the Rhine, the big shells landing on positions east of the German city of Duren, which is 20 miles from Cologne and 18 miles east of the fortified city of Aachen.

A Nazi counter-attack east of Aachen was broken up, and the allied war bulletin said a strongpoint in the Rotgen area, nine miles southeast of Aachen, was wiped out. Limited allied gains were made against determined resistance.

The Germans still were hurling repeated counter-attacks against a menacing salient driven to within 27 miles of the border of the Saar industrial basin, losing 21 more of their tanks in a slugging match near Chateau Salins and Dieuze, 25 and 35 miles southeast of Metz.

Americans Capture Epinal.

The enemy was giving way slowly in the Nancy area to the south, and German civilians were digging trenches behind the lines on French soil before the Rhine.

The Americans captured Epinal, a communications center 40 miles southeast of Nancy and about the same distance from the Belfort gap leading to the Rhine.

French forces of the United States 7th army slashed forward five miles north of Baccarat, which is 29 miles southeast of Nancy and 45 miles from the French city of Strasbourg on the Rhine. The Germans also were thrown out of Leyr, eight miles northeast of Nancy.

On the seaward flank, Canadian infantry, bolstered by flame throwing Churchill tanks and the tanks with flails that explode land mines, began storming the southwestern defenses of the long beleaguered French channel port of Calais.

Late yesterday a large force of fighters heavily attacked German positions in the Arnhem area in support of the British air borne division there.

Block Retreating Nazis.

WITH THE 7TH ARMY IN FRANCE, Sept. 25 (AP).—German SS [elite] troops have sealed the Franco-German frontier prohibiting further Nazi units on this side of the border from retreating into Germany, according to information gleaned from prisoners captured in the central sector of the front today.

All along the line resistance stiffened as the Germans were able to bring up more and more artillery over their short supply routes. Visibility was cut to less than 50 yards across the entire breadth of the Vosges front by fogs which rolled in on top of the driving rain and bounced clear to the ground.

The enemy's resistance had now assumed a definite line, with dug-in emplacements resembling the type of warfare which characterized most of the fighting in Italy for many months.

GERMANS TRAIN, FIGHT AND QUIT, ALL IN 3 DAYS

BY JOHN THOMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH U. S. 1ST ARMY IN GERMANY, Sept. 25.—Hitler's tremendous man power shortage and disorganization caused by Lt. Gen. Hodges' swift advance across France and Belgium and thru the Siegfried line are no better exemplified than in the type of prisoners being taken.

Many German troops are obeying Hitler's order to stand to the last man on the west wall, but others have no inclination to do so.

One fortress battalion, for example, was formed from what had been an interpreter and training replacement battalion. Most of its troops were middle aged or were sick or disabled veterans.

The troops received one day's training on Sept. 19, attacked on the 20th, and deserted on the 21st.

Captain Quickly Killed.

The fortress battalion's one day training was given by a nervous infantry captain, who quickly incurred the enmity of his men, many of whom were non-Germans. When the battalion went into action the captain was missing. He had been shot and killed on training day, said one prisoner. Was the shooting accidental? The prisoner shrugged, smiled and said he didn't know.

A group of German engineers used as infantry had been sent into Siegfried line bunkers armed only with rifles and hand grenades. When taken prisoner one German said: "Our officers ran away. Why should we fight any longer?"

Many Germans told of trying desperately to avoid being sent into west wall bunkers. In the lines they said, many soldiers received little ammunition and few guns. Supplies were low and troops had to go long distances to get water, thereby exposing themselves to our fire.

Some of these same prisoners said that in Aachen, altho several groups of soldiers are fighting a strong delaying action on Hitler's orders to hold at all costs, hundreds of others are running about trying to get into civilian clothes. This report may be true, for in numerous small towns captured by Americans we have encountered a surprisingly large number of young men wearing civilian suits. Most turn out to be deserters.

Formed Anti-Deserter Line.

One prisoner said that at one point east of the west wall a line had been established on Interior Minister Heinrich Himmler's orders, manned with "reliable" officers and noncommissioned officers. Any soldier attempting to go east of this line was to be shot.

One fresh division, which the Germans had rushed into the line against the Americans, yielded many prisoners who expressed disgust at the haphazard manner in which they were organized and employed. Composed 50 per cent of Austrians, with a large mixture of Poles, Alsatians and limited service men aged 18 to 40, convalescents, factory workers, technical and skilled labor, railroad employes, and air force personnel, many had had no infantry training whatever.

After being organized, several prisoners said, the division heard a last minute pep talk by a gauleiter. But his words were greeted with laughter and ridicule.

German troops were sent into the attack, prisoners said, without reconnaissance, without tanks and without anti-tank guns. As a result, they added, American tanks penetrated easily into German lines and the German attack fizzled.

Still another German prisoner reported that German fighter pilots now have been ordered not to return to their base unless each has downed at least one allied plane. If necessary, pilots are to destroy allied craft by ramming, the prisoner said.

BOMBERS POUND NAZI RAIL HUBS AND RHINE INDUSTRIAL CENTERS

LONDON, Sept. 25 (AP).—More than 2,000 American planes, including nearly 1,300 Fortresses and Liberators, today dropped nearly 4,000 tons of bombs on two large freight yards at Frankfurt, Germany's 10th largest city; warehouses and rail yards at Coblenz, at the confluence of the Rhine and the Moselle, and rail yards and synthetic oil-chemical plants at Ludwigshafen, farther down the Rhine.

Tonight R. A. F. coastal command Beaufighters assaulted 20 German vessels at Den Helder, the most likely escape port for German forces trapped in Holland. Den Helder is between the Ijselmeer [Zuider Zee] and the North sea.

Bulgarian Mobilization Against Nazis Reported

LONDON, Sept. 25 (AP).—A Paris radio broadcast tonight announced that general mobilization had been decreed in Bulgaria to engage in total war against Germany.

4TH INFANTRY DRIVES WEDGE IN SIEGFRIED LINE

WITH THE 1ST ARMY IN GERMANY, Sept. 24 [delayed]—(AP).—The United States 4th infantry division was one of Lt. Gen. Hodges' 1st army units which smashed into the Siegfried line after a great drive across France and Belgium.

Censorship permitted identification of the division today—a great fighting outfit which landed in Normandy on D-day and participated in the drive to capture Cherbourg.

Under Maj. Gen. Raymond O. Barton the 4th was one of three units which spearheaded the breakthru west of St. Lo

STEEL TORNADO SWEEPS CALAIS IN ALL-OUT BLOW

WITH THE CANADIAN FORCES ATTACKING CALAIS, France, Sept. 25 [Reuter].—An all-out attack on the fortress of Calais was launched today with maximum air support from heavy bombers and rocket firing Typhoons. The attack started at 10:10 a. m. and wave after wave of bombers dropped a total of almost 1,300 tons on the great steel and concrete defenses.

The first strongpoint to fall was at Escalles, four miles southeast of Calais. After that, pillboxes were overrun in quick succession and troops stormed several emplacements of great cross-channel guns.

But in spite of these successes, the final reduction is expected to take time as the fortress is one of the strongest in Europe and the Germans have almost isolated it by inundations to the east, west, and south. To the south great expanses of water were to be seen—field after field flooded, with only the tops of the trees showing.

Flail Tanks Clear Paths.

After the bombers had crashed their loads on the concrete pillboxes, flail tanks, which pound the ground and explode mines ahead of them, went in and beat two paths thru the mine fields in the direction of Calais from the southwest.

The flails went so fast that it was difficult for the infantry to keep up, and when the infantry finally arrived at the outer German defenses they found Germans sitting dejectedly on the ground. These Germans had tried to surrender to the flails, but the flail men had no time to take prisoners.

As the infantry penetrated deeper into the defenses resistance stiffened and it became evident that, despite previous reports of low morale in the garrison, Calais was going to be no easy nut to crack.

Besides sowing mines, the Germans made extensive use of barbed wire in their outer defenses, stringing it much as it was used in the first World war. Machine and anti-tank guns covered the wired positions.

Besides air support, the Canadians had a tremendous concentration of artillery behind them and from the hills around the town the guns belched flame and smoke thruout the day. The ring consisted of heavy guns, then mediums, then 25 pounders, all hurling shells as fast as the perspiring gunners could load. Tonight the sky was lighted by the fires in Calais.

7,000 Captives Expected.

One of the first points to be captured by the Canadians was the observatory at the base of the Noires Mottes [black mound], three miles west of Calais. Some prisoners were seized, the first of a bag that is expected to total more than 7,000 when the garrison is cleaned up.

Hillsides were dotted with French civilians out to see the show. Villagers of Marquise, southwest of Calais, appeared glad that the all-out attack had started. For the last two weeks the guns at Calais and Cap Gris Nez had been shelling their little town and many persons had been killed.

TIME FOR ACTION, FOREIGNERS IN GERMANY TOLD

'Ike' Warns: 'Beware of Gestapo.'

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Sept. 25 (AP).—A spokesman for Gen. Eisenhower told the 12,000,000 foreign workers in Germany today that "the hour for action has come" and gave them instructions for activities in the last round of the battle for Germany. The workers were exhorted to beware of the Gestapo and not to underrate its powers. The text of the message:

"The hour for action has come!

"Note carefully the following instructions:

"The organized cells of foreign workers within the reich will take immediate action according to the prearranged plan. Members of organized cells will refrain from all unorganized resistance and useless provocation of the Gestapo. They will obey the orders of their leaders precisely.

"Go to Hiding at Once."

"Foreign workers who are not members of organized cells and who have not already carried out my instructions to go into hiding in the towns or—preferably—on the land, will do so at once.

"I have already warned them that they are in gravest danger if they remain in the factories. Their safest course is to disappear from the towns and cities and to seek shelter and employment on the land.

"In certain areas of Germany workers of the organized cells are today being provided with means for active resistance. These instruments will not be effective if they are used thoughtlessly or without purpose. Those of you who find them should immediately read the instructions that are provided and memorize them. Then destroy the instructions.

"Work Out Plan of Action."

"Hide the instruments in a safe place. Determine carefully where and how the instruments can be used most effectively. Work out your plan of action. After your plan is complete in every detail—and only then—put the instruments to the use for which they are designed.

"Bear in mind, while deciding on your plans, that foodstuffs and crops in Germany will be needed after the defeat of Hitler.

"Act wisely. Do not underrate the power of the Gestapo. However, remember that today the Gestapo stands in fear of the 12,000,000 foreign workers who, by acting now, can seal the fate of the third reich."

BRITAIN BARES GERMANS' CHUTE BOMB DAMAGE

BY E. R. NODERER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 25.—The censorship was relaxed today to permit disclosure that heavy damage and casualties were caused in England in the winter of 1940-'41 by explosives parachuted by Germans. Land and magnetic mines and bombs were dropped, weighing up to two tons. Some were missiles that had been abandoned by the British in their retreat to Dunkerque.

The first parachute bombs were mistaken by local defense forces for invading paratroopers. London, Birmingham, Plymouth, Liverpool, and other large cities were attacked. In London there were many casualties as the Blue Post's inn was destroyed. Many were killed in a Y. M. C. A. building.

CHICAGOANS IN PICKED UNIT OF 81ST ON ANGAUR

All Are Specialists in Mopping Up Japs.

BY HAROLD SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ANGAUR ISLAND, Palaus, Sept. 20 [Delayed]—[Via navy radio].—Illinoisans predominate in the defense perimeter of an outfit of the 81st infantry division, units of which cut their combat eye teeth on the conquest of this island, which is about the size of a small ranch. The defenders were deploying in dense jungle undergrowth to prevent enemy infiltration during the night.

These special troops were hand picked for alertness and aggressiveness and were given intensive training in the job of establishing air-tight lines in front of command posts and other vital centers. Every one is an expert in the use of all usual infantry weapons, and their eyes and ears have built up an unusual sensitivity to the slightest sights and sounds.

Lt. Hugh J. Ward, 26, son of Hugh and Julia Ward, 6908 Normal blvd., Chicago, commands this outfit. This grim guard work is a far cry from his civilian job managing movie theaters, but he is cheerful about a messy job.

Baby of Outfit Is 19.

"Boy, snow would look good right now," he said as he flopped from the scalding sunlight into the shade of a banyan tree.

Pvt. Walter Strzelecki, 19, of Chicago, has been in the army 13 months but he doesn't mind being called the baby of the outfit. He is doing a man's work. His nearest rival is Pvt. Willie Hirschfield, Baltimore, Md., who has just turned 20.

Oldsters include Pvt. Clarence Klotz, 4434 Clifton av., Chicago, and Sgt. Tom Matykiewicz, 5402 S. Mozart st., Chicago, both 35 years, and Pvt. Anthony Cocozzoli, 34, of Detroit. Klotz owned a night club on Clark st., now operated by his sister, Mrs. Harvey Horton, whose husband is a marine sergeant.

Pvt. Carl Melin, 22, of 3812 Parnell av., Chicago, hopes he will get down New Guinea to visit his brother there, Pvt. Edward Melin. Carl has been engaged a year to Dolores McMahon, of the same Chicago address.

Butcher Now Carves Japs.

Pvt. Edward Augustyniak, 27, of 5420 S. Marshfield av., Chicago, son of Mary, a butcher in civilian life, now carves Japs with a bazooka. Pvt. Jerry Tabuber, 1050 North Shore av., is known as a crack shot on several weapons.

Pvt. Allen E. Clausen, 24, Bradford, Ill., son of Allen and Maggie, drew the writer aside and informed him that Lt. Ward is a bum pinochle player but a swell commanding officer, a sentiment heartily echoed by others.

As I prepared to push on, Pvt. Richard J. Springer, 25, son of Joseph and Elsie, Comstock, Mich., stepped up eagerly and asked me to let his folks know he is okay. I said I'd try.

One feels a sharp pang of regret at these front line gabfests for kids whose home areas are not represented by correspondents here. Getting their names in the papers is a highlight in the lives of most of them. When they are left out they usually look like lads by-passed at mail call.

Reds Capture Estonian Port

(Story in adjoining column.)

REDS CAPTURE THIRD LARGEST ESTONIAN PORT

LONDON, Sept. 25 (AP).—Russian troops captured Estonia's third largest port and seized a 35 mile section of the Gulf of Riga coast today as they sped on toward Riga, capital of Latvia.

The port is Haapsalu, 63 miles southwest of Tallinn, and the coastal area lies south of Parnu.

Moscow also announced the capture of 50 localities in southern Poland along the Czecho-Slovak border, but said nothing of Russian troops reported to have smashed into Slovakia and Hungary.

Scoop Up Many Villages.

Haapsalu was among 800 populated places taken by Marshal Leonid A. Govorov's Leningrad army. This force drove as far south as Kuusiku, 65 miles north of Riga. The 3d Baltic army captured Mazsalaca, 25 miles east of Kuusiku, and 200 other localities.

Riga, under artillery bombardment from Russian troops attacking only six miles south of the city, also was menaced by the advance of the 2d Baltic army, driving in from the east. The 2d Baltic captured 80 hamlets during the day, including Kelpene, 40 miles from Riga.

Berlin said the 1st Baltic army had assembled more than 1,000 tanks west of Jelgava, 25 miles southwest of Riga, where the Germans have been counter-attacking.

East Prussia Battle Looms.

In western Lithuania, along the German East Prussian border, Gen. Ivan Cherniakhovsky's army is ready for the attack on East Prussia, Moscow dispatches said. Local battles are flaring up in that zone.

A Polish telegraphic agency report said that Polish home army units of the 2d infantry division had attacked German troops in the Kielce area, 92 miles southwest of Warsaw, capital of Poland, inflicting heavy losses on the enemy and capturing a quantity of arms.

A Berlin Transocean agency correspondent said that "Warsaw has been eradicated as never any town before it has been," and told of German and Russian artillery duels.

The reporter, Karl Krebs, said that soviet assault forces had been mowed down trying to cross the Vistula by boat to aid the Poles, and that Nazi fire also had frustrated Red engineering attempts to span the Vistula. He added, however, that soviet engineers were ready to make new attempts.

NAZI WAR BULLETIN.

Germany's broadcast war report yesterday said:

"In southwestern Transylvania, there was fighting only of local importance yesterday.

"In the south area of Riga, German forces repulsed the soviets in counter-attacks.

"On the remaining northern front, our detaching movements proceeded according to plan. Tallinn was evacuated a few days ago after destruction of installations.

"Our detaching movements in northern Finland proceed according to schedule.

YANKS BYPASS MOUNTAIN JAPS; GAIN ON PELELIU

PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Pearl Harbor, Sept. 25 (AP).—The first United States marines, failing to crack strongly entrenched defenders in the Umurbrogol hills of Peleliu Island, in the southern Palaus, by-passed that strong point and now have progressed within less than a mile of the northern tip of the island, the navy announced tonight.

The maneuver represented at least a mile advance along the western side of the island. The marines encountered swamps and heavily-wooded low hills, but apparently few Japanese.

Kill 8,288 Japs.

Adm. Nimitz reported that 7,313 enemy troops were killed on Peleliu thru Sept. 24. Mopping up operations continued on Angaur Island, six miles southward, where an estimated 975 Japanese have been killed. This means a total of 8,288 enemy dead on both islands.

Reinforced by Army.

Land based aircraft were active. Liberators bombed harbor facilities and shipping in Chichi Island, the Bonins, and raided Marcus Island. Other raids hit Rota, near Guam in the Marianas, Jaluit, Wotje, and Mili Islands in the Marshalls.

U.S. TROOPS LOAD SHIP; PAY GOES TO ZEALANDERS

Former Aid to Halsey Reveals Incident.

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 25 [Special].—Elaborating on charges that the United States may expect little help from the British in the Pacific war, Lt. Comdr. C. Ray Robinson, retired, former legal adviser to Adm. Halsey, today produced a New Zealand newspaper clipping describing a demand by dock workers for pay for loading work done by soldiers.

Robinson, who recently returned from the South Pacific where he was a member of Adm. Halsey's staff for 17 months, first made his charges of British apathy in the Pacific war effort in a talk Thursday night before a civic club in Chowchilla, Cal. Robinson, before entering the service four years ago, was a prominent attorney of Merced, Cal., and a former state assemblyman.

Refuse to Waive Rules.

The clipping exhibited by Robinson was from the Auckland Weekly Times of March 1, 1944. It said dock workers refused to waive rules against Saturday night work in order to permit the loading of an American ship necessary for an important island invasion. When the United States army used its own soldiers to load the ship, the dock workers successfully demanded, under threat of a general strike, double time pay for the work done by the soldiers, it was said.

The article was headed, "Pay for no Work—Amazing Case on Water Front."

When the union refused to waive its rule to permit loading of invasion supplies after 6 p. m., an ultimatum was given that because of the urgency of the case the work would be continued that night by American soldiers, the article stated.

"Consent to this arrangement was given by the union on condition that gangs who worked during the day would be paid the Saturday evening rates for the hours which the soldiers worked," the article continued. "It is the contention of the waterside workers that once they have been engaged for a ship all the working hours for discharging and loading belong to them.

To Combat Area.

"The water front control commission approved that use of soldiers in this particular case. The conditions of the union had to be accepted as it was imperative that the ship, with its troops and urgently needed supplies, be sent forward to the combat area without delay. Over 24 hours in time of departure of the ship were saved by the work which the soldiers did. This saving in time was considered to be vital.

"As all other work for the Americans, this payment to the waterside workers becomes a charge on the New Zealand taxpayer under reverse lend-lease," the article concluded.

Robinson reiterated that the Australian army is demobilizing and has been for a year. He said many Australians and New Zealanders share the opinion recently expressed by a high British official that the United States precipitated the war with Japan by pushing the Japs back so far thru withholding oil and other materials that there was nothing left for them to do except fight.

Personal Opinions.

Robinson stressed the fact he was expressing his personal opinions and not speaking for Adm. Halsey. He said he saw no reason for returning veterans to remain silent on controversial issues. He said "those of us who return should try to straighten out these matters."

Regarding post-war operation of bases built by the United States on Pacific islands, Robinson said "we are spending hundreds of millions of dollars on military installations and we should keep them.

"In view of the complete domination of the Pacific theater by Americans, the gains made by sacrifice of American lives, personnel, and equipment, what, if any, agreement exists concerning bases and installations?" he demanded. "If no agreement has been made, why not?

Matter of Barter.

"Why should these bases be a matter of barter? Haven't we proved our right to them? The reasons that justify spilling American blood on these islands and spending American lives are equally compelling reasons for maintaining control."

He expressed fear bases developed by us will revert to the British after the war to be used in competitive post-war aviation. He asserted he saw little chance of substantial British aid in the war against Japan.

"Despite the collapse of the German submarine warfare, I have seen no published reports of British participation in the Pacific theater," he said. "I am certain that we will get nothing from the British except what we have been getting."

CHINESE FIGHT TWO JAP COLUMNS MOVING TO OUTFLANK KWEILIN

CHUNGKING, China, Sept. 25 (AP).—Chinese troops are engaging two Japanese columns apparently attempting to envelop Kweilin in flanking movements, the high command announced today as bitter fighting was reported all along the Chinese battle front.

The Japanese are moving toward the Kwangsi province city from positions east of the Hunan-Kwangsi railroad. One column, which took Kwanyang, 50 miles east of Kweilin, pushed southward for an undisclosed distance, the high command said.

The invaders recaptured Taohsien, 90 miles northeast of Kweilin, and struck on southwestward. Their drive engulfed Yungming in a 25 mile advance, and was continuing.

1940 Dunkerque Wounds Fatal to British Captain

LONDON, Sept. 25 (AP), — Capt. John Francis Arundell of Wardour, 37, a baron, who recently was repatriated from a German prison camp, died today of wounds suffered at Dunkerque, where he was captured in 1940. A graduate of Oxford and unmarried, he was a former member of the London stock exchange.

'PICK'S PIKE,' NEW LEDO ROAD, NOW IN USE IN BURMA

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 25 (AP).—"Usability" of China's new lifeline, the Ledo road, was disclosed today by the Post-Intelligencer.

The paper said the juncture of the vital overland link with existing arteries in China was confirmed by the United States army engineers in Washington, D. C.

"Future usefulness of the route as a source of eleventh hour supplies to beleaguered Chinese armies is contingent upon efforts to stave off mounting Japanese pressure on the Yunnan 'feeder' roads," the paper pointed out.

Extending from the Ledo railhead in eastern India, the road passes thru the jungles of northern Burma and joins roadways of China's Yunnan province at Trunghka, Burma.

"Scores of bridges, some of concrete and steel, span innumerable rivers and streams in the hot swampland. Surfaced by gravel carried in the head baskets of Indian women, the road is in part a two lane highway, meandering in places to elevations up to 4,300 feet.

"Built from scratch by road crews, headed by woodcutters and followed by bulldozers and steamrollers, the road was always only a step behind Gen. Stilwell, whose knowledge of the country was based on maps 21 years old.

Used as Airstrip.

"Even before completion, the road served as a source of supply to Stilwell's forces, and L-4 [cub] planes of the army air forces liaison squadron used the roadway as a landing strip for evacuation of wounded."

Built by army engineers under Brig. Gen. Lewis A. Pick, the Ledo road, known as "Pick's Pike," was begun in December, 1942, the paper said.

"United States postal authorities, without stipulating the delivery route, have announced that parcel post, discontinued to China since Feb. 27, 1942, is now being accepted for delivery to nine Chinese provinces," it added. No parcel post has left United States seaport cities, however.

NAZIS DENOUNCE MORGENTHAU'S HARD PEACE PLAN

Churchill Regime's Comment Awaited.

LONDON, Sept. 25 (AP).—German propagandists today rose in frenzied denunciation of the Morgenthau plan for a "hard peace" for the Nazis, and it appeared here that Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden or even Prime Minister Churchill may choose the controversial subject for an early speech in parliament.

In the prime minister's absence official sources have been silent on the Morgenthau plan, but with Churchill's return and parliament reassembling tomorrow, it was felt that the government's views would be presented directly rather than thru some other medium.

"Outdoing Clemenceau."

"Morgenthau is outdoing Clemenceau [French premier of the last war]," shouted the German radio, adding that occupation of the reich by Americans and British would "be as horrible as if by their ally, the bolshevist Russians." Dr. Heinz Scharping, a Nazi commentator, said:

"They intend to introduce the military mark . . . that is to devalue our money. They intend to take over all the postal and telegraph and radio services. They want to introduce total censorship of all postal and telephone communications and confiscate all radios.

"They want to introduce English as the official language. What would remain for us is clear."

The Berlin radio asserted that occupation by American and British forces "with all its continuous hunger and starvation," would be worse even than "the ghastly bomb terror."

Hitler Paper Comments.

It said hunger was rampant in Rome and that to get some bread for their children, Italian women "know no other way except prostitution."

In the first comment on the Morgenthau plan by Hitler's own Voelkischer Beobachter, the paper was quoted in a Berlin broadcast as saying, "What has been planned at Quebec has the effect of doubling the determination of German resistance." It added that London and Washington, D. C., will one day find out this plan has been the greatest miscalculation in history.

"Clemenceau said there were 23,000,000 Germans too many—Morgenthau wants to see 43,000,000 Germans exterminated," the paper said.

"I'm in a Cold Sweat!"

Fear is what does it, and many a car-owner has felt that freezing chill this summer, when a sudden, new noise from his motor has filled him with dread that his car was chugging its last.

There's nothing like that fear to make a stupid driver resolve to follow better driving practices. The intelligent motorist needs no such warning.

He drives slowly and carefully, conserving his tires and his automobile. He truly "cares for his car for his country." And one precaution he always takes—he makes certain that the motor runs only with quality oil in the crankcase.

Obviously there are a number of such oils. And to help you select one of them, easily and with certainty, Phillips gives you these facts:

Phillips offers a number of oils because car-owners' preferences and pocketbooks vary. But when you want our best oil, remember Phillips tells you frankly that Phillips 66 Motor Oil is our finest quality . . . the highest grade and greatest value . . . among all the oils we offer to average motorists.

It's good for your motor, under today's reduced driving conditions, to change oil every two months, say experts. For that change, and for seasonal draining and refilling, you make sure of getting a quality lubricant, when you simply say: Phillips 66 Motor Oil.

3 BILLION SOCIAL INSURANCE PLAN UP TO COMMONS

Cradle to Grave Program Taxes All Britons.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 26.—The British government tonight made public a tremendous social security program which will be laid before parliament when it reconvenes tomorrow. It will place a weekly stamp tax on practically every person in the country over the age of 16, regardless of occupation or class, and in return will pay huge sums in pensions and insurance.

Going much farther than the American social security plan, the British proposal is the government's answer to the controversial program submitted by William Beveridge a year ago.

During the first year it is estimated the plan will cost $2,600,000,000, compared with $2,788,000,000 for the Beveridge plan. It covers human needs from the cradle to the grave.

Grants for Mothers.

It would provide unemployment and sickness insurance; health service; widows' pensions; retirement pensions; family allowances; orphans' allowances, motherhood grants and death grants.

The plan seeks to banish extreme poverty from Britain at one stroke and greatly improve the welfare of most of the country's 47,000,000 people. The government hopes to make it effective in 1945.

Government and local tax funds would bear 1 billion 408 million dollars of the first year's burden, while the balance would be derived from stamp taxes. By 1975 the total cost will rise to 3 billion 324 million, of which the state's share is estimated at 2 billion 288 millions.

Creates Cabinet Minister.

The measure would create a new cabinet post, the ministry of social insurance, under which the plan would be administered.

For purposes of collection and administration, all Britishers are divided into six classes without distinction to their earning capacity or social standing. The classes are employes, the self-employed, housewives, adults who don't earn, children and people over the working age. They will pay from 49 cents to 77 cents weekly for employed men, depending upon their age, and from 40 to 60 cents for women wage earners. In addition, employers are required to contribute amounts from 32 to 62 cents for each worker. Professional men and women must contribute 49 cents to 70 cents. Nonworkers, including people of independent means, must pay from 37 to 67 cents.

$8 Sickness Benefit.

The plan would provide:

Motherhood grants of $16 plus benefits up to $7.27 weekly.

Unemployment and sickness pay of $8 weekly for a married couple or $4.80 for a single person.

Family allowances of $1 and "things in kind," such as school meals and milk weekly, for each child after the first.

Widows' pensions reaching $7.27 for the first 13 weeks.

Orphans' allowances of $2.40 weekly.

Health services for all and special provision for the blind.

Pays for 3 Years.

Sickness benefits would continue for three years and then be replaced by invalidity benefit of $7 for a married couple and $4 for a single person. Unemployment benefits would be paid for a limit of 30 weeks.

The basis for most argument in the house of commons and the press is expected to hinge on comparisons between this and the Beveridge plan.

SHIP WEATHERS U-BOAT ATTACK AND HURRICANE

Norfolk, Va., Sept. (AP).—A liberty ship which was launched in August was torpedoed early this month off the coast of North Carolina and almost was driven ashore later in a hurricane, but she weathered both blows and was towed to Norfolk with no casualties, and slight damage to her cargo.

The ship was making her maiden voyage when a submarine pumped a torpedo into her, wrecking the quarters of the armed guard crew.

"I don't see how the gun crew got out alive," Second Mate W. L. McGough, of Luverne, Ala., told reporters today. Gunners were thrown from their bunks.

Gunners Fire Two Shells.

William A. Junk, 20, of Fort Wayne, Ind., a signalman 2d Class, said he saw the U-boat come to the surface 900 yards from the ship soon after the attack. Navy gunners fired two shells at the raider, which submerged.

Lt. [j. g.] Melvin Schadewald, of Minneapolis, Minn., who was in charge of the armed guard crew, said he sighted a periscope 1,000 yards off the port bow at 11:15 a. m., 11 hours after the attack, and his gunners fired two magazines of 30 millimeter shells but missed.

A navy tug took the ship in tow and headed for the coast. They were nearing the North Carolina coast the morning of Sept. 14 when heavy weather parted the tow line. Unable to resume the tow, the tug departed.

Driven Near Shore.

The hurricane buffeted the crippled ship and drove her within six miles of shore before the wind shifted and sent her seaward. Two of her life boats and three or her rafts were lost and her catwalks were carried away or wrecked.

Another tug took the ship in tow the morning of Sept. 15 and brought her into Hampton Roads. Her skipper, Capt. T. C. Selness of New York City, said two Coast Guard patrol boats that came to his ship's assistance after she was torpedoed were lost later in the hurricane.

These were the Jackson and the Bedloe, which went to the bottom with heavy loss of life.

FORMER NAVAL RESERVIST HELD ON SPY CHARGE

Tried to Steal Radar Plans, FBI Says.

New York, Sept. 25 [Special].—A bizarre story of espionage, which included an attempt to steal radar secrets, was related before United States Commissioner Garrett W. Cotter today with the arraignment as a spy of a former naval reserve lieutenant.

He is Laurent Hendrikus Johannes Brackx, 50, a Dutch born former American merchant marine captain, who held a naval reserve commission from 1931 to 1942, when it reportedly was rescinded upon information from naval intelligence.

"I am absolutely not guilty and demand a hearing," said Brackx. Commissioner Cotter set bail at $25,000 and ordered a hearing for Monday.

E. E. Conroy, special agent in charge of the New York office of the federal bureau of investigation, said the government has information that Brackx began his career as a spy after he was expelled from Syria in 1940 by French authorities for pro-German activities. He said Brackx attended espionage courses in Vienna and Rome.

Brackx came to the United States in 1940, it was stated, but returned to Europe after two months for conferences with Italian officials. He came back to the United States in 1941 and has remained here since then, except for a few voyages as a mate on merchant vessels.

Federal officials disclosed that Hans Sokol, a German marine intelligence officer, and Max Ponzo, an Italian navy commander, have been named co-conspirators with Brackx. They are accused of giving him the radar assignment, as well as the job of seeking information on Caribbean shipping and American airplane production.

Brackx, it was said, left instructions abroad that money due him was to be paid to an Italian woman whom he was reported to have married bigamously at Aleppo, Syria.

Federal officials indicated that Brackx had failed to obtain the radar plans, but withheld comment on how far they believed his activities extended.

CANNED PEARS TO RISE IN PRICE, OPA ANNOUNCES

Canned pears from the 1944 pack in California will be higher, the office of price administration said yesterday, as will some dried fruits. Bartlett pears will sell at about 2 cents higher for the No. 2½ can to compensate for a larger price for producers. Prunes will be boosted a half cent a pound, and raisins will go up 3 cents.

The OPA reminded housewives that blue tokens will not be accepted after Saturday. Retailers and wholesalers have until Oct. 9 to deposit them.

Third-quarter T gasoline coupons will expire Saturday, with fourth quarter T's becoming valid Sunday.

TOWN PAYS FOR WARSHIP; GETS A BRITISH MYTH

Children's Mail to 'Crew' Accepted.

BY JOSEPH CERUTTI.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 25.—After two years of reading newspapers to find out what the 1,250 ton sloop H.M.S. Sparrow, for which they paid more than $700,000, was doing to chase the enemy off the high seas, 16,000 inhabitants of Royton, Lancashire, have just learned from the red faced admiralty that the vessel never was built.

There was no doubt of the admiralty's good intentions when the people of Royton collected cash for the sloop during Warships Week in 1942. The admiralty sent Royton an elaborately inscribed plaque with a picture of the Sparrow on it and the Royton council reciprocated with a plaque bearing its coat of arms as a decoration for the ship.

Letters from Children.

School children and the local comforts committee got busy writing letters, sending cigarets, books, games, and other things to the Sparrow's captain and crew.

Then Royton had the thrill of its lifetime when the admiralty sent a commander down about a year later to tell of the good work of ships of the same class as the Sparrow. The commander didn't advance specific information about the Sparrow.

After a while, however, Royton tired of studying the newspapers without seeing a mention of its warship and many contributors began to wonder why they never received replies to letters sent to the captain or crew, altho all were mailed in care of the admiralty.

Some even suspected the Sparrow might by a myth. So the town council wrote to the admiralty about it.

"The admiralty answered that they'd give us the details later or that they were not quite sure where she was at the moment or that they were trying to get in touch with her and would let us know," Councillor H. Perkins recalled last night.

Secret No Longer.

Finally, some one at the admiralty discovered that the Sparrow had never been built. Admiralty officers pleaded with the Royton council to keep the matter secret but the councillors were in no mood to do so.

"Naturally we were very angry," said Donald Ogden, the town clerk. In a letter admitting the truth, he disclosed, the admiralty "made a vague explanation that the Sparrow should have been built but wasn't."

More emphatic was Councillor Perkins.

"The whole town is disgusted with the way it's been treated," he said. "The public kept on asking, where's H. M. S. Sparrow? It would have been far better if the admiralty had admitted from the first there was no such ship."

HEAR CAROL MAY REGAIN THRONE WITH REDS' O. K.

[Special dispatch to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 25.—The possible return of ex-King Carol to the throne of Romania was being discussed today in diplomatic and Romanian circles as a result of conversations that were understood to be taking place between Constantine Oumanski, soviet ambassador, and Carol. It was reported the soviet government would not object to Carol if the Romunian people decided they wanted him as their ruler. Members of the soviet embassy who up to a few months ago openly branded Carol a pro-Nazi and a despot are shaking hands and talking with him at diplomatic receptions and cocktail parties. The day Romania asked for an armistice, Carol publicly urged collaboration with Russia.

5 CHICAGOLAND FLYERS SAVED FROM ROMANIA

'Freed' Aug. 23, They're Evacuated by Air.

Five captured Chicago area airmen were among a total of 1,126 Americans freed when Romania capitulated to the allies Aug. 23. All were flown out to Italy within a week from the German infested territory around Bucharest in the largest evacuation of its kind ever undertaken.

The men are Lt. Elihu Root, Lt. Peter J. De Rudder, Sgt. Miles R. Stehl, all of Chicago; Sgt. Hiram L. Jenkins of Greenville, Ill., and Sgt. Jack F. Hare of Joliet.

When Romania fell the men technically were "freed." The doors to their military cages were thrown open and they were told to do as they pleased. But between them and their bases in Italy were hundreds of miles of enemy territory.

Sweated Out Our Bombings.

The Chicagoans, with their companions, had gone thru the experience of being shot down at "hot" targets; as prisoners they had sweated out terrific blastings by their own forces; now they were caught unarmed between furious ground and air actions.

Then Lt. Col. James A. Gunn of Kelseyville, Cal., whose plane had been shot from under him just before the capitulation, got permission to fly to Italy to ask the 15th air force to fly the men out.

After one false start, the trip to Italy was made and two days later the evacuation began.

On schedule, formations of escorted Flying Fortresses landed, picked up the airmen and flew them to Italy and freedom. Most of the men freed will be or have been sent home.

Lost on Ploesti Raid.

Lt. Root, 23, a Liberator pilot, is the husband of Mrs. Mae J. Root, 1012 Independence blvd. He was shot down over the Ploesti oil fields last spring, as were nearly all the men held prisoners. Lt. Root enlisted in August, 1942, and was commissioned last November.

Sgt. Stehl, 25, is a radio operator-gunner on a Liberator bomber. He bailed out over the oil fields last spring. His wife, Dorothea, lives at 912 Dakin st.

Lt. De Rudder, 27, a Liberator navigator, was rescued after six weeks imprisonment. His wife, Ruth, lives at 4749 N. Karlov av.

Parents Live in Hammond.

Sgt. Jenkins, 23, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Jenkins, 1317 175th st., Hammond. A turret gunner on a Liberator bomber, Sgt. Jenkins was shot down in August. He has been awarded the air medal with one oak leaf cluster for meritorious achievement in aerial combat and the Purple Heart for wounds received in action. His wife, Nora, lives in Greenville, Ill.

Sgt. Hare lives at 100 Herkimer st., Joliet. He is a bombardier on a Flying Fortress attached to the 15th air force. The ship was forced to land while on a mission on the Ploesti oil fields last Aug. 10.

EASY RULES FOR MAKING GOOD COFFEE

No disappointing flavor variation if simple procedure is followed

In these busy days there is an increased appreciation of the enjoyment and relaxation provided by coffee. As a result, the serving of good coffee is of greater concern than ever to housewives. However, for successful results there are certain rules that must be followed.

Heading the list is the accurate measurement of both coffee and water — 2 level tablespoons of coffee to each cup of water. The amount of water can be varied slightly for exact strength desired. Once the proportions have been determined to suit individual taste, they should be adhered to.

The coffee-making utensil should be kept scrupulously clean, and in brewing the coffee, application of heat, and time of brewing should be carefully watched.

Above all, it is necessary to choose a coffee that is known for its full-bodied, uniform flavor. Hills Bros. Coffee is a blend of the finest coffees obtainable, roasted to perfection through an exclusive process—"Controlled Roasting"—which roasts every berry to the exact degree that insures matchless, uniform flavor.

By following directions as printed on the label, Hills Bros. Coffee may be used with equally delicious results in any type of coffee-maker.

DRAKE MURDER GUN'S BULLETS ELUDE SEARCH

Firearms Evidence Is Discovered.

BY FRANK CIPRIANI.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Bloomington, Ill., Sept. 25.—A six day search for bullets that might have aided the investigation of the Drake hotel murder of Mrs. Adele Born Williams came to an end today. No bullets of the right caliber were found. However, some evidence of the use of firearms has been uncovered. The inquiry will go on. Mrs. Williams was shot by an unidentified "woman in black" in the Drake last Jan. 19.

The bullet search was conducted by Charles M. Wilson, director of the Chicago police crime detection laboratory and seven detectives. It was based on information supplied by Walter Brown, who is serving a life sentence in Stateville prison for the murder of a McLean county deputy sheriff.

Brown asserted recently, and still sticks to his story, that he once possessed the revolver used in the Drake hotel murder, and that he left it in the home of his lifelong friend, Adolph Valanis, now a Chicago policeman. Valanis denies this, altho admitting that he has received other guns from Brown.

Brown said that he kept the gun only a short time, and he remembered firing a dozen test shots into the ground at the rear of a roadhouse he once operated on highway 51, five miles north of Bloomington.

The convict's story brought Director Wilson and his police detail out here last Wednesday. They spaded up an area of nearly 300 square feet, indicated personally by Brown and by chart. They dug to a depth of 11 to 18 inches, and removed perhaps 300 cubic feet of soil. Every inch was screened twice, uncovering one .32 caliber case and a 12 gauge shotgun shell head. The search was made for .38 caliber revolver pellets.

"Altho we found no bullets of any kind, we did find evidence of some firearms use," said Director Wilson. "These were in no way connected with our investigation. However, they represent a partial corroboration of Brown's story that firearms were used in this area."

Meanwhile, Sheriff Earl Richards and his chief deputy, Curtis Gilberts, were investigating a man in soldier's uniform, who last Saturday night tried to see Brown in the McLean county jail here. Brown had come here on a habeas corpus writ petition, had lost, and was already back in Stateville. The visitor, who identified himself as Douglas Weidig, said he represented a private investigating agency in Chicago.

DEMOCRATS TO HIT CAMPAIGN TRAIL AT OLD 22D TOMORROW

The Democrats will start their Cook county drive tomorrow night with a rally bringing Mayor Kelly and all the candidates to the 22d ward, which since the days of the late A. J. Cermak has been the favored place for launching party campaigns.

At a meeting of county and Municipal court candidates in the Morrison hotel yesterday, the mayor, who also is county chairman, said he believes that "if we do not fall into the errors of overconfidence," the entire ticket will be elected.

"It is particularly important that we solicit support for our congressional candidates in the metropolitan district," he said. "Their election means that President Roosevelt will have in congress the intelligent support he will need to carry on the war and to play the part the world expects of him in writing the peace."

Chairman of the meeting tomorrow night, which will be held in the Masonic temple, at 23d st. and Millard av., will be Henry Sonnenschein, ward committeeman and candidate for reelection as clerk of the Superior court.

COUNCIL GROUP ASKS $3,000,000 FOR LIGHTING

A $3,000,000 bond issue to finance at least 12,400 new electric street lights will be considered by the city council tomorrow at a special meeting requested by a subcommittee of the council finance committee.

The subcommittee, headed by Ald. Hartnett [12th], urged that the council prepare a referendum ordinance authorizing the issue in time to be submitted to voters at the Nov. 7 election. It was agreed that the bonds should mature in six years and bear interest of 1½ per cent. Ald. Lindell [9th] proposed three weeks ago that $2,000,000 be raised, but Mayor Kelly said the cost would be nearer $3,000,000.

HOUSE PROBERS DEFIED; LIST OF DONORS REFUSED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 25.—The committee for constitutional government, a nonpartisan organization, today risked possible prosecution under federal law by defying a house committee subpena calling for a list of its contributors.

The house committee on campaign expenditures voted last week to subpena the list, but Edward A. Rumely, executive secretary of the organization, told the committee today submission of the records would lay his group open to smear attacks by those opposed to constitutional government.

The subpena called for a list of contributors giving $100 or more since Jan. 1, 1943.

Rep. Anderson [D., N. M.], chairman of the house committee, disclosed after the hearing that its counsel, John A. Caddell, has recommended contempt proceedings against Rumely for his stand. Anderson said the committee will act tomorrow on the recommendation.

GAMBLING FEUD INVESTIGATED IN INDIANA KILLING

Michigan City Police Tell of Nahas' Rivals.

A feud between rival gambling operators was being investigated yesterday as a possible clew in the slaying of Harry Solomon Akchevoun, 48, former bodyguard for George Nahas, 44, gambling czar of Michigan City and La Porte county, Ind. Akchevoun was shot to death in the Nahas home by three gunmen early Sunday morning. Nahas was wounded slightly.

Michigan City police said Nahas is one of four brothers who have been engaged in gambling operations in La Porte and Lake counties, Ind., and near Peoria for the last 10 years. George Nahas owns the Embassy club and has an interest in four or five other gambling places in the Indiana city.

Long Feud Disclosed.

The police said that the Nahas brothers have been feuding for years with the State Line gang, a group of gamblers that operates gaming places near the Indiana-Michigan state line. It also was reported that the gambling syndicate that controls gambling in Lake county and the southern end of Cook county has been trying in the last year to "muscle" into the lucrative profits gleaned from war workers in the other county.

Michigan City police said that most of the gambling places, with the exception of the Embassy club, closed down after Labor day. However, Robert L. Wilson, prosecutor of La Porte county, at La Porte, ordered that all gambling places in the county be closed. A grand jury was sworn in during the day and the prosecutor said the jurors may be asked to investigate the slaying.

Robbery Theory Examined.

The investigators said they are certain that Nahas did not try to extend his operations in southern Cook county. They said that the Nahas brothers, together, were not quite big enough to buck the syndicate in Lake and Cook counties.

The police said that they were not overlooking a possible theory that Akchevoun may have been slain by robbers. The gunmen entered the Nahas home an hour before the shooting and lay in wait for Akchevoun and Nahas and his wife to return. They bound and gagged Nahas' son, George Jr., 11, and put him into a clothes closet. Before they tied him up they asked where his father's safe was. The boy said that his father did not keep any money in the house.

Nahas said that Akchevoun recently sold a grocery store he owned in Joliet and that he was about to leave for Detroit, Mich. He said that his former bodyguard did not have much money on his person and that no attempt was made by the gunmen to rob them. The three opened fire when Nahas, his wife, and Akchevoun entered the home, the gambler said. Nahas was wounded in the left hand. Three bullets struck his companion. The victim had not been employed as bodyguard for some time prior to the shooting, the gambler said.

TAVERN OPERATOR ROBBED.

Sue Conway, operator of a tavern at 5300 Princeton av., told police yesterday that she had been robbed of $75 by a man who carried a revolver and was accompanied by a Negro.

DEMPSEY VOWS HE WILL SMASH CRIME-POLITICS

Says Machine Helps Vice and Gambling.

John T. Dempsey, Republican nominee for state's attorney, yesterday pledged himself to bankrupt the partnership between crime and politics, in a statement made with reference to the murder of Harry S. Akchevoun, bodyguard of George Nahas, gambling czar.

The killing by three masked gunmen took place in Michigan City, but it is said that Nahas' gambling empire extends from Lake county, Ind., into Illinois. Dempsey said that chance alone saved Chicago from another of the series of unsolved gang slayings that have made the city notorious as a play ground of the underworld.

Charges Vice Is Protected.

"No one can conduct extensive vice operations in our community without the knowledge and protection of the law enforcing agencies of Chicago and Cook county," Dempsey said. "These agencies are all controled by the Kelly Democratic machine.

"Here, at last, in the election of the next state's attorney, is the people's opportunity to smash the criminal element that has flourished in Chicago and Cook county, flouting law, defying the police, and enforcing its own gang rule with gun fire.

"It is the people's chance to smash the apparent partnership of the underworld and the Kelly Democratic political machine.

Pledges War on Gangsters.

"When I take over the duties of the state's attorney's office, gangsters will be convicted. I will drive protected crime out of Chicago and Cook county. Investigation and prosecution will be thoro and vigorous—and successful.

"Any political-criminal alliances will be liquidated by honest, hard hitting law enforcement."

Dempsey, who heads the Republican county ticket, spoke last night at a 4th ward meeting at 3907 Cottage Grove av. Tonight he will appear in the 44th ward at 2313 Lincoln av. Tomorrow night he is scheduled to talk in the 18th ward at 6400 Green st.

DAY by DAY on the FARM & GAIL COMPTON

Sept. 25, 1944.

THE TERRACES being built on the alfalfa field south of the machine shed as a soil conservation practice are causing considerable comment among the workers. They are anxious to see how effective they will be, for there is a steep slope on the field and each year good top soil is lost thru erosion.

The manager estimates that every five years an inch of top soil is washed away down the seven per cent slope. This is a heavy toll as any farm crop depends upon the soil for its food. The subsoil, with its lack of humus, provides little nourishment for the plants, acting mainly as a water reservoir. For this reason it is important to conserve every bit of top soil.

Make Study of Slope.

When soil conservation experts set about creating the terraces, they first studied the slope and estimated the approximate amount of runoff water a hard rain would cause. From past experience, they knew how much ground to leave between the top of the hill and the first terrace so the terrace would be able to retain the water shed by that ground.

The first terrace was built in the shape of an "S," winding over the slope and following the contour of the land. The second terrace was built approximately 75 feet below the first one. The terraces were built by plowing up the ground and, with the use of a grader, pushing the earth into a swell on the side of the hill. The swell or ridge is a little more than one foot deep.

Now when it rains the water will wash down from the top of the slope into the slight valley created by the ridge and instead of carrying away the dirt, the water will be channeled along the terrace and allowed to spend itself gently in the field.

Top Soil to Be Saved.

The water running downhill below the first terrace will be caught by the second one and stopped from running off. Thus the top soil will be saved and the moisture will be given a chance to soak into the ground thoroly.

This terracing will prevent the hilltop from becoming a hard knob of clay subsoil while at the bottom of the hill the rich dirt piles up several feet thick. This results in the common sight of a good field of corn growing on the bottom land while on the hills the corn stalks are green and sickly looking.

WOMAN BARBER KILLS MATE.

Mrs. Margarette Williams, 46, a Negro barber, surrendered to police last night after she said she had shot and killed her husband, Moses, 52, Negro in their home at 322 E. 35th st. She asserted her husband, in a jealous rage, tried to beat her. They were married in April.

The GARDEN by Bon Markland

GARDENERS having extra heads of cabbage in their plots may want to dig a storage trench alongside the rows in which the plants now are growing. Gardeners on the Wheaton farm have found that cabbages keep better in trenches than in storage basements or root houses.

Cabbages will withstand light frosts, but cannot stand heavy ground freezes. The trench should be 16 inches deep and wide enough to hold two cabbages side by side. Clean straw, if available, can be placed in the bottom of the trench. When a heavy frost is forecast, the cabbages can be lifted with a spade, leaving as much soil as possible around the roots. The heads are placed upside down in the trench and loose soil placed around them, leaving only the root tips exposed.

In late October an additional mulch of straw or raked leaves can be placed over the trench. Cabbages can be kept in such a trench and dug as needed until the Christmas season.

CARR ATTACKS 'POLITICAL STOP SIGN' ON WRITS

Says Sheriff Fails to Deliver 75 Pct.

BY CHARLES BALLENGER.

Taunting his Democratic opponent for becoming a "tool of machine politics," Leo Carr, Republican candidate for sheriff, charged last night that political considerations had stopped the delivery of 75 of each 100 court writs issued thru the sheriff's office during the last year.

"No matter what basic honesty a candidate backed by the Kelly machine may have," Carr said, "as soon as he gets in office the organization vultures start to move in. Before he knows it they have picked his office clean of respectable men and King Kelly is in control again.

Based on Figures.

Carr said he based his charges of "political expediency" in the delivery of court writs on figures released by an independent group of lawyers. The group, he said, studied a random selection of 1,000 writs and found that fewer than 250 of them had been delivered.

The sheriff's men, he asserted, generally gave the excuse that the person for whom the writ was intended "was not at home, or there is no such address." The lawyer's group, however, followed each undelivered writ thru and was able to contact the respondent by telephone, Carr said.

"This certainly is ample evidence that Democratic machine politics controls a great deal of the investigations and actions of the sheriff's office in this county," Carr said. "And it is even more apparent that this condition will prevail until the Kelly organization is tossed back into the gutter from which it came."

"Sell Themselves."

Speaking before two enthusiastic audiences of Republican workers in the 42d ward headquarters at 1023 N. State st., and the 27th ward headquarters at 15 N. Ashland blvd., Carr lashed out at "Democratic politicians who sell themselves to the gambling syndicate."

Paul Roos, 42d ward Republican committeeman who introduced Carr, pointed out that Carr's experience as a policeman, with more than 25 years duty with the Chicago police force and the state police, gave him special knowledge of criminal investigations and procedures. His opponent, he said, lacks this knowledge of fundamental police work.

"Sheriff Mulcahy," Carr said, "gave himself to the machine as soon as he entered the office. He was repudiated by his own ward as alderman and now should be repudiated by the whole county."

In Washington and thruout the world Chicago Tribune correspondents are alert to keep readers informed of every significant happening. Experienced in knowing how to get the facts, they cover the news first hand and report it steadfastly from the American viewpoint.

YOUR POST-WAR "MIRACLE HOME" IS NOW READY AND WAITING!

TO THE PUBLIC: The sponsors of this advertisement have specialized in publications and literature to the building profession for over 25 years.

Of late so much absolutely ridiculous information has been broadcast that we are taking this means to inform the public what it might and might not expect in appearance, utility and cost in the Home of Tomorrow. As a duty to our readers, and you their customers, the following facts are being conscientiously presented.

WHAT? Start a new "Dream Home" now, with still a lot of war to be won?

Yes . . . start it by starting to plan it . . . by learning all about the amazing new miracles of design, convenience, comfort and utility that are ready right now . . . ready for you the moment the Armistice is signed.

You will NOT have to wait 2 years or 3 years or even one year for the Miracle Home of Tomorrow. Ready to build it today, the instant war restrictions are eased, is an army of American practical builders and building-material dealers, skilled, creative men who have accomplished almost unbelievable wonders in postwar planning.

What do they say about the Home of Tomorrow?

Well, they say, don't expect bathtubs that will scrub your back . . . or stoves that will prepare the food, feed it to you and shake hands with your guests. No, not all the sensational Sunday Supplement creations will be available! But your New Home will open your eyes wide!

Yes, America's practical builders and building-material dealers, have worked closely with American manufacturers to make available at low cost, new methods, materials, home appliances, heating and plumbing equipment which otherwise would be expensive luxuries for years to come.

What will it be like?

Will it be so new in design that today's homes will be as outdated as high-button shoes? Will it have radiant heating, insulating windows, silent electrical and multiple switches, built-in furniture, and cabinets galore? Will it have automatic electric kitchens, deep-freeze lockers, radio-controlled heating, robot laundries, dust-proof air conditioning?

What will it cost?

Will your new home cost you more to build than before the war, or will it be less expensive? Will you get more in real values for your money or less?

It is our business to know the building industry. And it is from the building industry—the practical building professionals—that the answers to these two questions come.

First: About cost. Back in the early '20's the term "low cost" meant as much as $10,000. Yet here is the kind of house you got for your money:

—its plumbing, windows, kitchen equipment and electric wiring were inadequate.

—it had no installed kitchen cabinets, no breakfast nooks, cabinet style double sinks, no planned work spaces—not today's streamlined job.

—it gave little thought to operating economy, labor-saving, interior decoration, exterior line and beauty.

—it rarely, if ever, included built-in garages, panelled playrooms, damp-proof laundries, water-tight basements. More than one bathroom or fireplace was almost unheard of.

Yes, the day the bombs dropped on Pearl Harbor, America's practical builders were building these luxuries as necessities in the low-cost home of the '40's. And the cost was not $10,000, it was nearer $6,000.

It did not happen overnight. It was twenty years in the making. But if that is not progress, improvement, call it what you will, we don't know what is. And for this evolution, you can thank America's practical builders and building material dealers, working hand in glove with building material and equipment manufacturers. They are entitled to the credit.

Now these same practical building experts are "doing it again." Thanks to them, your post-war "Miracle Home" will embody sweeping changes:

1. New or greatly improved materials in practically every step of construction. More and bigger windows to let in the great outdoors, while protecting you from the elements. More mirrors to make your rooms look bigger and add to their comfort; friendliness.

   Bathrooms, kitchens, laundries and their equipment redesigned with an eye to beauty, utility and harmony. "Kitchen" is too ordinary a name for the glamorous place this will be in your postwar home. Heating equipment that will out-perform anything in existence before the war with considerable saving of space. Methods of construction previously unknown.

   According to your income, it will have deep-freeze, garbage disposal, and air-conditioning if you want it. Also electric laundry and dishwasher; clothes dryer, instant hot water. Every invention and gadget and improvement known to American ingenuity, will go into this post-war "Miracle Home".

   But mind you, practical gadgets; practical applications of such things as plastics, aluminum, magnesium, lightweight durables galore . . . to feed the needs and desires and preferences of America's postwar progress. Last, but not least, the recently developed dual or multi-use bathroom innovation. With all this there will be . . .

2. An even greater downward trend in proportionate cost.

3. And as a result, an even greater upward trend in value.

4. Most important of all is the financing or how will the new home be paid for. A few Victory bonds will be your down payment. Then monthly payments including interest, less, probably, than rent. Not only the house, but for a few dollars extra each month all the marvelous appliances too.

And we repeat: Thanks to America's practical builders, you won't have to wait. This "Miracle Home" is ready now—the minute the Armistice is signed.

• • •

There is, however, one looked-for change in your post-war miracle home which we tell you will not take place.

That is, Change in Appearance.

Basically, the present form of house was all right to begin with. It had to have a kitchen, bathroom, living room, bedroom. It still has to have them today.

True, your postwar "Miracle Home" will be better designed. More compact. More carefully planned for comfort, health, safety, convenience, labor-saving, economy of operation, with multiple purpose rooms.

We suggest to the American public a simple 3-point plan for postwar home buying:

RULE 1. There are many types of so-called post-war houses in model and blueprint form. Look at all of them. See what they offer.

RULE 2. Then, see your practical builder or building material dealer to get complete costs on exactly the home you want.

RULE 3. Finally, examine his costs—not in terms of dollars, but of sheer, downright value.

We advocate a strongly built house with good materials—one that can be added to or taken away from. A flimsy house will need repairs before a few years pass. A good, well-built house, outside of painting, should be entirely free from upkeep for the first ten years. Better build a little less and build good. The better you build, the larger in proportion will be your asset when you are ready to sell or trade it.

But talk to your practical builder about this. We know these building professionals. It has been our business to keep them informed for over 25 years.

They are part-and-parcel of your community. It's to their interest to have your interest at heart. So you are safe in entrusting to them your lifetime investment in the "Miracle Home" of Tomorrow.

THERE'S MORE TO A WAC THAN A UNIFORM

Perhaps you remember seeing her on the street. Swinging proudly along in her trim uniform, straight backed and self-possessed ... She is "over there" now. And she has seen things that have touched her heart, as they would yours. That is what she wants to tell you about.

★ ★ ★

"I saw them carried in from the invasion coast ... stretcher after stretcher. And I and my sister WACS did what we, as medical technicians, had been trained to do—to relieve their pain. But I have pride in believing that we did more than that; something that ofttimes means as much as medical care. Comforting, encouraging words ... the soft touch of a woman's hand. But there were so many of them and there were so few of us

That is why I urge you to become one of us now. Those gallant boys with the Purple Heart will be returning in ever-increasing numbers. They will need your care ... your guidance in readjusting themselves to a normal life.

Join us now. Not only because of patriotic pride in the uniform ... not only for adventure and travel ... not only for valuable medical training ... but because—if for no other reason—you are a woman and can give a woman's understanding and sympathy to those who have sacrificed so much for us."

★ ★ ★

For many months after victory, the service men whom Union Pacific has transported to camps and ports will be coming back to us—many in hospital cars. That is the price of peace. You can lighten their burden by joining the WAC Medical Corps. If you are between 20 and 49 years old and an American citizen, won't you mail the coupon—or inquire in person—now!

THE DUTCH RETURN TO MOROTAI.

Fifty Dutch civil servants, it has just been announced, landed with the American troops who recaptured Morotai from the Japanese. These Dutchmen are to rule the 10,000 natives. Similarly, when Gen. MacArthur's men drove the Japs out of portions of Dutch New Guinea the Dutch administration was close on their heels.

Evidently Mr. Roosevelt's policy, if it can be called a policy, is to deliver their former colonies to the European powers without attaching any conditions whatsoever. One reason these colonies were so easily conquered by the Japanese was the apathy of the natives who concluded that the new exploiters could hardly be worse than the old ones and might be better. That could happen again.

Holland could never have recovered her empire or any part of it by her own effort. Whatever she gets in the Pacific after this war she will owe wholly to us. That will be equally true of the French and almost equally true of the British.

In these circumstances we cannot wash our hands of the matter and say that the future of the colonies and their peoples is none of our business. Even tho we do not covet the territories we have taken at such great cost, the fact remains that they can be held by any nation only by force of our arms. The Dutch are at Morotai only because we let them go there. If they now exploit the natives we cannot escape a large share of the blame.

As America is going to be responsible for the preservation of order in the Pacific, we ought to impose as a first condition that we have the right to any military installations that we may need now or find we need in the future. That goes, too, for air fields and the right to use them for commercial as well as military purposes at our pleasure. Then we ought to require not only decent treatment of the natives but also a firm pledge to educate them for independence and to grant it to them when in disinterested opinion they are ready for it.

It is contrary to American instinct and tradition to hold other peoples in subjection to us against their wills. The Declaration of Independence says that to do so is immoral. It is surely no less immoral to hand over the Pacific natives unconditionally to European masters.

We have to drive the Japs out of these possessions. That leaves with us both the right and the duty to see that the colonies are decently governed and as quickly as possible liberated if that is what their people want.

FALA IN THE CAMPAIGN.

In his campaign speech last Saturday night before the teamsters' union, President Roosevelt complained that the Republicans are kicking his "little dog, Fala" around. He said it wasn't true that he had left his dog on an Aleutian Island and had sent a destroyer to fetch him.

What Mr. Roosevelt didn't explain was that nobody would have given the slightest credence to such a story about any of the Presidents who preceded him. People believed there might be something to the story of Fala's rescue because they remembered how Fala traveled, despite gasoline rationing, in solitary splendor in the back seat of a chauffeur-driven limousine thru the streets of Quebec during the first conference with Mr. Churchill; because they recalled that Mrs. Roosevelt had been given use of a military plane and the gasoline to carry her around the world, and because Mr. Roosevelt has often used United States cruisers to take him fishing. That is why the unpleasant task of denying the Fala canard was forced upon Mr. Roosevelt.

Mr. Roosevelt also failed to explain in this campaign address the one thing in which most people who will vote in November are vitally interested—whether Earl Browder and Sidney Hillman, as representatives of the Communist party and general managers and financiers of the fourth term campaign, are going to be the top men in this country if he is reëlected. Most of the Democrats who vote against Mr. Roosevelt this fall will do so because they believe that men such as Browder and Hillman will run him if he wins. He chose to dodge the issue.

A lot of the same people who heard Mr. Roosevelt last Saturday night must have listened to the radio address he gave on Nov. 4, 1938, before the congressional elections. In that speech he said: "Judge parties and candidates not merely by what they promise but . . . by the kind of people they travel with, by the kind of people who finance and promote their campaigns. By their promoters, ye shall know them."

The fourth term promoters are Browder and Hillman.

SPECULATOR.

Army headquarters in Paris has announced the arrest of 27 American soldiers in connection with black market activities there. One of them was a truck driver who had sold a truck full of army gasoline to civilians and was arrested with his pockets crammed with francs. Commenting on this incident, the army newspaper, Stars and Stripes, said: "Any soldier who marches into Paris as a liberator and within two weeks becomes a speculator deserves to be shot."

Communist cant bobs up in strange places. The truck driver who sold army gas in Paris wasn't a speculator. He was a thief. A speculator buys and sells things expecting to make a profit. That is no crime anywhere except in Russia. When Lenin liquidated the middle classes he used the word speculator as a term of contempt against all business men. The Communists in this country likewise call business men speculators because, for political reasons, the commies do not dare make their hatred for a large segment of our population too apparent right now.

It would be interesting to know what the writer who penned this particular observation for Stars and Stripes did for a living and who his pals were before he got into the army.

TWO MONUMENTS.

The Rev. John Thompson leaves two monuments. One is the Chicago temple in the loop, with its soaring spire. It is a noble structure and it will serve as a reminder of Dr. Thompson's rare combination of gifts. He was spiritually rich and he was also a man of great executive gifts.

The building is one monument. The other will be found in the hearts of a multitude who heard his preaching and knew his goodness. Dr. Thompson could have been a rich man's pastor. He chose to be every man's friend. This community will remember him in gratitude.

THE COMMUNISTS AND THEIR CANDIDATE.

THE TRIBUNE notes with pride and satisfaction that it has been singled out by the New York Communists as first among their enemies. This newspaper is in its 98th year and has a circulation of close to a million, which is to say more than the combined circulations of any two other newspapers published in Chicago. Accordingly, we don't require such a testimonial to our strength and influence as Jailbird Browder offered, but we're glad to have it.

It's no accident that the Communists fear and hate THE TRIBUNE. For nearly a century we have opposed every movement intended to weaken this country and destroy the Constitution and with it the liberties of the people. That's why the people of this community have confidence in us and why they don't have confidence in Mr. Browder and his wrecking crew. Browder can fill Madison Square Garden but he couldn't fill the Chicago Stadium. His meeting was a flop. There were many thousands of empty seats.

We're glad of that and we're glad that he came here to advertise his support of Mr. Roosevelt and the New Deal ticket. They are the Communist candidates in this election. The Communists see in Mr. Roosevelt the man who will create dissension and discord in the land; the man whose policies will produce a destructive inflation that will ruin the people; the man who, by supporting Stalin's aggressions, will breed new hatreds, new revenges, and therefore new wars in Europe. Mr. Roosevelt is their man and he dare not denounce them or reject their support because he needs it for the fourth term. They've got him where they want him and they know it, he knows it, and everybody knows it.

SUPPORT FOR A FREE PRESS.

The proposals of the United States congress to make complete freedom of the press and freedom of news collection and dissemination universal thruout the world after the war have been indorsed by several prominent Britons, including Lord Rothermere, proprietor of the London Daily Mail and chairman of the British Newspaper Proprietors' association. Officials of the Swedish government in Stockholm also have commended the plan as "in harmony with the Swedish constitutional law on freedom of the press."

Americans will welcome support for freedom of the press from any quarter, but those who are familiar with British practices in that field during the last century will not place too much credence in Lord Rothermere's statements. The British have used their press and their world wide monopoly of news dissemination as propaganda instruments for the advancement of their empire, defaming and belittling the people and the governments of other nations to build up the myth of British invincibility and superiority. The most recent example of this was taken from Lord Rothermere's own newspaper, which spread the canard that the allied military chiefs in Paris were showing favoritism to American business men, allowing them to make contacts in Paris for commercial purposes while keeping British business men out.

Americans want a world free press because it will protect the peace and prevent the creation of government propaganda machines such as the Nazis and Fascists used to drive their peoples into war. An empire press, which distorts world news for purposes of empire prestige, is also dangerous to peace, and it is the duty of our government to define free press at the peace table in the terms by which Americans know it.

BACK TO BATAAN WITH MacARTHUR.

Adm. Nimitz, in his address before the 26th annual convention of the American Legion, alluded to the appointment of Gen. MacArthur to direct the capture of the Philippines. The commander in chief of the Pacific fleet said that the navy's role will be that of protector and supporter of Gen. MacArthur's forces in the Philippine campaign.

Gen. MacArthur's appointment may be attributed to the persistence of the Bataan clan, composed of relatives of the captured Americans, to the senators and representatives who have carried the truth to the people about the New Deal's neglect of the Pacific war, and to the newspapers and public men who have called attention to his gallantry, his brilliance, and his all around fitness for top command. It has been a campaign by individual citizens and patriotic groups who placed their own country first and sought no reward except the success of American arms at the lowest possible cost in American lives.

The marines, who under a separate command have piled up a record for valor and sacrifice unequaled anywhere in this war, should welcome the appointment of Gen. MacArthur to lead the Philippine invasion. The marines will appreciate the skill with which Gen. MacArthur has won great victories at relatively small cost. He has achieved all his objectives, yet held down the casualties.

NO LAUGHING MATTER.

Bologna, whose name has come into the Italian war news, immediately suggests to the average American mind the threadbare slang word "boloney," often misspelled "baloney." It is ridiculous that this should be our primary association of ideas when the name of an ancient and distinguished city is mentioned, merely because its products happened to include an oversized type of sausage.

• • •

We are in favor of placing a taboo upon "boloney," for it has ceased to be amusing. It came into use, perhaps in the 1890s, as an attempted witticism, but it is now a nit-witticism and should be avoided.

• • •

Bologna itself never boasted that it made the largest sausages in the world, and there has been no nonsense in its history. It founded one of the earliest universities in Europe and students from everywhere assembled there, to the number of 10,000, to become learned in the law. Dante, Petrarch, and Tasso were among its alumni.

• • •

Furthermore, in the middle ages the city went in for tower building in a large way, and seems to have held the championship of Italy in this branch of architecture, for its score was 180 towers, many of them leaning. Only a few of Bologna's towers are now on view, but two of the survivors are rivals of the Leaning Tower of Pisa. They are the Asinelli, which is 320 feet high and about 4 feet out of plumb, and the Garisendi, 163 feet high and 10 feet off the perpendicular.

• • •

The difficulties of the terrain over which the allied armies are advancing toward Bologna may be illustrated by a glance at the railroad which connects it with Florence. The line worms its way across the Apennines thru 45 tunnels, two of which are more than a mile long.

THE LITTLE SOUNDS.

Night is kind to little sounds
Day has tendency to scorn:
Tree toads and their constant rounds,
Swamp frog and its somber horn. . . .
All the smug and sultry notes
Conjured deep in sleepy throats.

Night is kind to undertones:
Winds that lip the hollow logs
And the reeds with little moans;
Owls, and loons, and lonely dogs. . . .
Metronomes and castanets,
Drums and crickety duets.

Night is good and generous
To the sounds that day ignores:
Cowbells, freights, and fabulous
Summer-throated troubadors. . . .
Night is kind to little sounds,

Thoughts with a New Ribbon.

Gee! a nice, new, bold, black ribbon on my typewriter. Now to dash off 15 or 20 items for the Line, or one long one like the Duke contributes . . . hm-m-m, what was that gag I heard in the locker room? . . . O, well, I couldn't clean it up anyway . . . maybe I should try my hand at light verse . . . something like "Thirsty Days Hath September" . . . no, those liquor shortage wheezes have passed out . . . if I only had a good serial idea like Quizzicuss . . . there were some notes around here somewhere, but somebody is always hiding my stuff . . . where was I? . . . O, yes, I was trying to decide on what type of contribution to write . . . nobody likes long stuff, except the fellow who writes it . . . I think I'll do a two-liner, à la Tabarin . . . I seem to recall one about John L. Lewis, "Me and Mine," or was it Tommy Whatta Manville? . . . these new ribbons smudge terrible . . . I wish I had my old ribbon back . . . I could think better with it, besides it erased easier . . . why can't people leave things alone . . . O, well, I think I'll curl up with a good book. I don't feel like writing anyhow. Hig.

FIRE INTERVAL.

Scarlet, the clustering sumac stains the hill
To splendor, spreading where, around about,
Less potent beauty has no fire to spill
Now that the summer's warmth is running out.
Among the pines that stand majestically,
Forever green where other leaves must die,
The crimson passion of the sweet gum tree
Hurls unreluctant banners to the sky.
And thru the gold of maples, and the brown
Of elms and sycamores there comes a call
That will not be denied, and soaring down,
We catch the glory of the cardinal.
Thru winter we shall speak these glowing names—
Warmed by this interval of blended flames!

Beverley Githens.

Autumn in the Kitchen.

The smell of dill growing wild on the prairies conjures up a picture of an old, abundant life: an autumn kitchen teeming with green and yellow cucumbers enclosed in giant size Mason jars with the smell of dill in every nook and cranny of the house.

A huge cookpot, acting like a blue volcano—this was grape jelly in the making. Pears, sliced in half, smiled among cinnamon sticks and cloves. Crabapples, simmering hot, bobbed up and down in their own nectar as Ma shooed them with the big dipper into wide mouthed containers. Tomato jam, with sliced half moons of lemon, broadcast tantalizing odors. Corn and tomato relishes brewed in vinegar, spice, sugar, and everything nice to garnish future meat dishes.

The early autumn haze weaves a spell and awakens memories of a winter cupboard that groaned under the weight of bottled goodness. How much these colored jars looked like soldiers at attention as they stood in that seemingly endless line! You could be hungry then—and mean it, too. Alexander Belfuss.

First call for autumn leaves and the harvest moon. CHARLES COLLINS.

[This department answers questions related to help available to relatives of service men, in the column or by mail, if stamped, addressed envelopes are sent to Sally Joy Brown.]

B. T. writes: "I have just been notified that my only son, upon whom I am entirely dependent, has been listed as missing in action. I am in poor health and unable to work. Will my allowance now cease?"

No. Your allowance will be continued. If your son is officially declared dead, it will be discontinued.

Mrs. B. H. writes: "I would like to send some money to my husband who is now stationed in Italy. It is to be a birthday gift. Would you advise sending a money order?"

Yes. Currency should never be sent to men stationed in foreign countries. It is also possible to cable money to some a. p. o. numbers. Your local office of Western Union can advise you.

A COLD MAY REALLY BE "FLU."

WITHIN a few weeks, some of us will be confronted with episodes which start like a cold but which are far more serious. We are tempted to call the malady "influenza" and it well may be a mild type.

At any rate, the patient exhibits systemic symptoms altho the chief complaint will come from the airways. Usually there will be fever of from one to three degrees. The face feels flushed and the eyes appear bleary. Sometimes the ailment will be ushered in with a sore throat. Within a day or two, aching bones and muscles oblige the sufferer to go to bed. Most parts of the country experience an early autumn and a late winter visitation. It may prolong its stay six to eight weeks.

Where does it come from? The chances are that it is here all the time. But a peculiar combination of chilly weather, lowered resistance on the part of the individual, and possibly nasal congestion [a cold] join in ushering in the malady. As we know, the causative virus can be spread by spray from the mouth.

The sequence of events is aptly illustrated each year by the behavior of the inhabitants of a remote community in Greenland. This port is visited by only one vessel per year. Before it arrives, meetings of the natives result in outbreaks of ordinary colds. Shortly after the ship docks, however, definite attacks of "flu" will present themselves and continue intermittently for two months or longer. Some aboard must have harbored the virus of la grippe. The coryzas are the preparatory stages. They have rendered these people susceptible.

Students of bacteriology have now divided influenza into two groups—A and B. B, as a rule, is not responsible for extensive epidemics. In other words, this variety has a tendency to die out rather quickly. A, however, which produces symptoms within two or three days, not infrequently is followed by pneumonia.

If each one of us would observe scrupulously the laws of good hygiene — cover every cough and sneeze, and destroy all discharges from the nose and throat—we may not only escape ourselves but help others to safety. Let's not wave soiled handkerchiefs about as we would the national banner.

Crowds also are factors. The recent announcement that propylene glycol will render polluted air wholesome may be taken advantage of by theaters, movie houses, audience rooms, hotel lobbies, and the like. But regardless of the "starter," any respiratory disorder or any inflammation within the air passages will need to be accepted as a challenge.

We have a right to assume [although we may be wrong] that any bout which is ushered in with fever, chilly sensations, or aching muscles is influenza. The rule then is to go to bed, keep warm, drink plenty of fluid [hot tea, lemonade, etc.], and remain quiet. There is no value in stuffing our digestive tracts with food; and the only medicines required are those which add to comfort. After the episode is over, activity should not be resumed too soon. Much will depend upon the heart rate. More often than not, the ensuing weakness will come as a distinct surprise.

SHE PALPITATES.

C. R. writes: Will you explain the jawbreaker, paroxysmal tachycardia? My lady friend has this ailment and that's all she talks about.

REPLY.

Recurrent attacks of rapid heart. The cause is emotional, as a rule, and the bouts are of short duration. In this case, leading the lady to the altar may prove curative. Marriage is a great stabilizer.

PAINFUL AT FIRST.

H. J. H. writes: I recently took up bicycling, which I enjoy except that I suffer from soreness and stiffness the next day. Do you think I should continue?

REPLY.

Yes, keep at it. Symptoms will disappear as you become more accustomed to the exercise.

PAINFUL BLOOD.

L. H. writes: Is there such a thing as rheumatism of the blood?

REPLY.

We think of rheumatism as involving the muscles and joints. If the cause is an infection, germs may be transported via the blood stream.

ITCH.

F. G. writes: Is scabies a bug?

REPLY.

Yes—the itch mite [Sarcoptes scabiei].

Mae on Critics.

What we like in actresses is candor. Now comes Mae West in an interview with Yank, the army weekly. Miss West was asked what she thought about criticisms of her Broadway play, "Catherine the Great." Miss West bridled:

"I never read 'em. I'm a constructive kinda person. Don't believe in readin' destructive kinda trash. The way I figger is those critics came up against a play that was so fine, so puhfick, they knew there wasn't anything they could write in praise that would add to it. So they went off and panned it. See what I mean? That's kinda people critics are."

Sonja Counts Her Pennies.

Not terribly long ago one of the Hollywood columnists reported a wicked feud between some of the actresses and Sonja Henie. The actresses were said to be annoyed and envious because Adrian designed dresses for Miss Henie that were more beautiful than the dresses he designed for them. Not long afterward a columnist, possibly the same one, reported that Miss Henie had thrown a farewell party for her husband, Lt. Dan Topping. For this brawl Miss Henie wore a little sequin number tossed up by Adrian. The cost was a cool $1,000. "But it was worth it," the columnist rippled. "It was lovely."

Since then this mind's eye has always wistfully pictured Sonja in $1,000 worth of sequins and knew it was worth it. That same picture was in the same old eye the other day when, in thumbing thru a women's magazine, we saw a full page indorsement of a species of wallpaper which the little housewife can paste up herself. The indorsee was our Sonja. She seemed to be indorsing from experience.

The advertisment was full of pictures. The largest showed Sonja leaning over her breakfast table, spooning up porridge with a happy leer. She wore one of those little $5.95 cotton jumper models with embroidered suspenders and a ruffled white blouse, the sort of tidy housedress all we housewives wear and wash ourselves. The breakfast room had white ruffled curtains, rec valances, and wallpaper splashed with cherries and cherry blossoms.

Another picture showed Sonja smiling blissfully, her thumbs upthrust beneath her suspenders, as she says: "I'm doing it—you can, too, at one-third the old way cost . . . with no man power worries!"

The other pictures were colored sketches of Sonja in action, applying wallpaper. In each she looked progressively younger until finally she looked like Dolly Dimple taking her first step.

The text went like this:

"'Several of our rooms needed doing over badly,' relates Sonja. 'But help was hard to get, and I'd almost given up hope when I discovered the — wallpaper, already pasted so any one can put it up. I just followed the simple directions on the package and—lo and behold—I put it up like an expert! It was actually fun. . . .

"'I did it all in my spare time, starting and stopping when I pleased. And the whole cost was just about one-third the old way!'"

But it was worth it, wasn't it?

Curiosa.

The letter which came to Zenith Radionic corporation was brief and to the point: "Can you manufacture a hearing aid for a dog who is hard of hearing?"

IN DEFENSE OF THE MERCHANT MARINE.

COAST OF FRANCE, Sept. 1.—I am in receipt of a clipping from your paper in which a Sgt. Gene Thorne, from overseas, is quoted as saying that he had changed his mind about the values of unions because "that such-and-such from the merchant marine couldn't fix that winch because he had already worked his eight hours" during the Sicilian invasion. The clipping, sent me by my mother, reached me while the ship on which I am an officer was engaged in convoy work in dangerous waters in the European theater.

I see no reason why I should go to any length to refute such an obvious misstatement as that expressed by Sgt. Thorne. It just isn't so. Ships of the merchant marine have more than carried their share in this war; they have loaded and unloaded war supplies all over the world under the worst of conditions—and a great many men have died in the process. I know for a fact that the merchant marine in the combat zones knows no hours any more than do the soldiers in the front lines.

All of us hate strikes, and it is beside the point for me to comment here whether the strikes in any industry since the war started have greatly held back the war production of the United States. My only plea is for a consideration of the fact that the merchant marine has consistently delivered the goods in battle zones and continues to do so. Loose statements such as Sgt. Thorne's can permanently damage the reputation and prospect of a body of men on whose shoulders will rest a large proportion of America's post-war position in world commerce.

WILLIAM L. WATSON.

RAGWEED.

Neenah, Wis., Sept. 20.—Some of my friends and I were much pleased a few days ago to see in your paper an editorial dealing with the problem of the ragweed. As one of the sufferers from the weed, I have hoped for some years that your paper would undertake a crusade for the eradication of this pest which causes about 90 per cent of all so-called hay fever. Because of its prevalence and because its pollen is carried in the air for many miles, the effort must embrace many of the midwestern states. For this reason, only an agency as large and as influential as THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE can successfully accomplish the project. There are hundreds of thousands of hay fever victims who are doctoring the symptoms because they cannot remove the cause. H. C. HILTON.

BACHELOR'S COMPLAINT.

Oak Park, Ill., Sept. 13.—How many single persons know that they will receive approximately ½ less in old age benefits at the age of 65 years than their married brothers, even tho they pay the same amount of social security taxes? Why do our law makers discriminate against single workers, many of whom have dependents? Why should a man and wife have more old age benefit than a man and his sister? There are two persons in each instance to feed, clothe, and provide for, and each worker has paid the same amount of taxes. O. A. L.

TEAMWORK WILL HELP.

Champaign, Ill., Sept. 14.—Straps in the city buses is one of the old standby suggestions that we bus drivers make to our employers. At this time there seems to be a scarcity of materials for many things including straps or upright rails for buses. Whether such straps would serve to move passengers to the rear is doubtful. It seems that the more a passenger becomes anchored to one spot, the more difficult it is for him to give it up when the rear is vacated and new passengers come in the front.

Passengers and drivers have a mutual interest in an efficient and a safe transportation system, and teamwork will produce both. We drivers are paid the same amount whether our buses are running empty or jammed. Our interest in speeding up loading and unloading and in packing the bus is to give the most service to the greatest number of people in the short time that our schedules give us to do it. We can use all the understanding, help, and smiles that the public can give us.

A BUS DRIVER.

SEN. TRUMAN'S HARDSHIPS.

Chicago, Sept. 19.—In reading about Sen. Truman's necessity for employing his wife at $5,000 a year because he cannot live on $10,000, I came to the conclusion that the practice of holding a gun at a man's head to make him become senator against his wishes should be abolished. This practice is very bad. The simple method, of course, is to resign if you cannot live on such a salary, but I suppose the same people would cause him untold trouble. Such a plight is hard to understand. So many of us do not know how the rest of the world exists.

J. C. B.

IT'S HOW THEY BALANCE THE BUDGET.

Chicago, Sept. 20.—The indispensable man in Washington has just approved a cut in mail insurance fees and admits that the reason for doing so is that there is a deficit of $4,200,000 annually.

And with his supreme wisdom he thinks this is the way to wipe out this annual loss. Some rates drop over 50 per cent. On the same theory why weren't postal rates of 2 cents on local letters decreased to 1 cent instead of being raised to 3 cents?

IMPLIED RENEWAL OF LEASE.

Chicago, Sept. 23.—When our two and a half year lease expired on May 1 the landlord said [1] it was unnecessary for us to sign another one inasmuch as the original lease renewed itself automatically. Meanwhile the property has been put in the hands of an agent for sale. I should like to know [2] whether the automatic renewal extended the lease to May 1 of next year or [3] an additional two and a half years.

C. M.

1. The renewal by implication would be for one year at a time.
2. Yes. 3. No. See 1.

COURT REJECTS PLEAS TO BREAK SCHOOL FREEZE

'Always Before Election.'

Righeimer said that since he has been a school attorney his experience has been that "something like this always comes up before election."

Bailiffs were sent to bring Liebman back. While they were looking for him in the corridors Mrs. Frank H. White Jr., 1716 W. 103d st., co-chairman of a group of protesting parents, pleaded with Judge Lewe for 15 minutes to hear the parents' side before giving his decision.

Judge Lewe told Mrs. White that formal court procedure would have to be followed. Mrs. White accused the school board of "packing" the courtroom, and asked: "Who is Mr. Johnson that he can hand down decisions without reviewing a case? We have several questions for him to answer."

Rules No Cause for Action.

Judge Lewe then dismissed Liebman's suit for an injunction and held that there was no cause for action.

Francis French Jr., 6816 Yale av., nominal plaintiff in the injunction suit, said he would abide by the court's decision and send his four children to the school to which they were assigned.

After the court ruled, Liebman returned to the corridor and a clamor went up from the waiting crowd: "What happened?"

From a stairway between the ninth and tenth floors, Liebman appealed to the crowd to "be calm."

"I don't like the decision any more than you," he said. "But it was handed down by a court of law that you elected. On Nov. 7 there is an election." He advised the parents to "vote against the Kelly-Nash machine."

Mrs. White also asked the court crowd to be calm. "File out and act like ladies and gentlemen," she said.

Won't Go to Higher Court.

Mrs. White and Byron Summers, of the parents' organization, and Liebman, their attorney, issued a statement last night that no appeal was contemplated, altho they charged that parents had been denied a hearing.

"It is impossible to obtain consideration against the will of Mayor Kelly," they asserted. "The only successful attack which can be made upon the situation now existing in the Chicago schools is a political one, and the parents' only hope of obtaining consideration for their children is by electing John T. Dempsey to the office of state's attorney.

"Mr. Dempsey's opponent, Mr. Tuohy, was hand picked by Mayor Kelly, and will be obligated to and dominated by Mr. Kelly. We disagree on most other political questions."

Mrs. Milton Mellon, 2217 Springfield av., exhibited after the court hearing a copy of a certificate issued thru Henry Sonnenschein, 22d ward Democratic committeeman, authorizing children to reënter schools they attended last year without a physician's signature. The Sonnenschein permits bear only the signature of a notary public.

For "Any One Who Needs It."

Sonnenschein said last night that he would give a transfer certificate "to any one in the city who needs one."

The "need" does not have to be great, an investigation disclosed. Several of the transfer slips, headed "To Whom It May Concern," were distributed last Wednesday night to a group of parents who visited Sonnenschein's home. The certificates bore the signature of Sonnenschein's secretary, Edward F. Bilek Jr., notary public.

Mothers were told to write their names on the dotted lines of the already notarized slips and take them to C. E. Lang, district school superintendent, who would approve the transfers.

Last night the Auburn-Ashland schools committee adopted a resolution asserting parents in the group would refuse to send their children to schools designated by Johnson's order until a hearing has been granted by "an impartial and unbiased court." The committee met in Peace Memorial church at 78th and Bishop sts.

MRS. SKIDMORE IS DENIED $25,000 POSTED AS BOND

Federal Judge William L. Sullivan yesterday dismissed a petition of Mrs. Ethel Skidmore, widow of William R. Skidmore, former gambler who was sent to federal prison for income tax evasion, to compel Atty. Joseph Johson to return $25,000 in securities which had been posted as bond for her husband. Judge Sullivan ruled that the securities had been posted in the federal district clerk's office under Johnson's name and that the clerk should return them to him. Ownership of the securities, he said, was a matter for the Probate court to determine.

In Chicago funds are also raised for 11 overseas refugee agencies of the Jewish Welfare fund and 187 health and welfare agencies of the Community fund.

SCHOOL PATROL BOY, 14, FOILS SUICIDE EFFORT

Ralph Petersen, 14, of 4216 Potomac av., a patrol boy at Nobel school, last night rescued and revived Arthur Hansen, 34, of 1503 N. Tripp av., who police said attempted to asphyxiate himself in his automobile near Keeler and Grand avs. Observing a garden hose attached to the exhaust pipe the patrol boy pulled the motorist out of the car and applied respiration as police removed him in an ambulance. Hansen's wife, Helen, said it was his third attempt at suicide.

Cheering News Told of City's Men in Uniform

BY JUDITH CASS.

IN ADDITION to the good news in general that is being forwarded from world battle fronts, a number of Chicago families have been getting cheering news from and about sons, brothers, and husbands. Mrs. John R. Howland recently learned that her husband has been promoted from lieutenant colonel to full colonel in the army. He is stationed at the headquarters of the European theater of operations. Mrs. Howland and the children, who moved from Lake Forest to the Gibson Island club, Baltimore, Md., when he entered the service, will remain in the east for the duration of the war.

The reassuring news that awaited the Samuel A. Greeleys when they returned from New York recently concerned their son, Lt. Frederick Greeley of the army air forces, who had been reported missing in action six months ago in an air raid over Axis held territory, and revealed that he is in excellent health and "has learned a new lingo." The first word that Lt. Greeley, navigator of a flying fortress, was safe, was contained in his recent cable, "Love—keep smiling." A little more detailed news came later from a friend of Lt. Greeley, who had seen him recently.

A letter from Ensign Philip F. W. Peck Jr., erroneously reported wounded in action in the South Pacific, carried the good news to his parents in Lake Forest, the senior Mr. and Mrs. Peck, that he is safe and well.

Other Service News.

Other news from the South Pacific, tells of the chance meeting of two young Lake Foresters, Lt. Otis Carney of the marines and Ensign Charles Spalding of the naval reserve, who had not seen each other since their book, "Love at First Flight," was published a year ago last July. Recently Ensign Spalding's ship put in at the port at which Lt. Carney was stationed, and when the two friends found that they would have nearly 24 hours in the same place they stayed up all night exchanging news.

Somewhere in England Corp. Donald A. K. Brown and his army air forces squadron have received their second Presidential unit citation within a few months. At present Corp. Brown's wife and baby, Mary Mitchell, are staying in Lake Forest with young Mrs. Brown's grandmother, Mrs. Hugh Johnston McBirney, but they will move into their own garage apartment in Lake Forest shortly.

Another Presidential unit citation holder is Lt. Hamilton Mansfield Hughes, now serving with the army air forces on the China-India-Burma front. All four of the John E. Hughes' sons are serving overseas. Capt. John W. Hughes is in New Guinea with the army, and a German-printed card just received from Pvt. Milton Hughes places him in France. Lt. Marshall Hughes just has gone overseas after spending a leave in Lake Forest.

Engagement News.

From Bennington, Vt., comes word of the engagement of Miss Mary Wilson Fisher, daughter of Mrs. Edward Fisher, to Elmer F. Burnis of the naval reserve, son of Mrs. Paul Piess, also of Bennington. The engagement is of interest here because Mrs. Fisher is the former Marjorie Otis Wilson, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Wilson of Lake Shore dr.

Miss Fisher attended Miss Masters' school at Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., and Chatham hall. Her fiancé is stationed at Vero Beach, Fla.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Gallauer Jr. of Milwaukee, Wis., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Marianna Comstock, to Henry Merritt Paulson of Stuart, Fla., son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Paulson of Evanston and Palm Beach, Fla. Miss Gallauer, a graduate of the Stage Notes

Despite capacity business which shows no sign of falling off, "Oklahoma!" will leave the Erlanger the night of Jan. 6, after a record breaking Chicago engagement of 532 performances. Its probable successor will be Helen Hayes in "Harriet," opening Jan. 8. The Theater Guild musical is being reluctantly withdrawn to fill American Theater society bookings delayed from last season. It will go first to St. Louis for three weeks at the American theater, then to Milwaukee, Detroit, Cincinnati, Columbus, Buffalo, and Pittsburgh before settling down at Philadelphia's Forrest theater on April 30. It promises to return to Chicago when bookings permit. Meanwhile "Oklahoma!" mail orders are being filled at the Erlanger thru the month of November and within a short time seats for all remaining performances will be available.

Cliff Dunstan, who played the heckled house painter in "Kiss and Tell," has left the Studebaker cast and William J. McCarthy is now trying to please the Archer family in the tricky business of matching colors. Henry Antrim is in his last week as "Uncle George," with no replacement announced. . . . Alfred de Liagre Jr., producer of "The Voice of the Turtle," is coming to town for next Monday night's opening at the Selwyn, his first such trip since "Petticoat Fever" opened here about nine years ago. John Van Druten, who wrote the "Turtle," will get opening night news by telephone in Boston. He will be attending the tryout of his new play, "I Remember Mama."

Parents Should Realize a Child's Need for Activity

The little girl here is just the age to be incessantly active. Instead of trying to check her or being annoyed, her mother should show understanding of such a normal manifestation, Mrs. Bevans says in today's article. [TRIBUNE Studio Photo.]

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.
[Copyright: 1944: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Of course if you want to, you can get yourself all worn out and drop into bed exhausted when your small one is 18 months old, or whatever happens to be his "peak" of incessant activity and curiosity.

Around that age, children keep you perpetually on the jump.

If, instead of trying to check it or being annoyed by this state of affairs, you understand it and provide for it, you'll both be lots happier and you will not get so weary.

If you try to stem the tide of energy completely [and it is a strong life-force] in the small child, you'll get all tired out.

But if you realize what a dynamic being the little child is; if you will feed his needs, give him outlets for his energy, and leave him as free as is compatible with safety, you'll save your strength a lot. I don't say you won't be tired, but you won't be wasting yourself. And there won't be that discord and edginess which is in itself a source of fatigue.

Indoors and outdoors there are countless things your small one finds to do quite by himself, things that you don't need to stop his doing. Some of them may make a little trouble for you, but what is that against hours of cozy contentment?

In the kitchen when you're there; at your elbow when you put your sewing kit in order; piling up big sturdy blocks as you write a letter; hammering lustily as you do a small repair job—contentment and activity can go hand in hand if you've got the right slant. And if you have, then when you need to correct something, to give a direction, you can easily gain your child's compliance.

You and your little one can wear each other out. But it's a pity because the small boy or girl is so easy to manage and such fun, if you just get the right angle on it all.

Daily Dilemma.

What shall I plan to wear tomorrow?

How can I tell what clothes are pleasing?
By quitting time I shall be freezing!

The Bloomer Girls.

Thought your readers might be interested in a new musical comedy that probably will make New York before long but is being tried out in Philadelphia.

It's called "The Bloomer Girls" and is built around Amelia Jenks Bloomer in Seneca Falls, N. Y., who began to publish a paper in January, 1859, called The Lily—possibly the first paper of any kind published by a woman.

In the public mind, Mrs. Bloomer's name is associated chiefly with dress reform. Turning her back on the fashionable hoops of her day, Mrs. Bloomer advocated the wearing of a bodice, short skirt, and full trousers which later were called "bloomers." Press and pulpit disapproved heartily! An old play in the Chicago Public library's collection bears out the popular feeling at the time—"The Bloomer Costume, or The Figure of Fun"—an original farce by Edmund Stirling.

Says the editor of the collection: "The acknowledged power of ridicule has accomplished more to laugh down the 'Bloomer Costume' than any unwarrantable interference by rude and vulgar minds."

What do you suppose the editor would think of today's girls-in-shorts, to say nothing of Amelia Bloomer being the militant heroine of a current musical comedy?

Dewey Record Praised Before Jewish Group

BY GLADYS PRIDDY.

Mrs. Caroline Simon, member of the New York industrial board, advised women voters to think of the Presidential "candidates' expertness as administrators" as she spoke in support of Gov. Dewey before members of the Conference of Jewish Women's Organizations here yesterday.

The program, devoted to national and international issues at stake in the 1944 elections, became something of a political debate, with Mary Berkemeier Quinn of Chicago speaking with Mrs. Simon on the Republican side and Josephine Schain of New York and Katharine Elkus White of Red Bank, N. J., asking continuation of the New Deal.

Mrs. Simon presented an 11 point record, which she said was only partial, showing Dewey's ability as an administrator by his cutting of red tape and reduction of expenditures in 18 months as governor of New York.

High points of her itemized account included increased unemployment benefits for returning veterans, elimination of waste and outside racketeering in the operation of workmen's compensation in New York, and a seven million dollar annual increase in state aid to public schools.

Miss Schain, who was a delegate to the allied nations food and agriculture conference in May, 1943, asked return of the administration in terms of its foreign policy record, crediting it with establishment of the good neighbor policy, the reciprocal trade agreement program, and the international conferences.

Mrs. White, daughter of Judge Abram I. Elkus, former ambassador to Turkey, presented the Democratic viewpoint in terms of public good derived from rural electrification, the HOLC, NYA, and CCC.

Mrs. Quinn defined the campaign issue as the question whether America shall remain a republic, charging the New Deal has usurped the power of the people.

Mrs. William H. Spencer was moderator at the program which was arranged by Mrs. David Wodlinger. Mrs. Max Biesenthal is president of the conference which represents more than 100 Jewish women's groups in Chicago.

Women in War Work

By Dorothy Johnson

Mrs. Vivian Chapman, 7543 Cornell av., yesterday exchanged her Red Cross uniform for one in the WAVES, when she was sworn in at procurement headquarters, room 300, Board of Trade building.

It was when, as a Red Cross motor corps driver, she was called to drive Recruiting Specialist 3d Class Daisy McClure on a navy assignment, that Mrs. Chapman became interested in enlisting in the WAVES.

Mrs. Chapman, who will leave Oct. 5 for recruit training at Hunter college, New York City, has been a Red Cross driver for five months. Before that volunteer assignment, she worked for a year and a half in a war nursery. Her husband, Gordon, is engaged in war industry.

Chicago area women were among the first WACs to enter Paris, moving in a week after American forces marched into the city, it was announced yesterday by 6th service command headquarters.

Laden with full packs, bed rolls, and gas masks, the following Chicagoland WACs went into the French capital: Pvts. Theresa D. Kraeske, 6327 N. Francisco av.; Carol Raddatz, 715 E. 76th st.; Preva G. Lerner, 4157 Fillmore st.; Clara Kelley, 6616 Yale av.; Georgella B. Bland, 7109 Normal blvd.; Ebba R. Nielsen, 5607 W. Lake st., and Dorothy M. Dunn, 617 Gardner st., Peoria; Corps. Melba E. Webber, 4325 Kenmore av.; Faye E. Dewey, 1003 Main st., Evanston; Henri A. Ramsay, 4115 W. 147th st., Midlothian; Frances Solomon, 8201 Lowell av., Skokie, and Beatrice L. Springfield av.

A new training course for Red Cross Gray Ladies [hospital and recreation corps] will open Oct. 3 and continue thru Oct. 17, Mrs. Stuyvesant Peabody, chairman, has announced. The class will meet every Tuesday and Friday during the period of the course from 10 a. m. to noon.

Gray Ladies still are needed in civilian and military hospitals. Applicants for the instruction must be between 21 and 50, have had at least a high school education, and must be prepared to devote two days a week of hospital service.

Gray Ladies help to maintain morale among military convalescents, by writing letters for them, entertaining them, shopping, and performing many other small services which hospital staffs have not the time to do.

Registration for the training course is being held now at Red Cross headquarters, 529 S. Wabash av., Wabash 7850.

Mrs. Lillian Johnson, chairman of the motor corps of the Chicago unit of the American Women's Voluntary services, is asking for more volunteers to join the corps, which already numbers 95. At least 25 more women drivers are needed to drive staff cars on missions for the army materiel command and officers at the army hangar.

Women interested in signing up with the corps are asked to visit A. W. V. S. headquarters, 160 N. La Salle st., in person for an interview.

Fashion Puts Fine Feathers First for Fall

BY REA SEEGER.

Of all fine feathers worn by vain or not so vain women, fluttering, flattering ostrich feathers are the most elegant and most effective. There will be such a varied collection of ostrich trimmed fashions this new season that everyone will be content. There are amazingly inexpensive small hats made entirely of ostrich feathers in pastels to black, brown, scarlet, green, and bright blue. These are the fetching little trifles with a thick curl of the ostrich down around the ear. The blush pink affairs are good enough to eat.

Big picturesque hats of soft velvet have the entire brim trimmed with short ostrich plumes, and there is a pair of long wide-cuffed velvet gloves to match with the top of the cuffs outlined with ostrich. There's a sensational thick-looking new hat made of black satin with a band of ostrich a good six inches wide all round the outer edge. Others flaunt vertical plumes at the side or back, while some have wide brims with the ostrich applied very flat. All are tempting creations redolent of the elegant eighties, when a woman's best hat had at least one luxurious ostrich plume.

Bags are made of ostrich, used for entire bags or band effects. Gloves, too, have a feather trim of some sort so as to complete a well featured ensemble. Even the old time willow plume is back, and this year it's used with artistic control. Braggard, the hat maker, has sent out the most exciting of theatre or dinner hats, a tiny black felt pancake with a breathtaking long willow plume at the side that will float around the hipline. It's the best excitement of the season.

Children's Charities' Needs Are Greater, Tag Day Unit Told

Increased needs of Chicago's charities for children were discussed yesterday at a pre-tag day luncheon of the Chicago Children's Benefit league, which will conduct its 37th annual drive next Monday. The organization hopes to raise $110,000, which is $20,000 more than last year.

Frank L. Beals, assistant superintendent of schools, told 225 luncheon guests Chicago has 3,000 physically handicapped children, 500 blind or with partial sight, 700 deaf or hard of hearing, and 6,000 mentally handicapped children. More than 3,000 are maladjusted socially and need special guidance.

'The Key' . . . . . By Patricia Wentworth

(Copyright: 1944: By Patricia Wentworth Trumbull.)

SYNOPSIS: Michael Harsch, a refugee, about to enter the Ram in Marbury for tea, wonders if he has seen a ghost. He returns to Bourne. Next day his dangerous experiment is successfully completed. He tells Janice Meade his work is done. The war office can have his formula. He telephones to Sir George Randal. Late that night Harsch is shot thru the head in the church where he often went to play the organ. The church was locked. Madoc, a fellow scientist with whom Harsch lived at Prior's End, is sole executor and sole legatee. Madoc is a belligerent pacifist. Sir George Randal asks Maj. Garth Albany to investigate. Garth arrives, ostensibly to visit his Aunt Sophy, whose new companion is Medora Brown. Garth finds that Janice Meade is Madoc's secretary; the new rector has Miss Jones' house; the Misses Doncaster are still at Pennycott, but Mary Anne is now an invalid; Mrs. Mottram, a pretty widow with a daughter, 5, is at the Haven; Mr. Everton, who admires the widow, is in Meadowcroft; that Harsch was in the habit of dropping in to see Miss Brown, a fine musician, and Frederick Bush, the verger, was approached by German agents before the war. Awakened about midnight, Garth sees Medora leave the house and return in 15 minutes. Next morning on the stairs he finds a sliver of glass. He takes Aunt Sophy and Miss Brown to the inquest.

INSTALMENT VIII.

JANET QUESTIONED.

Miss Sophy had led the way to the second row of chairs upon the right. At the far end of the corresponding row on the left there sat a middle aged gentleman in tweeds which would have looked better if they had not looked quite so new; for the rest a very genial gentleman. He had a bald patch on the top of his head, a pair of ruddy cheeks, and a roving eye. It lighted upon Miss Sophy, and he immediately beamed and bowed.

Miss Sophy's grip upon Garth's arm tightened. She said "Mr. Everton!" in a whisper, and returned the bow with a hint of discreet reproof. She had never been to an inquest before, but it felt a good deal like being in church.

The room, except for the two front rows, was now packed. All at once a party of three came up the central aisle—a man with an angry crooked face and black untidy hair, a woman in whom the same odd features were blurred by plumpness and timidity, and Janice Meade. Garth would have known her anywhere. She really hadn't altered a bit, and she didn't look very much older—the little pointed face, the way her hair grew, the very bright eyes. She followed the Madocs up to the second row on the left. Miss Madoc went forward in a hesitating manner and sat down by Mr. Everton. Janice followed her. Garth's eyes were on Janice, and he was thinking how nice and cool she looked in a white tennis frock and a sort of garden hat with a black ribbon round it.

The coroner came in and took his seat. He called the medical evidence first. A hollow cheeked elderly man recited it in a rapid undertone. Garth gathered that the bullet had entered the right temple, that death must have been instantaneous, that everything pointed to the weapon having been actually in contact with the head.

The police surgeon stood down, and a police inspector took his place. He had been called to Bourne church at 12:20 a. m. on Wednesday, Sept. 9. The call was put thru by the sexton, Frederick Bush. He found Bush and Miss Janice Meade in the church when he arrived. He also found the body of Mr. Harsch lying on the floor in front of the organ. The weapon lay close to his right hand. The attitude of the body was compatible with the shot having been fired whilst Mr. Harsch was sitting at the keyboard. There was no disturbance, and no sign of a struggle. The body appeared to have slipped from it to the ground.

The moment which Janice had been dreading had arrived. She heard her name—"Call Janice Meade!" When she had been sworn, some one gave her a chair and she sat down.

"Now, Miss Meade—will you tell us in your own words just what happened on Tuesday evening. I believe you were Mr. Harsch's secretary?"

"I am Mr. Madoc's secretary. I was very pleased to do anything I could for Mr. Harsch."

"You have been an inmate of the same household—for how long?"

"For a year."

"You were on friendly terms with Mr. Hirsch?"

Her color flew up, her eyes dazzled. She said, "O yes——" on a soft, unsteady breath.

"Well, Miss Meade, will you tell us about Tuesday evening."

"Mr. Harsch came in from his laboratory at a little before 6. He had finished something that he had been working at for a long time. I gave him some tea, and we sat talking for a little. He put thru a telephone call to London."

"Was this call in connection with the work which he had finished?"

"Yes. He made an appointment with some one to come down next day."

"What happened after that?"

"We went on talking."

"Will you tell us what you were talking about."

"About his work—and about his daughter. He had a daughter of about my age. She died in Germany. We talked until nearly supper time. After supper he said he would go out."

"Did he speak of going to the church?"

"Yes—he said he would go down and play the organ and blow the clouds away."

"What did you understand him to mean by that?"

"We had been talking about his daughter."

"Her death was a tragic one?"

"I think so. But he never spoke of that—only about how pretty she was, and how gay, and how much every one loved her."

"Go on, Miss Meade. When did you become anxious about Mr. Harsch?"

"He was usually back by 10 o'clock, but I didn't get worried until much later than that, because he sometimes dropped in to see Miss Fell or Mr. Everton. But when he wasn't home by half past 11 I was really frightened. Mr. and Miss Madoc had gone to bed, so I took a torch and went down to the church. The door was locked and everything was dark. I went to Mr. Bush's house and woke him up. He brought his key and opened the door — and we found Mr. Harsch." The last words were very low. She tried to keep them steady.

The coroner said:

"I see. Very distressing for you, Miss Meade. Did you touch anything—move anything?"

"I took his hand. Mr. Bush held the torch, and we saw that he was dead."

"His hand was cold?"

"Yes, quite cold."

"Did you see the pistol?"

"Yes."

"How was it lying?"

"About six inches from his right hand."

"Did either of you touch it?"

"O, no."

"Miss Meade—you said at the beginning of your evidence that you had a long talk with Mr. Harsch. Did he seem depressed?"

"No—I don't think so."

"You said that he had just finished some work upon which he had been engaged for a long time. Did he say anything to the effect that his work was done—anything that could bear that construction?"

"No—not like that. He said it was like having a child — you brought it into the world, and then you had to let other people bring it up."

"And then you talked about his daughter who had died in tragic circumstances?"

"Yes. But he didn't talk about the sad part. He said that was all gone and not to be remembered any more."

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	2 clubs	Pass
3 spades	Pass	5 spades	Pass
6 spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

A guest in a downtown hotel found his room encircled by flames which were consuming the building. He was urged by a companion to jump out the window. "But it's the 13th floor," he argued. "This is no time to be superstitious," was his friend's heated reply.

I have seen the counterpart of this incident occur many times at the bridge table. In an emergency, maxims, adages, and superstitions should be ignored. When disaster confronts you, drastic steps are indicated.

In today's hand North and South reached a slam contract in spades on somewhat aggressive bidding, which cannot really be criticized. North felt that he had a little too much for a pressure raise to four spades. The slam, in fact, was very tempting. It will be noted that the perfect opening was required to defeat the contract.

West, torn between the opening of a trump and the deuce of hearts, finally decided on the latter. South won the opening lead, extracted trumps, cleared the ace of clubs, and discarded his losing diamond in fulfillment of the contract.

Notice that a trump opening would have had the same effect. In my opinion the diamond lead was the proper one despite the superstition involving leads from a king. The bidding plainly indicates that North must have a very good club suit which he hopes will provide discards. The opponents are obviously solid in trumps. One club trick is assured, and unless the defense can build up a trick in a hurry, the contract will probably be fulfilled. With the good club suit staring you in the face, there is a fire going on and drastic steps are necessary.

The lead of a heart prays for partner to have the king, whereas the lead of a diamond asks only for a queen. In view of the fact that the opponents have reached a slam, despite West's holding of an ace, a king, and a queen, it is extremely unlikely that partner will have as much as a king, tho there may be some slight hope that he might have a queen.

TOMORROW'S PROBLEM.

My, they play rough in the movies. After the workout Pat O'Brien gets in "Secret Command," he could accept any Hollywood party invitation without a qualm. In his sloppy joe disguise as a secret agent in pursuit of shipyard saboteurs he is bopped on the head, kicked under the chin, choked with a rope, strangled under water, socked on the solar plexus, and bonged by Cupid and the father instinct, all of which he survives with no more damage than an X of sticking plaster can cover.

Aside from its fabulous fisticuffs and some fancy high diving, the durable Mr. O'Brien's vehicle is of the B variety, destined to ride a bumpy second on double features—preferably with the operator wide awake to keep the sound track running. Its one twist in the cops and robbers pattern is that Agent O'Brien, supplied for camouflage purposes with a ready made family [Carole "Jeep" Landis and two agreeable children from the movie stockpile], permits espionage to pause in its tracks while he annexes them for keeps.

Chester Morris, with his jaw thrust out, plays O'Brien's upright brother, properly abashed when he discovers how he misjudged the family hero, but if it's acting rather than typing you want, better observe some of the pilebucks [shipyard workers to me], such as Tom Tully and Barton McLane. There's a glimpse, too, of an old-timer with presence, who revives memories of James Kirkwood. Could be?—C. C.

Beauty Shops Plan for Post-War, Too

Tomorrow is going to be a wonderful day for milady, because she no longer will have to sit under a hair dryer in a beauty shop to simmer and bake her complexion while her pin curls dry. That's the promise beauticians attending the silver anniversary convention of the American Cosmeticians National association in the Morrison hotel made yesterday.

The reason is that a new post-war method will dry the hair as it is being curled and by the time the last curl is wrapped the head will be dry—all in about 30 minues, Thomas Frank, president of the Chicago-Illinois Hairstylist guild, explained.

What's more there will be a new method of permanent waving that will delight every woman, Frank Bishinger of Chicago, said. Mr. Bishinger brought the first permanent waving machine to America from England and numbered Lillian Russell and Julia Marlowe among his first customers. The new method cannot be discussed until after the war but he promises it will be entirely different.

One of the modern contributions to the well grooming of American women which is now in use is the "no tweeze" method of shaping eyebrows, all without the aid of tweezers or discomfort.

A fashion review was held last night in the Terrace Casino to celebrate the 25th anniversary of the association.

The convention closes tonight with the annual hairstyling contest.

BY MARY MEADE.

[Copyright: 1944: By The Chicago Tribune.]

We've been almost snowed under with mail and telephone requests for canning and pickling information this year. But now we're noticing a gradual seasonal change. Readers are finishing their canning activities, and are beginning to think of the holidays. Fruit cakes are on their minds.

Fruit cakes we're going to give them, too. The cakes my staff made for a picture recipe to appear soon were declared by many of those who got to sample them "best I ever ate." There'll be a Sunday column soon on fruit cakes, with some other fine recipes. And my department has an excellent booklet called "Holiday Cookies and Fruit Cakes" 5 cents by mail.

If you are sending fruit cake overseas, choose a heavily fruited recipe and pack the cake carefully. It might be wrapped in a brandy or liqueur saturated cheesecloth, then in waxed paper, and sealed tightly in a canister or tin box before it goes into the standard overseas carton. We do not recommend sending any kind of cookies overseas, and only the most long-lived of fruit cakes should go, those really heavy with raisins and other fruit. Nuts so readily become rancid that it is not wise to put too many of them into such a cake.

An Urbana reader writes to urge me to say something more about the necessity of salvaging waste paper. "If only people would realize how necessary this paper is to protect our boys in service, and that lives depend upon the ammunition, plasma, and supplies for which the packaging situation is so serious!" She says that on a recent visit to Chicago she was dismayed at the amount of salvageable paper swirling around on the streets.

It is such a small thing to save waste paper, to salvage tin cans, and turn in waste fats when these materials are vitally necessary in carrying on the war. Let's all help!

A reader has sent me the food page of a TRIBUNE 35 years old. It's interesting to observe how recipes have changed since then. The old recipes call for "butter the size of a walnut," "a teacupful of sugar," "two large tablespoonfuls of cornstarch." There are no teacupfuls, large or small tablespoonfuls, and other such unspecific terms in today's recipes. Nor are you told to use "a hot fire" or "a low fire." You get the actual baking temperature. So cooking should be a lot easier, and more foolproof!

TURN IN WASTE FATS FOR POINTS AND PENNIES!

Egg Gravy.
[Serves four.]

3 strips bacon
2 eggs, beaten
1½ tablespoons flour
¼ teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
2 cups milk

Fry bacon until crisp. Remove from pan and keep warm. Pour off all but 2 tablespoons of fat. Add flour and seasonings to egg, beating until smooth, then stir in milk. Add to bacon fat, and cook slowly, stirring constantly, until thickened. Remove from heat and serve at once with bacon over hot buttered toast. Also good over broiled tomatoes, fish, etc. MISS VERNA JOHNSON, 2800 16th av., Moline, Ill.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Sept. 25.—Gus Eysell of Radio City Music Hall, is going to crown Greer Garson "queen of the music hall"—because of the long runs of "Mrs. Miniver," "Random Harvest," and "Madame Curie." Well, that's great. I'd be the last to take anything away from Greer. But if I were crowning anybody I'd give it to Metro, who gave her the opportunity and the finest help any gal ever had. I remember only a few years back Greer crying her eyes out on my shoulder when she was given "Goodbye, Mr. Chips"—and that one put her over. . . . Howard Hawks has two leading girls in Humphrey Bogart's new picture, so he called Tom Kelley, photographer. Kelley promptly sent over two models—Jane Copper and Martha Macvicar. Hawks' jury is still out. . . . Capt. Bob Hartzell, of the Flying Tigers, is now wanted by four studios. He has already tested for Columbia. Cecil De Mille wants him, so does Metro. He's so delighted and confused he practically stutters in his sleep. It kind of renews faith in the old town when things like this happen. Too often, I'm sorry to report, it's just the opposite. . . . "The Very Thought of You" was an original written by Tobey Wiggam. His only other writing was done at Princeton. That was poetry.

Now You May Tell One.

Barbara Hutton Grant is having the last laugh about rumors naming her next husband. One writer has it she'll marry Fred McEvoy. Fred is living in Mexico with his wife and baby. Another, that it's a famous Swede. The only Swedish man she knows is her butler. Another is supposed to be Art Landa, her lawyer, whose wife is one of her best friends. Barbara is playing tennis and sees much of Fred Brady and William Orr, and since she loves tennis, she's been watching the matches at the Los Angeles Tennis club. She can't even talk to her son, Lance, over the telephone, nor has he been able to answer her letters.

He'll Be Heard from Now.

Armand Roland, young French actor recently honorably discharged from the United States army, had been heard and not seen until Edmund Goulding cast him for Marcel in "Of Human Bondage." Roland used to dub French versions for Warners. He put French words into the mouths of Errol Flynn, John Garfield, Jack Carson, and "Sergeant York." . . . Virginia Lederer's story, "Married at Leisure," highlights many Hollywood characters, but nary a caricature of her ex-husband, Orson Welles, sullies its pages. . . . Fulton Burley tried for two years to get into the royal air force. He couldn't—sight bad. But in his first picture, "The Thrill of a Romance" he's wearing an R. A. F. uniform, and sings Canadian marching song with Lauritz Melchior.

And Still Going Strong.

Alick J. Weir called to say he had in his possession a "golden extra edition" of the London Daily Mail, printed in gold ink in honor of Queen Victoria's diamond jubilee, dated June 23, 1897. On page four, under theaters, is "Princess and the Butterfly" and in the cast—C. Aubrey Smith. . . . Columbia signed Alexis Thurn-Taxis, who's been with Universal since 1937. He'll remake "Girl of the Limberlost," another "Boston Blackie" and "Men of the Deep." . . . Gloria Saphier, cousin of the Selznick boys, has bowed out of the Myron Selznick agency. She's off to New York. . . . Edith Head's new hair-do is getting a buildup in New York. She took it from Ray Milland in "Kitty." It's in the 18th century style. . . . Altho Danielle Darrieux's husband is a well known collaborationist, both Paramount and Metro are preparing stories based on Danielle's experiences during the German occupation, and hope to get her as star. . . . Thru Esther Williams' fans, she's learned that "Bathing Beauty" has made many young girls jump in the pool, 'cause she made it glamorous. . . . Henry Blanke, Warner producer, is stealing Alfred Hitchcock's stuff. He'll be a shadow on the screen—a much smaller one that Hitch makes, however. . . . Ann Miller wears a costume in "Eadie Was a Lady" worn by Mae Howard 'way back in 1900. They sure do dig 'em out, don't they?

Thru the Looking Glass

Unless we are extremely skillful, and perfectionists as well, most of us ought to shun the exotic and the fanciful. Maybe with a lot of coaching and grooming such as Hollywood starlets receive at the hands of the experts we too could attempt to wear the dramatic and the striking kind of thing in clothes and makeup. But lacking that, it seems to us that the average girl or woman makes the most of herself when she dresses simply and makes up with naturalness.

It's better to wear too little rather than too much cheek rouge; it's better for us somewhat plain Janes to wear too little rather than too much costume jewelry. When in doubt, choose the plain, simple earring, the conservative hat, the neutral rather than the exotic shade of lipstick and nail polish. The flamboyant in accessories, in coiffure, in makeup and in clothes is always risky. The woman with instinctive chic and natural dash can get away with these things; she will be striking. The one who is not endowed with these gifts will completely miss the effect she is striving for. She'll be branded as having poor taste; in simple classic clothes and wearing natural attractive makeup she'll be pleasing.

This is especially true as regards hair arrangement. There is always a temptation to copy the coiffure created for and worn with great success by some glamorous creature of the stage, the screen or the rotogravure pages. But it is risky. Modified, it can be perfect for you—maybe. Your own individual style, even your temperament, should influence your choice. If you're frankly average—neither strikingly beautiful nor decidedly unattractive, and most of us fall in this middle group—simple styles and natural makeup are your best bet.

THE QUESTION.

Randolph st. Illinois Central station.

THE ANSWERS.

Mrs. Jack Kurnik, housewife, 13200 Houston av. — Besides the usual articles and contents in my purse such as make-up, ration books, wallet, and so on, I often use my purse to carry "baby clothes," including safety pins and the baby's bottle. When I'm downtown shopping, I put small packages in my purse.

Joan Burkhard, student, 8201 Kenwood av.—I'm always finding stuff that I like to take with me and I have to have something to put it in. If I carry a large enough purse, there's plenty of allowance to take care of all the things I may want to carry. A large purse is convenient and it's easy to hang onto.

Mrs. Donald Simon, clerk, 7951 Yates av.—Well, in my purse right now I have make-up, some letters that have to be mailed, wallet, comb, two rolls of movie film that has to be developed, address book, a couple of handkerchiefs, some pictures of friends and a coin purse. Where would I put them if I didn't have a large purse?

Phyllis Colnon, student, 7147 Paxton av.—The average man today has a wallet in one pocket, handkerchief in the other, change in another, an address book and a notebook in his inside coat pocket. Some men carry a brief case with an electric razor in it. We girls have no pockets, so we need a large handbag.

Eleanor Klinka, control pit operator, 606 S. State rd., Arlington Heights—There's really not much in my purse except a makeup kit, letters from friends, train tickets, keys, handkerchiefs, a billfold, and a few other miscellaneous articles. But by the time you put them all together it takes a big bag to hold it all.

Yom Kippur Observance to Begin Tonight

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Yom Kippur, the Jewish day of repentance, opens at sundown tonight with a solemn prayer of Kol Nidrei, chanted to its traditional melody, in all synagogs thruout the world. "Kol Nidrei," the first words of the opening prayer, signify "all vows." The prayer, in Aramaic, is a simple one asking that all vows and oaths made in the last year be absolved and forgiven.

Despite a generally accepted idea that mankind is progressing morally, Jewish thought adheres to the doctrine of sin, which Judaism considers a potent agency for moral and religious regeneration. The prayers at Yom Kippur therefore, emphasize the fact that while man may be heir to all the technologies he is still prone to violate the dictates of God.

Service at Temple Sholom, 3480 Lake Shore dr. will begin at 8 p. m., conducted by Rabbi Louis Binstock who will preach on the text "Great to Be Alive." The memorial service will be held at 3:30 p. m. tomorrow. Rabbi Solomon Goldman and Rabbi Nathan Gaynor will officiate at Anshe Emet, Pine Grove at Grace st., assisted by Cantor Moses Silverman and a choir of 50 voices.

Emmanuel congregation, 701 Buckingham pl. will hold services at the Uptown temple, 941 Lawrence av., conducted by Dr. Felix A. Levy whose sermon topic will be "Remember Us Unto Life." Rabbi Benjamin A. Daskal, spiritual leader of Congregation Rodfei Zedek, will hold services tonight at Gardiner army hospital, 1660 Hyde Park blvd.

Rabbi Jacob J. Weinstein will hold Yom Kippur service at K. A. M. temple, 920 E. 50th st., at 7:45 p. m. tonight. His sermon topic is a paraphrase of the Sibylline oracle "The mills of the gods grind slow and fine." South Shore congregation's services will be at 8:15 p. m. tonight, conducted by Dr. G. George Fox, and tomorrow at 10 a. m., followed by a children's service at 1 p. m. and a memorial service at 3 p. m.

Dr. Sheldon H. Blank of the faculty of Hebrew Union college, Cincinnati, O., is serving as guest rabbi during the Jewish high holy days at Temple B'nai Jehoshua, 1606 W. Cullerton av. Kol Nidrei will begin at 8 p. m. tonight. Services at the Chicago Loop Orthodox synagog, 16 S. Clark st., will be conducted by Dr. Elias Gamze, with David Itkin as cantor. Yom Kippur will be at 6 p. m. tonight and the memorial service at 10 a. m. tomorrow.

For WACs of Jewish faith in the Mediterranean area Chaplain Henry Tavel, Wilmington, Del., reports that services will be held on Yom Kippur in 30 centers of Italy, North Africa, and France.

Spiritual leaders of Judaism point out that among the great teachings of Yom Kippur is the stress on democratic ideals, which is emphasized in the liturgy by the reading of the Book of Jonah with its particular emphasis of the equality of all men before God.

Mrs. Ed. W., Lansing, Mich.—I patched my soapstone tubs in the corners where they were leaking by packing spaces with soft cotton string smeared with lead paste. I let these dry for a week or so until hard, and now tubs seem as good as new.

BROWNS BLANK RED SOX; TIE TIGERS FOR LEAD

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD.

THE National Football league has only three of its charter members left—the two Chicago clubs and the Green Bay Packers. . . . Says Coach Dud DeGroot of the Washington Redskins: "The Bears are the team to beat again in the west. In the east, the Brooklyn Tigers look toughest." . . . The Brooklyn eleven never has tied or beaten the Packers in an eight game series extending back to 1931. . . . Ohio State's Tom Keane is hailed as one of the brightest half back prospects ever to don a Buckeye uniform. . . . Bill Lee of the Phillies has a clean slate of four victories against the Giants this season. . . . Ned Day, who will conduct THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S bowling school, must be a pretty fair instructor. . . . He taught Rudy Pugel and together they advanced to the national two-man championship. . . . Texas Christian's football schedule will extend into four months. . . . The Horned Frogs played their opener Saturday night. . . . They will close in Dallas with the Mustangs of Southern Methodist university. . . . Eight members of the current T. C. U. squad hold medical discharges from the army, navy or marine corps. . . . Pennant sentiment in Cleveland is about equally divided between the Browns and the Tigers. . . . Both managers—Steve O'Neill of Detroit and Luke Sewell of St. Louis—were popular Indian catchers in their playing days. . . . The Pirates have finished in the National league's first division 36 times in 45 years, including the current season. . . . Big Bill Tilden used a 13½ ounce racket, the lightest of any of the male stars, when he was winning championships and Davis cups. . . . Don Budge used the heaviest, a veritable bludgeon weighing 16 ounces. . . . Helen Wills Moody swung one weighing 15½ ounces. . . .

When the war is over, Lt. Col. Jim Thorsen, former Oregon State athlete, wants to go back to Romania, but, let him tell it: "I want to find out who was playing baseball about 20 flying minutes out of Ploesti. . . . I know exactly where to look. I was flying a Mustang fighter on one of our missions against Ploesti and this baseball diamond suddenly loomed up before us. . . . It was unmistakably that, for a baseball diamond is one thing you can't miss from the air. Furthermore, a game was going on, which we didn't disturb. . . . Near-by was the swellest, clearest looking swimming pool you ever saw. I had the darnedest urge to glide down for a swim! After this is all over, I want to go back, locate this place and find out who was playing the American game of baseball in a Romania at war, who won and how come—and I might even take a delayed plunge into that enticing pool." . . . Harry Davis, University of California ticket manager, reports football ticket sales to date are far ahead of last year's demand. . . . The 42 points the Packers scored against the Bears Sunday was the highest total ever yielded by the Chicagoans in a National Football league game. . . . In 1929, the Chicago Cardinals, led by Ernie Nevers, scored 40 points on the Bears. . . . That same season the Giants ran up 34. . .

And Life Goes On.

Last night I passed a little house
Perched on the side of a hill,
The curtains were up, I glanced inside,
You know, as passers-by will.

A group sat around a table
In a room all cheery and bright,
And a child was cutting a birthday cake
With six tiny candles alight.

This, I thought, is exactly
How the boys would wish it to be,
This is the way they picture it
From far places across the sea.

The endearing rites they entail,
Make just the sort of reading
They love when they get their mail.

Yes, this, I thought, is America,
The lights on a little child's birthday cake

These Are Our Boys.

My lieutenant friend and I had finished a long discussion over a few drinks in a Galesburg hotel. He had been thru 19 months of tough combat in the Southwest Pacific. Altho he related many of his harrowing experiences, I knew he wished to spare me of some of the most horrible—too gruesome to recall even to his own memory. He wanted to forget.

Returning to Monmouth, I was deeply engrossed in our conversation when suddenly I felt him apply the brakes. They remonstrated with sharp squeals, and I felt the car swerve to the right. Quickly glancing ahead I saw a 6 weeks old rabbit casually hop from the highway, innocently unaware of its danger.

Have our boys changed? Has this world-wide destruction of life embittered them? My little story answers that question.

INDIANA SHIFT FAILS TO CHECK ILLINOIS' SPEED

BY WILFRID SMITH.

When Indiana university started a six man defensive line supported by three line backers last Saturday at Champaign to stop Illinois' running plays from the T formation, the shift in personnel from offensive positions was confusing at first glance. Actually, however, there were only two key moves in the defensive formation designed to protect against the superior speed of the Illini half backs, Eddie Bray, Paul Patterson, and Buddy Young.

This 6-3-2 defense was Indiana's fundamental formation altho other alignments naturally were used on third and fourth downs. It was designed to give maximum protection at the flanks on sweeping runs, since six men can be spread wider, and give three backersup for the flanks on quick opening plays.

Not as Complicated as It Seems.

The three men backing up the line and their attack assignments were: Bob Miller, left half; John Cannady, quarter back, and George Sundheim [or Harry Jagade], full back. The defensive half backs were Abe Addams and Deranek.

Indiana Lacks Replacements.

Indiana acknowledged Illinois' superior speed and the Hoosiers, as the game proved, also lacked line replacements. J. C. Coffee, a guard last year, played defensive tackle, for instance. Indiana's defense did prevent Illinois from scoring on sweeping runs. It failed, however, to stop the half backs on quick slashes thru the line for Patterson, a consistent ground gainer, went 30 yards on this type of play to score the touchdown which tied the game 12 to 12 in the third period.

Coach Bo McMillin of Indiana and Coach Ray Eliot each may be credited with directing successful touchdown drives. McMillin undoubtedly sent in instructions which led to Indiana's first touchdown and Eliot probably was instrumental in Illinois getting its first score.

PITTRO BEATEN BY PARHAM IN MARIGOLD BOUT

Charley Parham, Milwaukee 141 pounder, decisively beat Jerry Pittro, Chicago, in an eight round slugging match in Marigold Gardens last night.

Gene Spencer, South Chicago lightweight, snapped Johnny Bratton's string of five straight victories by beating the 1944 Chicagoland Golden Gloves 135 pound finalist in an eight round semi-windup.

It was Bratton's first professional defeat.

Collins Brown, this year's Golden Gloves middleweight title holder, remained undefeated as a money fighter when he conquered Al Clark of Detroit in a six round event. They exchanged knockdowns. Al Jackson knocked out Fred [Buddy] Marino in the second round, and Claude [Lad] Ellison stopped Lindy Elliott, also in the second round.

LUCKMAN LOST TO BEARS UNTIL NOV. 5 BATTLE

BY EDWARD PRELL.

The Chicago Bears will play their next four league games, plus Sunday's exhibition against the Washington Redskins in Chicago, without benefit of Ensign Sid Luckman of the maritime service. It was learned yesterday that Luckman's next appearance with the defending National Football league champions is scheduled for Nov. 5 when the Green Bay Packers will come to Wrigley field.

Luckman expects to go on sea duty immediately, and whether he will be in Chicago on Nov. 5 depends on the speed of the boat or the length of the trip.

Meanwhile, the Bears' coaches gave high praise to the chunky quarter back for his spectacular performance in Sunday's 42 to 28 defeat at Green Bay.

Mistakes Are Costly.

"He told us he couldn't get started in the first half," reported Co-Coach Luke Johnsos. "He was calling the wrong plays at times—including the one on fourth down when we lost the ball on our 25 yard line in the first quarter. A golfer can't be idle for three weeks and win a championship tournament. It's the same way in football."

Johnsos suggested that mistakes of freshman Bears, which are to be expected, were costly. Bob Margarita, the rookie left half back, played a sparkling game, but it was his failure to fall on a lateral Luckman aimed at him which gave the Packers one of their first half scoring opportunities. The ball bounced around for seconds and finally, Charley Brock, Green Bay's wide-awake center, picked up the ball and ran with it across the Chicago goal. It wasn't a touchdown—but it was the Packers' ball at the spot of recovery and they proceeded to score before losing possession.

Have Plenty of Fight.

"We'll improve as the season goes along," said Johnsos. "But we're still a question mark team because of all those new men. One thing we liked—the Bears didn't quit after getting behind by four touchdowns. That's what we liked about 'em. Our running game was beginning to click at the finish, too. I'm sure we would have scored after Luckman's interception in the fourth quarter. The Packers really were down at this point of the game."

But Luckman's interception was canceled when a Bear was caught for holding. The 15 yard penalty gave the ball to Green Bay on the Chicago 45.

"That brought 'em back to life," said Luke. Lou Brock proceeded to run 41 yards for a touchdown.

BOSTON YANKS PLAY EAGLES IN OPENER TONIGHT

Boston, Mass., Sept. 25 (AP).—The Boston Yanks, newest member of the National Football league, will open their season against the Philadelphia Eagles in Fenway park tomorrow night.

It also will be the league opener for the Eagles, who appear to have suffered only slight losses in man power.

P. G. A. Elects

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Alex Cunningham of North Shore and Eddie Bush of Oak Park yesterday were reëlected president and secretary-treasurer, respectively, of the Illinois section of the Professional Golfers' Association of America at the annual fall meeting in the Morrison hotel. Cunningham and Bush also will serve as the section's delegates in the annual national convention of the organization, to be held in Chicago in November.

The Illinois section this year concluded one of the most successful seasons in its history. President Cunningham and his associates, in line with the policy outlined at the 1943 national convention, emphasized the value of golf in rehabilitating wounded veterans of World War II. Today, a number of Illinois P. G. A. members plan to give a demonstration for the convalescent service men now stationed at Gardner hospital, a program they have followed thruout the summer.

N. U. Strength Unknown for Badger Game

Coach Lynn Waldorf will send Northwestern's Wildcats into their Big Nine opener with Wisconsin in Dyche stadium Saturday still uncertain as to the strength of the team despite last week's 62 to 0 rout of DePauw. The one-sided nature of the game failed to provide a real test of the 1944 N. U. eleven.

The wide open battle for all four positions in the Purple back field was apparent against DePauw and certainly gave the coaches little basis on which to form definite conclusions. All three left half back candidates, Johnny Yungwirth, Bruce Bairstow, and Bill Roper, gave impressive performances.

BADGERS CHECK OFFENSE.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 25 [Special].—The Wisconsin squad brushed up on offense today after a chalk talk and the scouts' report on the Northwestern team, against whom the Badgers open their season in Evanston on Saturday. The Badgers will have two scrimmage sessions tomorrow and Wednesday and should be fit by that time for the Wildcats.

MICHIGAN VARSITY RESTS.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 25 [Special].—Players who saw most of the action in Michigan's victory over Marquette in Milwaukee Saturday night took things easy today while those who rode the bench against the Hilltoppers went thru a scrimmage session in demonstration of Indiana plays.

The Wolverines meet Indiana here Saturday in Michigan's opening Big Nine game. Indiana was defeated by Illinois in both schools' 1944 Western conference debut last week.

Fight Decisions

LAST NIGHT.

At Brooklyn—Harold Green beat Ernie Ribinson [8]; Willie Shanks beat J. C. Wilkins [8]; Al Pennino knocked out Rocco Progano [4]; Jimmy Davis and Johnny Taylor drew [4].

YANKEES WIN 2 FROM SOX; STAY IN TITLE RACE

The Cubs defeated the Phils twice last night, winning a twilight game, 7 to 6, and a night game, 4 to 1. Story on next page

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The New York Yankees beat the White Sox yesterday before 3,807 in Comiskey park, 3 to 1 in 12 innings and 5 to 4 in nine, to get back into the American league pennant race. They got back not as a roarin' threat exactly, but as much as the day's maximum possibilities allowed—and now are three games off the pace with six games to go.

The Yanks have six games in which to make up the three game distance from the top of the league—one with the Sox tonight, an afternoon game with the Sox tomorrow and four single afternoon games with the Browns to the end of the season. After they wind up with the Athletics the Tigers will close with four against the Washington Senators.

A's Victory Stirs Yanks.

The Yankees really perked up the instant the Philadelphia A's victory over the Tigers was posted on the Comiskey Park scoreboard. It was in the 12th inning of the first game and the New Yorkers promptly made two runs to break a 1 to 1 tie which had prevailed after the fifth inning. The White Sox didn't score in the home 12th so the game ended a 3 to 1 victory for the New Yorkers.

Snuffy Stirnweiss, who had scored after tripling in the first inning, started the 12th inning rally seconds after the Philadelphia-Detroit score was posted. He launched the victory surge with a single to center. Bud Metheny sacrificed and Stirnweiss stayed on second while Orval Grove was throwing out Herschel Martin. Johnny Lindell tripled to right center, scoring Stirnweiss with the winning run, and Lindell scored on Nick Etten's double.

Martin Hits Two Homers.

The story of the second game is mostly a record of Martin's bat. The outfielder obtained from Milwaukee in midseason drove in all the New York runs with two homers, one with Stirnweiss and Metheny on base in the fourth inning and the other with Metheny on base in the seventh.

Philadelphia Hands Detroit 2 to 1 Setback

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 25 (AP).—Russ Christopher limited the Detroit Tigers to four hits today as the Philadelphia Athletics won the opener of a three game series, 2 to 1, before 5,881.

Christopher, beating the Tigers for the second time this season, pitched brilliant ball in gaining his 13th victory of the season. Three of Detroit's hits were infield scratches and only six balls went to the Philadelphia outfield all afternoon.

Athletics Win Game in Eighth.

Irvin Hall's double leading off the Philadelphia eighth inning, followed by Ford Garrison's single over second, provided the winning run, breaking a 1 to 1 tie and sending Ruffus Gentry down to his 14th defeat. Gentry had won four in a row before today.

Philadelphia scored first in the second when Dick Siebert singled, took second as Eddie Mayo dropped the ball on a double play pivot, moved to third when Charley Metro walked to fill the bases, and scored as Edgar Busch hit into a double play.

Tie Score Without a Hit.

Detroit came right back to tie it up in the same inning without benefit of a hit. Dick Wakefield walked and was forced at second by Jimmy Outlaw. Two were out when Joe Hoover bounced to Metro at third, but Metro threw the ball away, Outlaw scoring all the way from first. Score:

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 25.—The St. Louis Browns battled back into a tie for the American league lead tonight by beating the Boston Red Sox, 3 to 0. The deadlock for the lead with Detroit also was made possible when the Athletics defeated the Tigers this afternoon, 2 to 1.

Nelson Potter, the Browns' right hander, went the route and limited the Red Sox to two hits as they dropped their ninth successive game. Clem Dreisewerd was the starting hurler for the Red Sox.

Only Three Sox Reach Base.

Potter pitched eight innings of hitless baseball and his game was marred only by two consecutive scratch singles in the third inning by Roy Partee and Skeeter Newsome. The Sox had only one base runner after that third inning, Newsome, who reached first in the eighth on an error by George McQuinn. Potter fanned seven to achieve his 18th victory of the season.

The game was witnessed by 11,077 and was played in one hour and 20 minutes, fastest for any contest in St. Louis this year.

Rookie Drives in Laabs.

Chet Laabs and a rookie outfielder from Toledo, Boris Martin, were the offensive heroes. In the first inning, with two out, Laabs smashed a home run. This 1 to 0 advantage held up until the seventh when Laabs carried in another St. Louis score. He singled, moved up on a sacrifice and scored on Martin's single. Martin doubled in the second inning, but was trapped and ran down on Mark Christman's infield single.

The Browns picked up a third run in the eighth on three singles off Red Barrett, who succeeded Dreisewerd.

THE Yankees, despite winning a double header yesterday from the White Sox, were virtually eliminated from the tight American league race with time running short. Each of the co-leaders, the St. Louis Browns and Detroit Tigers, must lose three of their six remaining games for the Yanks to get a tie even if the New Yorkers win their final six. Four victories by either of the deadlocked teams would be enough to win the flag as far as the Yanks' chances are concerned. The figures:

CUBS BEAT PHILS IN 10TH, 7 TO 6, THEN WIN, 4-1

Need One More Victory to Clinch Fourth Place.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 25.—After struggling thru 10 innings in the first act and the customary nine in the next performance, the Cubs packed up two decisions for themselves this evening in one of those twi-night doubleheaders designed to catch the unwary in search of amusement. About a thousand of them showed up, their reward being 7 to 6 and 4 to 1 beatings for their favorites — the eighth place Phillies.

Charley Grimm's boys now can clinch fourth place with one more victory or one defeat for the Giants.

Vandenberg Rescues Gassaway.

The Cubs started Charles Gassaway, a recent importee from Milwaukee, in the alleged twilight game in which the bulbs began to glow in the second inning and while the southpaw was no pitching marvel he at least went into the ninth with a two run lead. He lost that quickly as well as his maiden assignment when Ron Northey burst forth with a two run homer. But Rescuer Hi Vandenberg won an easy verdict for himself in the 10th when Dewey Williams tripled off Chet Covington and rode home on a single by Roy Hughes.

The Cubs had more than a little trouble making a success of Claude Passeau's work in the second game. The Phils got a one run lead which the Cubs reduced to a tie in the fourth when Phil Cavarretta doubled and Dom Dallessandro singled against Kewpie Barrett in the fourth.

Pafko Breaks Deadlock.

This deadlock wasn't broken until the seventh when Andy Pafko, after walking, scored on a single by Charley Brewster. In the next inning they added two more that weren't needed, the contributing factors being a hit by pitcher item of which Bill Nicholson was the victim, a single by Dom Dallessandro, a walk to Andy Pafko, single by Don Johnson and an error on the latter's hit by Buster Adams.

WPB's Shell Mirage Draws Hunters' Ire

BY BOB BECKER.

The amount of upland game on farms in the northwest, the tremendous crop of ducks on prairie lakes and sloughs, and the way the farmers and sportsmen are making sarcastic remarks about the WPB's phony "quota" of four boxes of shotgun shells per hunter when it's impossible to buy that many shells, are three highlights of our recent trip to the game fields of North Dakota.

We checked a number of stores on the shotgun shell situation, and we talked with conservation officials and many sportsmen on this trip. Every one we talked to resented the way the WPB set up that beautiful mirage leading each hunter to expect four boxes of shotgun shells when it must have been known that such a quota was not available at this time.

Wisconsin Expected Relief.

Now the Wisconsin department of conservation makes official comment on the shell situation as follows:

"The duck season opened with a continuing shortage of shotgun shells and dealers report they have no assurance of shells for the upland game bird season. Some relief from the shortage that exsited last year was expected this year."

As for the duck situation in the northwest these comments from our North Dakota notebook tell part of the story: "Every pothole we've seen has ducks in it. And we've seen plenty. Widgeon, teal, and mallards head the list.

Give Farmers Headaches.

"Ducks not only are eating many bushels of the farmer's grain but thousands of the birds trampling the swathed barley and wheat are doing additional damage to the crop. Been watching ducks heading for the grain fields. What a sight."

IRISH LOSE TWO FOR SATURDAY'S CLASH WITH PITT

Notre Dame, Ind., Sept. 25 (Special).—Notre Dame, stepping up preparation for Saturday's opening football contest, against the University of Pittsburgh in Pittsburgh, today lost two squad members. X-rays disclosed that George Ratterman, reserve quarter back, has a broken collar bone as a result of Saturday's scrimmage. George Cibula, a guard, was called by the army.

ILLINI LOSE CENTERS.

Champaign, Ill., Sept. 25 (Special).—The Illinois football squad opened tryouts for center today, following a series of mishaps which cut the squad to one candidate at this position.

In last week's Indiana game, Emil Tomanek of Cicero, suffered a break in a small bone in his hand, and George Bujan of Christopher, Ill., sprained an ankle for the second time this season. Neither is expected to play at Great Lakes Saturday. Since John McCormack of Chicago, No. 3 at this post, enlisted in the navy last week, this throws the entire burden upon Otho Bartholow, Champaign, who started the season as the fourth-string snapperback.

MARQUETTE FEARS PURDUE.

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 25 (Special).—Marquette university players were told today they face a difficult assignment in Saturday's game against Purdue in Lafayette.

Line Coach Carl E. (Bus) Owen, who scouted Purdue while it was losing to Great Lakes, said the Boilermakers are almost as strong as in 1943, when they were undefeated and shared the Western conference title with Michigan.

NO INJURIES AT PURDUE.

Lafayette, Ind., Sept. 25 (Special).—Coach Cecil Isbell sent the Purdue squad thru a light drill this afternoon in preparation for the home opener with Marquette Saturday.

The Boilermakers held a touch football workout as they attempted to loosen up sore muscles and work off the bumps and bruises accumulated at Great Lakes. There were no serious injuries and the squad will be at full strength for Marquette.

HOERNSCHEMEYER READY.

Bloomington, Ind., Sept. 25 (Special).—Bob Hoernschemeyer, Indiana passing star may be ready for full duty against Michigan Saturday at Ann Arbor, Coach Bo McMillin said today. The Hoosiers worked on defensive spacing against Michigan's offense and on timing of offensive plays.

GOPHER RESERVES DRILL.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 25 (Special).—Coach George Hauser gave Minnesota varsity players who playedagainst Iowa Seahawks Saturday a day off today, and conducted a scrimmage for the Gopher reserves in an effort to develop some new strength for the Nebraska game here Saturday.

The Gopher head coach was pretty well satisfied with the play of his forwards, but was convinced he needed more depth and strength in the backfield.

PLANS MADE FOR ANNUAL BENEFIT PREP CONTEST

Plans for the annual Sisters of Mercy benefit football game between Leo and St. Rita High schools, to be played Sunday, Oct. 22, in Comiskey park, were made last night at a dinner meeting attended by 150 in Mercy High school.

Sheriff M. A. Mulcahy was appointed chairman of the ticket committee. Tickets for the game will go on sale immediately.

YALE PLAYS SATURDAY.

BARES CARMEL HEIRESS' STORY OF AID TO BOY

Deputy Opens Testimony in Ranch Slaying.

Salinas, Cal., Sept. 25 [Special].—Deputy Sheriff Gene Trenner, testifying at the opening of the state's case against Mrs. Frances Andrews, accused of the slaying last July 15 of Jay Lovett, 19, said the Carmel valley ranch heiress told him she once took the farm boy neighbor on a trip to San Francisco with her.

Trenner also testified that the 38 year old Mrs. Andrews said she had paid certain of young Lovett's medical and dental bills. Trenner said he was called to Carmel valley after the slaying and found Lovett's body in a ditch near the Andrews home.

Defense Charges Suicide.

Mrs. Andrews contends he must have taken his own life with her pistol. The prosecution insists that Mrs. Andrews was motivated by jealousy and shot Lovett.

Dr. A. A. Arehart, autopsy surgeon, testified today there were no powder burns around Lovett's head wound.

Both witnesses were sharply cross-examined by Leo Friedman, defense attorney, this questioning revealing that police failed to place identification marks on the death gun or the shells, and that no paraffin tests were made of Lovett's hands to determine if he had fired the gun himself.

Suicide Called Unlikely.

Dist. Atty. Anthony Brazil told the jury when it was sworn in Friday that Lovett was either murdered or committed suicide and that he loved life and had no motive to kill himself. Brazil has charged Mrs. Andrews was jealous of asserted attentions by Lovett to another woman.

Mrs. Andrews is a daughter of L. C. Fertig, wealthy horse breeder, and the wife of Corp. Frank Andrews, a sculptor now in the army.

COLLEAGUES PAY A FINAL TRIBUTE TO 'JUDGE' M'KAY

Newspaper men young and old attended funeral services yesterday for William Kennedy McKay, who had been reporter, editor, and correspondent for more than 50 years. He died Saturday morning in his home at 126 S. Ridgeland av., Oak Park.

Judge McKay, as he was familiarly known, was Chicago correspondent of the New York Daily News for 20 years. Formerly he was employed by THE TRIBUNE and earlier he had been managing editor of five newspapers, three of them in other cities.

The Rev. John Evans, religion editor of THE TRIBUNE, conducted the rites, first at Osgood's chapel, 523 Lake st., Oak Park, and then in Graceland cemetery. He spoke of McKay's charity for his fellow men, and of his "sympathetic understanding" of the frailties of human nature, a quality which the speaker, who is both clergyman and newspaper man, said is general to the newspaper profession and is possessed by some doctors and some clergymen. McKay, he said, was a brilliant example of a man with a great love for his fellow man. Those present said, too, that, in addition, he had been a great newspaper man — the highest tribute they could pay to him.

REV. R. S. HYDE, RETIRED PASTOR HERE, DIES AT 72

The Rev. R. Scott Hyde, 72, former Chicago western district superintendent of the Rock River conference of the Methodist church, died yesterday in Wesley Memorial hospital after an illness of four months.

Dr. Hyde, who lived at 227 N. Lombard av., Oak Park, was district superintendent from 1931 to 1938, when he retired from the active ministry. He was pastor of the Cuyler Avenue Methodist church in Oak Park from 1926 to 1931, and previously had been assigned to Ravenswood and Woodlawn churches. He was born in Moore's Hill, Ind., in 1873, and was graduated from Moore's Hill college, now Evansville college.

Services will be held at 1:30 p. m. tomorrow at the Cuyler Avenue church in Oak Park. Dr. Hyde is survived by his widow, Gertrude; a daughter, Mrs. Hortense Izard of Chicago, a brother, the Rev. Preston R. Hyde, a Methodist minister in Le Roy, O., and a sister, Mrs. Thomas Staver of Indianapolis, Ind.

TAKE HEAT OFF BY SHOVELING SMOKING COAL

Two men were busy yesterday at 6651 Newgard av. shoveling 60 tons of smoking coal out of the basement and into the alley. After it was all out, the two shovel wielders planned to shovel it all back in today.

Mrs. Harry Zimmerman, whose apartment is over the coal storage bin, tried to get relief for five days from the coal, which had begun smoking from spontaneous combustion. Smoke and fumes seeping into her living quarters had caused her to call the janitor, the landlord, the board of health, the fire department, and a consulting engineer, who said the coal should be aired.

The landlord, Henry Wilansky, 6538 N. Francisco av., said he hoped the shovelers wouldn't quit before they'd finished the two way job on the stoker fuel.

MINES ASK BAR TO HEARINGS ON FOREMAN ISSUE

Washington, D. C., Sept. 25 (AP).—Eight West Virginia coal mining companies today asked federal district court to intervene in government proceedings growing out of the United Mine Workers campaign to organize mine supervisory employes.

The operators petitioned the court to restrain the national war labor and labor relations boards from holding hearings on the issue and conducting strike ballots among the supervisors and technical employes. The petition said these boards are "being used" by the UMW "to breach a bona fide contract" between the UMW and the coal companies.

Question Jurisdiction.

The petition, on which the court ordered a hearing next Monday, contended that the NLRB has no jurisdiction to hold a strike election and the WLB has no jurisdiction to hold hearings because no "labor dispute" exists within the meaning of the war labor disputes act. The operators argued that the supervisory forces are a part of management and a dispute, if any existed, is not legally within the jurisdictions of the two boards.

Some mine foremen have joined the United Clerical, Technical and Supervisory Employes of the Mining Industry, a division of UMW's district 50. Employers are not required by the NLRB to recognize units of supervisory employes and have refused to bargain with the organization. The result has been a series of strikes followed by government seizure of mines affected.

Cite Contract Clauses.

In their petition, the operators contended that supervisory employes were exempted from a contract between them and the United Mine Workers. They cited a contract provision specifically exempting them from the term mine worker and providing that management of the mine and direction of the working force shall be vested exclusively in the operators and "the UMW shall not abridge these rights." The petition asserted that agents of the UMW "seek to and will abrogate and nullify" the agreement.

The petition also said that the WLB and NLRB, by their proceedings, are recognizing, and therefore are "sanctioning and encouraging" the foreman to attempt to make a contract "separate, distinct, and apart" from the existing contract between the operators and the UMW.

ENDOWMENT POLICY TAX.

My endowment policy will soon mature at $1,300, or $188.40 in excess of the total premiums of $1,111.60. I intend to leave the principal with the insurance company at 3 per cent interest. I understand that the interest of $39 a year will be subject to income tax, but will the excess over cost be taxable so long as the funds are left with the insurer? I am privileged to withdraw portions of the principal on anniversary dates.—C. J.

Amounts received each year under the contract as annuity must be included in gross income for tax purposes to the extent of 3 per cent of the consideration paid for the policy [not of the maturity value], or $33.35 in this case. The excess of receipts over this 3 per cent is excluded from taxable income until the aggregate of the amounts excluded equals the cost of the policy. Thereafter all additional payments must be included in gross income, as they are fully taxable.

Thus the excess of the maturity value over cost would eventually be subject to tax when received, but only after the cost had been recovered, free of tax.

Instalment payments [other than annuity payments] are exempt from tax until they equal the amount paid for the policy.

STRUCK STEEL PLANT IS TAKEN OVER BY ARMY

Sandusky, O., Sept. 25 (AP).—A group of army officers headed by Lt. Col. Norman J. Riebe of the Buffalo, N. Y., district engineers office, took over the Farrell Cheek Steel company today on orders of President Roosevelt.

The action was taken after some 600 employes halted production of war supplies Sept. 11 in protest against the company's refusal to comply with WLB orders, the war labor board said. Wendell Strong, local president of the CIO United Automobile Workers, said the union "is waiting for the government to call us back to work."

The company makes castings for trucks, shovels, and cranes, tanks, and landing craft.

WLB Asks Strike End.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 25 (AP).—The WLB called upon local leaders of the CIO United Steel Workers today to terminate a strike at the Ottumwa [Iowa] Iron works and said no action can be taken involving these workers until full and continuous production is resumed.

"This strike is seriously affecting the production of war materials," the WLB said in a telegram.

3,000 Strikers Return.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 25 (AP).—Partia' production was resumed today at the Briggs Manufacturing company's Mack av. plant, where 7,250 day and night shift workers were idle Saturday in a dispute over dismissal of 11 die setters.

Approximately 3,000 day shift employes reported for work after appeals from leaders of local 212, United Automobile Workers [CIO], pending negotiation of grievances, but another 2,000 remained away.

Open Rail Suit Against Van Sweringen Estate

Cleveland, O., Sept. 25 (AP).—Hearing of a 3 million dollar recovery suit brought against the O. P. Van Sweringen estate by the Missouri Pacific Railroad company, alleging financial "misconduct" 10 years ago, opened in common pleas court today. The railroad asked for an accounting of transactions, a determination of the exact losses suffered by the railroad, and an order requiring the estate and executors to pay that sum.

HOG AVERAGE UP 5C ON INCREASED 1944 PIG RECEIPTS

A larger run of 1944 spring pigs at the Chicago stock yards yesterday raised the average price 5 cents a hundred pounds to $14.50, highest since Oct. 26, 1943, and $2 above the 1944 low in June. The average was still 30 cents under the corresponding 1943 day and 75 cents under two years ago. Prices remained at OPA ceilings.

The supply was the largest for a Monday in five weeks, but only by a small margin. Increased shipments of new crop pigs were almost offset by a further decrease in arrivals of old crop butchers and packing sows which were the smallest percentage of receipts in 10 weeks.

The cattle run was largest of the year, and all classes were steady to 25 cents lower. Lambs were 10 to 25 cents lower, mostly at $14 to $14.40.

ICC CHAIRMAN DEFENDS SAFETY DEVICE DELAYS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 25 (AP).—Chairman W. J. Patterson told Sen. Wheeler [D., Mont.] today that the interstate commerce commission is "alert to its responsibilities" for safety on railroads, but that war time restrictions have prevented extensive new installations of safety devices.

Wheeler, chairman of the senate interstate commerce committee, declared in a statement Sept. 19 that a wreck on the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad near Terre Haute, Ind., recently was "one of a series of preventable wrecks," and that the ICC "should take a more active part in compelling certain railroads to adopt safety devices."

Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific Railroad Company
Fifty Year Five Per Cent. Mortgage Gold Bonds, Series A, due February 1, 1975

To Holders of Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific Railroad Company Fifty Year Five Per Cent. Mortgage Gold Bonds, Series A, due February 1, 1975:

This Committee was chosen at a meeting of holders of the Fifty Year Five Per Cent. Bonds called by Guaranty Trust Company of New York, Trustee for the Bonds, in February, 1938, and thereafter it was granted permission by the Interstate Commerce Commission to intervene in the reorganization proceedings.

Since that time the Committee has endeavored to further the interests of the holders of the Bonds and it has been active in all the proceedings during the course of the reorganization.

The Interstate Commerce Commission, in its third supplemental report and order of April 10, 1944, approved the Plan of Reorganization. Thereafter the Plan was approved by the Court, with slight modifications, and appeals from the Court's order are now pending before the Circuit Court of Appeals.

It is anticipated that in the near future the Plan will be submitted by the Interstate Commerce Commission to those entitled to vote upon its acceptance, and that after the vote has been taken there will be further proceedings before the Court.

Thus far your Committee has refrained from seeking formal authorization to represent the holders of the Bonds. It does so now because under the Commission's order of April 10, 1944, which was approved by the Court, it may be advisable for your Committee to be able to demonstrate to the Court that the interests it represents are substantial. Also, since it will undoubtedly be necessary, during the consummation of the reorganization, for your Committee to appear again in court or to take other action to protect your interests, it will be able to do so more effectively if it holds the authorization it now seeks from the holders of a substantial number of the Bonds.

Accordingly, we suggest that you fill out the coupon which appears below and send it to the Secretary of the Committee, who will furnish you with the form of authorization which has been approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission, which you may revoke at any time, and which will involve no financial obligation on your part.

September 25, 1944.

PARITY PLANS FORCE GRAINS 5 CENTS HIGHER

Profit Taking Fails to Block Advance.

With one exception all deliveries of grain closed the permissible limit of 5 cents a bushel higher yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade. Heavy buying developed early on Saturday's announcement by the war food administration that it would purchase thru the Commodity Credit corporation at parity prices practically all 1944 crop cotton and would take over all unredeemed 1944 wheat under government loan on May 1, 1945, at the loan price, plus 15 cents, less carrying charges.

On the cotton exchange the cotton parity program brought a wave of trade and commission house buying that boosted futures the permitted maximum of $5 a bale as the market moved to or above the full parity price of 22.13 cents a pound for 15/16 inch middling. Some gains were pared by heavy profit taking and hedging sales.

Buying Rush at Opening.

A rush of buying of all grain futures started at the opening with wheat and rye up the permissible limit, but heavy profit taking developed and the markets eased fractions to 3 cents. When buying orders continued, grains gradually firmed and returned to the top where they closed. Trading was extremely heavy early, but quieted later because little business was possible at the maximum prices.

Brokers were confused as to the exact price the government would pay for cash wheat on May 1, but some major grain handlers said this figured out at about $1.68 for No. 1 hard winter wheat at Chicago, or about 5¾ cents less than the office of price administration ceiling price.

The advance in wheat lifted the open market price to above that which CCC has been paying recently, and is expected to upset the government feed wheat program. Large quantities of Canadian cash wheat were said to have been purchased by CCC, but the WFA announcement indicated the price which CCC could pay for cash wheat would be advanced.

New Corn at Ceiling.

New crop No. 2 yellow corn which has been selling as low as 8 cents under the OPA ceiling recently was traded in freely at $1.16 net track Chicago, the permissible maximum, and an estimated 600,000 bushels were purchased for deferred shipment. This put the price of old and new corn at the same level. Brokers believe the ceiling price of corn may have to be raised if farmers are to receive the full parity price, which on Aug. 15 was $1.09.

The upturn in oats, rye and barley was largely in sympathy with wheat, but government loans on rye and barley are at such a low price that brokers said some new government program will be necessary to give farmers full parity. There is no loan on oats. After the close the Canadian export tax on oats was advanced 5 cents a bushel to equal the full upturn in American markets.

Brokers considered the new government cotton and wheat program a political move because the action was taken about three months after congress had directed that all federal facilities be used to assure parity prices to farmers for grain.

Government loans on cash wheat on Sept. 16 totaled 81 million bushels, or 18 million more than a year ago. Brokers estimated that thru the government loan and the CCC purchases 300 million or more bushels of cash wheat may be held off the market before the end of the current crop year.

Rail, Aircraft Stocks Lead Broad Upturn

New York, Sept. 25 (AP).—Strength of soaring commodities spread into the stock market today with rails, aircrafts, carrier equipments, and assorted industrials reviving generally on relatively active dealings.

Locomotive manufacturing stocks had the benefit of expected heavy foreign orders, principally French. Aircrafts and steels were propped by thoughts of extensive armament needs for finishing off Japan. Motors reflected predictions of big peace time demand for new cars. Traffic prospects, even when Germany collapses, aided railway securities.

Some Expect War to Drag.

Some bidding apparently was based on the belief the European war would drag along and render reconversion less difficult. Rising political optimism was a bullish factor.

Prices improved at the start and, altho letdowns appeared in the final hour, assorted favorites closed at or near their best.

The Associated Press 60 stock average was up 0.4 at 54.5. Transfers of 792,590 shares compared with 546,460 Friday and were the largest since Sept. 13.

At peaks for 1944 were American Locomotive, Lima Locomotive, Grumman Aircraft, and Consolidated Vultee. The recently gaining Pepsi-Cola dropped a point.

RAILS LEAD BOND RISE.

New York, Sept. 25 (AP).—A lively rally in rails today helped the bond market score the most uniform advance in more than a week. Gains ranged to more than a point. Industrials and utilities, especially the higher priced ones, held fully steady along with United States government and foreign dollar obligations. Sales of $5,785,100 compared with $5,086,000 last Friday.

CHICAGO LIST HIGHER.

Prices advanced in turnover of 24,000 shares yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. Most actively traded were Studebaker, up 1; Electric Household Utilities, up ⅝, and Commonwealth Edison, unchanged. Closing at 1944 highs were Fansteel Metallurgical, up 4; General American Transportation, up ⅝, and H. W. Gossard, up ½.

OPA REINSTATES CURB ON PRICING CLOTHING LINES

Washington, D. C., Sept. 25 (AP).—The OPA announced today that on and after Nov. 24 manufacturing retailers of women's and children's outer garments and fur coats and of men's and boys' tailored clothing once again must conform to their highest price line limitations.

OPA explained that this action, which partly reverses an order of June 30, was taken after study of the recent stabilization act determined that the purpose of congress was to offer relief to retailers who do not control the prices at which garments are produced.

DOUGHTON CENSURES PROPOSAL TO SHELVE TAX ON CORPORATIONS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 25 (AP).—Altho he said he was certain tax laws would be revised to encourage post-war private enterprise, Chairman Doughton [D., N. C.] of the house ways and means committee said today that proposals for complete elimination of corporation income taxes "are not practical" and that he would call the joint senate-house taxation committee together immediately after congress reconvenes Nov. 14, to tackle the prime remaining job of peace time planning, tax revision.

"We couldn't eliminate corporation taxes without imposing a rigid undistributed profits tax, and the corporations are against that," he said in an interview, and gave some of his own views on post-war taxation.

"No one is more anxious than myself to lighten the tax burden on the individual as well as on business, where practical, and to see industry encouraged to expand," he said. "We want to see private enterprise at work, providing jobs."

Robert B. Harper.

The Chicago Association of Commerce has scheduled three war problems school meetings on the pricing of peace time products during the reconversion period, Leverett S. Lyon, chief executive officer announced. The first meeting will be held Friday night in the La Salle hotel. William F. Kelly, price executive of the machinery price branch of the OPA, will speak.

The appointment of A. G. Harmeier as vice president of Sprague Warner-Kenney corporation in charge of grocery manufacturing was announced by Nathan Cummings, president. Harmeier, who for 28 years was connected with Kroger Grocery and Baking company, Cincinnati, will make his headquarters at the company's Arthington st. plant.

ODT ANNOUNCES EASED TANK CAR USAGE CONTROLS

Increased use of waterway and pipe line facilities for petroleum transportation has enabled relaxation of restrictions on the use of railroad tank cars, the office of defense transportation's Chicago office said yesterday.

Changes effective immediately include the release for service in other areas of petroleum tank cars formerly assigned exclusively to eastern traffic. Also, permit restrictions on smaller tank cars in the eastern service have been lifted, and all cars may now be operated without permits on runs of more than 100 miles instead of 200 miles as formerly.

Fayette B. Dow, ODT assistant director in charge of liquid transport, said the easing of restrictions did not mean less oil is being shipped, but rather the expanded use of other transport facilities has shortened the hauls by rail and consequently eased the current tank car supply.

LOCAL RE-ELECTS CHIEFS REMOVED BY PARENT UNION

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 25 (AP).—Members of United Automobile Workers [CIO], local 235, reelected by acclamation today President Nestor B. Dessy and all other officers who were removed from office six weeks ago in connection with a strike at the Chevrolet gear and axle plant.

The strike had persisted about a week when the international union's executive board, meeting in Milwaukee, removed the local officers for "fomenting" the walkout and appointed Melvin Bishop, a regional director, as temporary administrator of the local's affairs.

Building Vital to Prosperity, Says Johnston

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 25.—Eric A. Johnston, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, tonight told the National Association of Home Builders that the post-war employment goal cannot be reached without a large volume of construction.

"If we look carefully at our economy, we will see that nothing is more important than a healthy building activity," he said. "The ups and downs of construction, as much as any one thing, help create that most serious threat to the continuance of our free institutions—widespread unemployment.

Rejects Gloomy Prophecies.

"As a matter of fact, some gloomy prophets say we are practically all thru with private building, except for replacements, and that as a consequence the capitalistic system is all washed up. Therefore, the government must run the show or the wheels of progress will stop moving. I accept neither this prophecy nor the assumptions on which it rests. Men make their own opportunities. There is no one to tell them they are thru except themselves."

Johnston said the federal government's role in the housing field needed clarification, particularly in elimination of its subsidized building activities, and urged state and community governments to resume financing their own public works.

Local Independence Urged.

"Their debts have been reduced, their tax collections are at peak levels, and their relief responsibilities are at a minimum," he said. "We should have a drastic overhauling of our public finance to insure a continuation of this relatively independent financial position which the states and communities achieved during the war period.

"A man can't be independent with a tin cup in his hand. States and communities cannot carry on their proper responsibilities in our constitutional system if they look to the federal government to finance their activities."

Johnston said the federal government should correlate its own public works expenditures. He suggested that congress establish an agency to consider the combined benefits and costs of proposed expenditures.

COURT ADMITS PHOTOS AS PORK SUIT EVIDENCE

The OPA rested its case yesterday in its injunction suit against the country's four largest meat packers, after Federal District Judge Barnes had overruled objections by the packers' attorneys to the admission into evidence of 35 photographs.

Following the close of the government's case, attorneys for the packers entered motions to quash the suit, arguing evidence was insufficient. The motions will be heard today. The OPA has charged Armour & Co., Swift & Co., Wilson & Co., and Cudahy Packing company with selling pork cuts with fat in excess of the half inch allowed by OPA regulations.

BANKS TERMED VULNERABLE TO MONEY POLITICS

Dr. Nadler Wary of Debt Juggling.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

As large creditors of the federal government, banks are in a vulnerable political position, Dr. Marcus Nadler, finance professor at New York university, warned the American Bankers' association yesterday.

The banks are in danger of being made victims of financial sleight of hand intended to ease the load of the war swollen government debt, Nadler said in an address to the national bank division in the Stevens hotel.

Deliberate inflation of prices may be one of the methods suggested to alleviate the debt burden, Nadler said. Other possible proposals he listed are nationalization of the 12 federal reserve banks to save interest on their holdings of government securities, issuance of special low interest bearing securities to refund government issues now owned by banks, and the redemption of outstanding bonds with depreciated currency.

Urges Fight on Interest Hike.

Nadler argued that bankers should combat every effort to increase money rates in order to lessen the political appeal of unorthodox methods of handling the big war debt. Higher interest rates, he contended, would increase the political pressure for inflation or other radical measures.

"A debt of 300 billion dollars can be carried by the United States if production in the post-war period is maintained at a high level and national income is large," he said. "The banks, as well as every citizen interested in the future welfare of the country, must realize the only way to solve the public debt problem is the hard way—namely, thru the institution of economy on the part of the government and its subdivisions, thru an increase in production of the country, and an adequate tax system."

Opposite Opinion Presented.

An opposite opinion on interest rates was expressed in a speech before the savings division by Russell Weisman, professor of economics at Western Reserve university. He argued that interest rates must be permitted to rise after the war to prevent an unrestrained spending spree, provide an incentive for savings, and furnish the basis for a sound economy within the framework of the capitalistic system.

Asserting that the New Deal has pursued a policy of encouraging spending rather than thrift, Weisman said:

"We must decide soon after the war is over whether we shall spend or save. Involved directly is the choice between private enterprise and some form of collectivism; between savings and investing by individuals and corporations, and dependence on public credit."

Analyzes Loan Shrinkage.

William G. F. Price, vice president of the American National Bank and Trust company, Chicago, said demand for commercial bank loans has shrunken for the last 25 years because of banker preference for short term, self-liquidating loans, borrower dependence on security markets for capital, accumulating company working capital thru retention of earnings, and a shift in borrowing from the producer to the consumer.

To reverse the downward trend in commercial loans he recommended concentrating on loans to small and medium sized businesses and consumers, thinking in terms of production and jobs as well as in terms of money loans, and increasing capital under proper circumstances.

Presidents elected by five A. B. A. divisions: National bank division: R. Otis McClintock, Tulsa, Okla.; state bank division: Wilbur W. McEachern, St. Petersburg, Fla.; and savings division: Harry R. Templeton, Cleveland, O., trust division: Frederick A. Carroll, Boston, and state association section: G. Harold Welch, New Haven, Conn.

Company, Union Agree on 'Spread Work' Plan

Canton, O., Sept. 25 (AP).—Republic Steel corporation today announced a company and union agreement on a possible reduction of the 48 hour week to 40 hours in a "spread-the-work movement." The company said recent cutbacks had reduced operations of certain departments and the CIO United Steelworkers had agreed to a "temporary 40 hour week" providing an exemption is obtained from the man power commission.

100 Million Bank Credit Pool Formed to Aid Small Business

The formation in New York of a 100 million dollar bank credit pool to help supply credit needs of small business during the reconversion and post-war periods was announced yesterday. It was the first to be formed under the program recently adopted by the post-war small business credit commission of the American Bankers' association.

A similar credit pool of 50 to 75 million dollars is being organized in Chicago and is expected to be announced later this week.

Purpose of Group Described.

The purpose of the bank credit group in New York, said the agreement adopted by the 23 participating banks, is "to implement, augment, and undertake the financing of small and medium sized business concerns during the present reconversion period by participating in financing risks which may be in amounts, for periods, or upon terms or under conditions which may make usual banking accommodations unavailable."

"In the reconversion and reemployment periods, small business will have many new credit problems—war industries converting to peace time production, and business generally gearing its activities to new demands for goods and services," said Robert M. Hanes, chairman of the A. B. A. commission.

Utilize All Bank Facilities.

"The entire machinery of the American banking system will be utilized in meeting these and other credit needs of post-war America."

The credit operations of the New York group will be carried on by a committee of one representative from each member bank which will consider all loan applications.

Formation of the group is regarded as a move to forestall demands for government credit facilities that would lead to credit socialization.

1944 ARMS PROGRAM 64 PCT. COMPLETED AT END OF 8 MONTHS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 25 (AP).—At the 8-month mark, the 1944 munitions program was 64 per cent complete in terms of dollars, but July output ran 4 per cent and August 3 per cent behind forecasts.

The WPB summary of July-August production today added that only 45 per cent of the year's heavy truck program was complete, with rises of 42 per cent in big shell production and 28 per cent in aerial bomb output required.

In major arms categories military vehicles were the only item to top the August goal set at the start of the month—by two per cent. Aircraft and ships were 6 per cent behind goals and guns, ammunition, and signal equipment each lagged 3 per cent.

"Production must average 9 per cent above the July rate [5 billion 300 million dollars] and 8 per cent above the August volume [5 billion 430 million] to meet the present goal for 1944," the report said.

Several of the "trouble" programs reached peaks in August, including heavy duty tires, heavy trucks, B-29 and B-32 superbombers, and heavy artillery ammunition. Their output remained below requirements set, however, tho production of heavy field guns almost hit the pace needed to meet the 1944 schedule.

EXPECT EUROPE TO BUY LITTLE FARM PRODUCE

Land Price Upsurge Held Dangerous.

The American Bankers association's annual convention was told yesterday that farm prices are rising dangerously, that farm acreage must be readjusted after the war, and that post-war Europe will provide little or no market for American farm production. Delegates are meeting in the Stevens hotel.

Walter B. Garver.

Walter B. Garver, agricultural economist of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, said the existence of vast food reserves in the United States and Great Britain and the apparent ability of Europe to restore quickly the productivity of its farm lands indicated that the war torn continent would not provide added markets or better prices for American farm production.

Predicts Big Food Backlog.

Food needs at the end of the war would amount to approximately 9 million tons, he estimated, but predicted 10 million tons would be on hand in Great Britain and in possession of the war food administration and American military forces.

"American farm products undoubtedly will play a significant part in relieving European food distress, but in effect, as far as farm prices are concerned, these products already have been bought and the farmer has been paid," he said.

"It appears Europe has the capacity to produce the bulk of its own food needs as soon as the war ends," he added. "In general the land itself has not suffered appreciably from actual warfare, and it is believed that with the arrival of peace, labor will be ample to till the soil.

EXPECTS EUROPE TO OFFER SMALL FARM MARKETS

"One of the surprising developments in reoccupation of North Africa, Italy, and France has been the discovery that farmers had on hand and were producing more products than had been suspected. Substantial stocks had been hoarded and hidden from the enemy."

Discussing farm land prices, C. D. Tedrow, president of the Citizens' First National bank, Princeton, Ill., said farm land prices were 42 per cent above the 1935-1939 average, and that in the 12 months ended March 1, more farms were sold than in any similar period in the history of the country.

Careful Price Check Urged.

He said he did not favor compulsory limitation of loans, but agreed with the A. B. A. policy of urging banks "to check prices in their communities and discuss the subject at all meetings of bankers and farmers."

"I think the bankers not only should give as much publicity as possible to the dangerous trend in farm land prices, but should govern themselves personally by not buying lands at these high prices for their own account, and not making high amounts per acre or thin marginal real estate loans for their portfolios," he said.

Chester C. Davis, president of the Federal Reserve bank of St. Louis, said farm cultivation this year totaled 375 million acres, compared with 325 million in pre-war years.

"Expands Beyond Peace Need."

"The farm plant has been expanded beyond the capacity needed to supply abundantly the peace time domestic market and any normal export market that will be available," he said. "In the long run a healthy condition can come only from a strong, wide, active domestic market based on high non-agricultural production, and adjustment by farmers to produce what such a market wants and will take at a remunerative price."

At a meeting of the national agricultural credit committee in the Palmer House, H. R. Tolley, chief of the bureau of agriculture economics of the department of agriculture, said an agricultural output equal to that of 1943 could be absorbed at a national income level of approximately 150 billion dollars, after a full transition from the war time economy.

PREDICT FARM SURPLUS

Farmers undoubtedly will be plagued with surpluses after the war because they will not get the big business they expected of feeding other nations. This warning was sounded yesterday at a meeting of presidents and secretaries of the American Farm Bureau federation in the Sherman hotel.

Both Edward O'Neil, president of the federation, and Earl Smith, vice president, said agricultural exports were likely to be much smaller than most people realize. Smith recalled that after the last World war farmers had their hopes pinned on a good market in other nations but failed to get it.

The outlook for agricultural exports is not encouraging, said O'Neal, and industrialists planning on large exports of machinery and equipment to other nations are expecting to take foreign agricultural produce in return. He said this would result in America's importing more agricultural products than it exported.

STATION 'JIG' GIVES OUT ON HITLER'S AIR

If you should hear the expression "Jig Easy Sugar Queen" coming out of your loudspeaker don't dismiss it as jive lingo. "Jig Easy Sugar Queen" has nothing to do with swing: it's the first American radio station to operate from the soil of occupied Germany.

Jig Easy Sugar Queen is a military elaboration of JESQ, which are the call letters of the army signal corps transmitter with the 1st army inside Germany.

Jig Easy Sugar Queen is a sister of Jig Roger Peter, thru which Seymour Korman, Chicago Tribune correspondent, made the first broadcast from the Anzio bridgehead. The signal corps uses words to amplify call letters because many letters including "m" and "n" and "b" and "d" are easily misunderstood on the air.

Station Described.

Yesterday W. W. Chaplin, NBC war correspondent just returned from France, described Jig Easy Sugar Queen and its services. Sugar Queen's boss is Lt. James Rugg, who was an amateur radio operator in civilian life. It's a mobile outfit, mounted on a truck, and it's been with the American forces ever since D-day, Chaplin said. It moved up with the troops whenever they advanced.

On the day Cherbourg fell, Chaplin reported, it was moved into the port city and American press and radio men used it with the permission of the army to send the news back home. Since then it has rolled all the way across France and the reich.

First American radio man to broadcast home thru Jig Easy Sugar Queen from German soil was Jim Cassidy of WLW, Cincinnati, Chaplin said. When a press or radio man with advanced elements of the 1st army wants to send a message to the United States he follows a simple procedure.

Knocks on the Door.

Because her "studio" is more in the open than is usual in broadcasting, some of the radio reporters have felt that she permits more sound effects than they care for. Planes zooming overhead and the crash of gunfire force them to talk loudly.

JESQ operates on 1,500 kilometers, a channel not considered too good but the only one available for that purpose. However, JESQ reaches stations in England which relay its pickups by short wave to American networks for rebroadcasting.

Broadcasts from front line stations sometimes are cut in on American networks on vocal cues after two way tests have been made. Or they may start on a prearranged split second time cue. Sometimes scheduled programs fail to come in as arranged—and you hear nothing.

Chances are, tho, that you'll be getting plenty of good news from now on by way of Jig Easy Sugar Queen, a real front line veteran, as it rolls deeper into Germany.

BOWLING ALLEY BANDITS ADMIT 12 BURGLARIES

Police said the quartet has admitted 12 burglaries, most of them in bowling alleys and pool halls, in which a total of $1,200 in loot was taken.

Held are Lawrence Snell, 629 N. Dearborn st., Gilbert Murphy, 1455 Henderson st., Glenn Wysong, 1436 Belmont av., and Edward Youngberg, 3245 Southport av.

Policeman Edward Hayes of the Damen av. station said the four admitted breaking into the North Center bowling alley, 4017 Lincoln av., at 2 a. m. Saturday, where they bowled and played pool until 5 a. m. When they left they took 13 quarts of whisky from the barroom, Hayes said, which they attempted to secrete under the Northwestern tracks on Irving Park rd. A passer-by became suspicious and telephoned police the license number of their automobile, which led to their arrest.
